Clara Bow Tells How She Lost at Cards

JONES FIGHTS TO PROTECT LEAD

Kline Acts to Assist Jobless

Today

Mr. Sloan Cheerful. No Bootleg in This. Rays That Pierce Steel. He Talked Too Much.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

WHAT THE WORLD needs more than anything else just now is optimism, especially in America, with call money at one per cent and "too much" of everything.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, refuses to join the downhearted, panic-stricken. He says the automobile industry has reached the "bottom of the cycle of depression, and has begun a slow, but sure return to normal conditions. This is apparent, not only in the automobile business, but in all lines of industry."

USUALLY, WHEN you read that a man has killed his family and himself, you find a paragraph about the bottle of bootleg whisky.

In a story from York, Pa., bootlegging plays no part. Harry Dietrich, a farmer, hanged himself after killing his wife and four children.

In place of the usual whisky bottle, there was a note saying the family must die together, as he could not leave them alone.

The farmer's note for $3,800 was coming due at a local bank next Saturday, with no money to pay it.

THOSE STILL young remember the first announcement of the X-rays. Pictures in Sunday newspapers showed dimly outlined skeletons of rats or cats revealed by X-ray penetration.

Next came X-ray pictures of broken bones. Now the X-ray is as much a part of industry as it is of surgery and medicine.

According to the latest amazing announcements the "gamma ray" enables scientists to look through solid steel, beams of skyscrapers or the armor of battleships.

Thus weak spots can be detected, any defect inside of the metal being actually "seen." This reminds you that men can DO whatever they can IMAGINE.

DAVID WEINBERG, 44, a tailor, has learned that saying what you think is sometimes dangerous. He was interested in Communism and discussed it with his neighbors in Miami, so the police say. And he had books on the subject.

Men kidnaped him from his house, took him in an automobile, stripped him naked, beat him, tarred, feathered, handcuffed him, wrapped him up in a white-hooded cloak, then threw him out of the automobile in his own neighborhood.

GREAT SUCCESSFUL nations are on a gold basis. If, at any time, there should not be enough gold, an inadequate "basis" for doing business would cause trouble.

The League of Nations gold delegation reports to the League financial committee that by 1933, the world's gold supply will be inadequate to carry on business, unless something can be done to distribute the gold more evenly.

That means distributing two billions in gold that France has accumulated, and the larger gold hoard of the United States.

George E. Roberts, vice president of the National City Bank, one of the League's gold delegation, says something can be arranged to take care of gold for the next 10 years.

HE IS PROBABLY right. A few years ago, the distinguished scientist, Crookes, whose "Crookes' tube" will keep him forever famous, solemnly warned the world that by 1932 there wouldn't be enough wheat to feed the population, and predicted serious famine, unless some other food were developed.

Since then seed wheat has been developed that grows far in the North, where wheat never grew before. Fertilization and cultivation have been improved, and the problem now is not too little wheat, but TOO MUCH wheat.

ALL SORTS of news in Wall Street yesterday, "nearly all bad." An interesting feature was money lending at 1 per cent, on call, a considerable change from the 12, 15 and 20 per cent last fall.

It is amazing how easily our much-despised Bolshevist friends in Russia frighten our great financial "best minds" in America.

Those best minds, recently busy, proving that Russia's government never could amount to anything, are now busy hunting some method of competing with Russia in a business way.

THE NEW RATE for call money, one per cent in the outside market, arises from what Wall street calls "a glut of money."

Historians of the future will find it difficult to understand why we worried in the Year of Our Lord 1930, with nothing but "gluts" to worry about.

There's too much MONEY, too much WHEAT, too much OIL, a great deal too much COAL, too much industrial production, too much sugar.

If "too much" frightens us so badly, what would "too little" do to us?

HOW ARE THE mighty fallen? How sudden are changes in politics!

New York's Anti-Saloon League will "accept" Mr. Tuttle as the Republican candidate for governor, if he will only consent to run as a wet, without insisting on putting in the platform a demand for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Mr. Tuttle, who learned a good deal about prohibition as federal district attorney, is expected to insist on absolute repeal, and nothing else.

Atlantan Battles to Hold 2 Up Edge Gained in Morning Round; Homans in Front

BULLETIN.

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 25.—Bobby Jones, fighting to protect a lead of 2 up which he gained over Fay Coleman in their morning round, was accompanied by a gallery of 5,000 link fans when he and the Coast ace started their afternoon 18-hole round. Jones won the nineteenth, lost the eighteenth and halved the twenty-first to remain 2 up. Jess Sweetser was leading Maurice McCarthy, 1 up.

MERION CRICKET CLUB, ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—After a hard fight in which he gave a ragged exhibition of golf, Bobby Jones gained a lead of 2 up on Fay Coleman, of Los Angeles, today after 18 holes of their 36-hole quarter final match in the national amateur golf tournament.

Jones was having trouble with his second shots all morning and, although he was getting drives well out ahead of Coleman at almost all the holes, the Coast man succeeded in working his approach shots inside the Atlantan.

Jones reached the nadir of his woes on the fifteenth hole when he went out of bounds with his drive and took a 6. Coleman got a 4 to win the hole and square the match, but after that came Jones' wins at the sixteenth and

W. S. MITCHELL, FINANCIER, DIES

Walter S. Mitchell, 73, vice president of the Mellon National Bank and board member of numerous Mellon corporations, died at 9 o'clock this morning at his home, Dundee farm, Sewickley Heights. Death was due to pneumonia, with which he was stricken Monday morning in his office.

Born in Somerset, Pa., March 17, 1857, he became connected with the Mellon bank in 1871, when it was known as T. Mellon & Son's Bank. He was cashier

MONKEY BITES BOY; JAILED

County detectives were in a quandary today over the disposition of a little brown monkey turned over to them for observation after it ran wild at a street carnival at Mollenauer last night and bit Patrick Wallace, 8.

Chained in detective headquarters, the new prisoner lunges at anyone who ventures near it, consumes huge quantities of cigarets, drinks water from a whisky bottle and has all the outward appearances of a "tough" customer, detectives say.

175 Die, 300 Injured In Turkestan Quake

MOSCOW, Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Relief was pushed today in the area around Stalinbad, Turkestan, where an earthquake devastated several villages and left more than 1,000 families homeless.

According to meager information from the stricken area, 175 persons were killed by the temblor and 300 injured.

Queen Helen, Son Back in Bucharest

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Queen Helen, former wife of King Carol, returned today from Mamaia to the Rumanian capital where she plans to spend the winter in her own palace. Crown Prince Mihai, once the boy King of Rumania, came with his mother.

Soviet Denies Art Sale To Secretary Mellon

PARIS, Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Reports published by an anti-Soviet newspaper here and reprinted in the United States that Andrew W. Mellon, United States Secretary of the Treasury, has purchased a Jan Van Eyck masterpiece from the famous Hermitage museum in Leningrad were emphatically denied here today.

An official of the Soviet embassy declared there was no truth whatever in the report that any masterpieces from the Hermitage collection were being disposed of, much less that Secretary Mellon had been a purchaser. The original report stated Secretary Mellon had bought the only Van Eyck in the collection, the "Annunciation," for a price said to be $800,000.

The well-known Paris and London art gallery of Knoedler & Sons was named in the false report as the dealer in the sale. An official of that organization said the story was an entire fabrication, and added there was no indication that the Soviet government had the slightest intention of selling anything from the Hermitage collection.

At the embassy the report was branded as propaganda. An embassy official declared that the Soviet government "prided itself" on the fact that the Hermitage collection was being kept intact and even increased by means of addition of private collections.

GAMBLING LOSS EXPLAINED BY CLARA BOW

Movie Star Says She Didn't Know Black Jack Chips Were Worth $100 Each

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Clara Bow, filmdom's redhead, has broken a two-day silence to answer assertions that she stopped payment on checks for $13,900 after offering them in payment of gambling losses at a Calneva (Nev.) resort.

The actress' statement read:

"While I was at Lake Tahoe, Will Rogers invited Rex Bell, my secretary, Miss Devoe, and myself to dinner.

"I did not know the hotel was a gambling place until after we reached there.

"After we had dinner Mr. Rogers went to one of the gambling tables and naturally we went with him.

BLACK JACK

"I began to play a little at a game called Twenty - one, which they call there 'Black Jack.'

"They gave me 50-cent pieces to play with, and I signed some checks in blank, telling the dealer to fill in the amount of the 50-cent pieces he had given me. There were four checks.

"It now seems they claim these 50-cent pieces represented what they call $100 chips, and they put enough in the checks to amount to that.

"When the checks reached my bank they called me and said the checks had a slip on them asking the bank to 'wire fate of these checks.'

STOPS PAYMENT

"This attracted the attention of my banker, and I found out for the first time this gambling house claimed I had lost and owed them nearly $14,000, so I told the bank not to pay the checks.

"If these people think they have an honest claim against

DRY ROW SPLITS NEW YORK G. O. P.

Anti-Drys to Dominate Convention, Force Repeal Plank, Leaders Declare

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—New York Republican leaders, striving to hold their party in today's state convention to its traditional dry policy and to harmony with the national administration on prohibition pronouncements, labored against a mounting tide of anti-dry sentiment.

Champions of repeal boasted that they would control a clear majority on the first ballot and that they would force the choice of anti-prohibition candidates and the insertion of a platform plank advocating repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The fight over the prohibition plank overshadowed all other issues and even the candidates. Advocates of repeal prophesied they would have between 500 and 700 of the 997 votes from the outset.

DRYS FIGHT

The threat to the dry policy of the party met uncompromising resistance from drys outside the party, but leaders close to the national administration, while urging the platform remain in line with the dry attitude of the party nationally, looked for no widespread deflection if the convention should insist on an anti-dry plank and anti-dry candidates.

Charles H. Tuttle, United States district attorney, who advocates repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the substitution of an amendment enabling state liquor control, held most of the interest as the nominee for governor.

The repeal forces were prepared to support him, and many drys were not ready to support for nomination Attorney General Hamilton Ward, of Buffalo, whose prohibition attitude was not defined. The W. C. T. U., in an effort to obtain a dry plank, declined to throw its strength to

ARREST FOWNES IN AUTO DRIVE

Members of prominent families were among the 65 persons arrested in a crusade against drivers who are alleged to have ignored a through traffic sign stop at Wilkins avenue and Beeler street, Traffic Court records revealed today.

Miss Mary Marshall, of 201 Lytton avenue, daughter of the late Rody P. Marshall, is out of town, her uncle, Meredith R. Marshall, informed Magistrate Charles Papale presiding, and he requested that the case against her be held over. The request was granted.

H. C. Fownes II, of 5321 Wilkins avenue, forfeited $15 which he had posted following his arrest.

Twenty-six defendants were fined $5 each, 25 were discharged and a total of 14 failed to appear.

Grover Alexander Jailed in Nebraska

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, once a star hurler of the National League, is in jail here pending hearing on eight separate charges, most of which have to deal with alleged violations of the liquor laws.

Refusing to settle after an automobile accident, Alexander drove off, but was caught after a six-mile chase.

URGES HOME LABOR FOR CITY WORK

Mayor Holds Conference On Alderdice Plan to Speed Contracts, Employ Many

Work in Pittsburgh for Pittsburghers was urged today by Mayor Charles H. Kline in a concerted move to relieve unemployment in the city.

The mayor sent a letter to all contractors on city jobs asking them to give preference to workers here rather than import laborers from outside points and house them in commissary camps.

The mayor's action was in line with the suggestion of Councilman R. J. Alderdice that the city hire workers on street and sewer jobs instead of letting contracts on bids.

CONFER TODAY

A conference on the proposal was held in Council Chambers late today. It was held behind closed doors.

The mayor before entering the conference said:

"The employment of Pittsburghers on Pittsburgh jobs is not a selfish or provincial attitude, but to my mind a sane and sensible course. If every community concentrates upon providing jobs for its own jobless, the problem will be solved from a national standpoint."

SPEND LIBERALLY

Mayor Kline said the city aimed to spend all it can officially and economically afford to provide as many jobs as possible. He urged all employers of labor, regardless of private or public projects, to give Pittsburgh workers the preference.

Participating in the conference, this afternoon, were members of Council, Mayor Kline, Director of Works Edward G. Lang, Controller J. P. Kerr and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt.

Under the Alderdice plan, admittedly offered after studying the situation in London during

Joe McCarthy Quits Cubs, Hornsby Takes Reins; Clash Threatens

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Joe McCarthy resigned today as manager of the Chicago Cubs.

Rogers Hornsby, popular second baseman for the Bruins, immediately took McCarthy's place.

Incensed over the appointment of Hornsby as 1931 manager of the club, McCarthy went to the office of President William Veeck and tendered his resignation as manager, effective immediately.

The bad blood between McCarthy and Hornsby, which has been kept under cover during the exciting race for the pennant, was apparent in McCarthy's attitude as he went to the conference with Veeck.

McCarthy declared to friends that he would not under any circumstances appear on the field for the game with the Reds today unless Hornsby was kept out of uniform. He also intimated that if he did meet Hornsby that he would show Rogers what a "fighting manager" can do with his fists.

6 TAXI BANDITS SENT TO JAIL

Judge George V. Moore in Criminal Court today refused pleas for leniency for six taxicab robbers and sentenced them to jail.

The six pleaded guilty to robbery charges involving the holding up of taxi drivers in the Millvale district over a period of several months. All the defendants reside in that district.

Those sentenced were J. A. Kleitz, reputed ringleader, from 18 to 36 months in the workhouse; Marshall Thompson, four to eight months in jail; James Murphy, Alfonse Winkler, Lawrence Rosenblatt and Henry Swick, to the Pennsylvania Industrial Reformatory, Huntingdon.

Boy Flier Delayed In Trans-U. S. Hop

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 25. — (INS.) — Adverse weather conditions today caused Robert Buck, 16-year-old New Jersey boy pilot, to indefinitely postpone his flight to Los Angeles in an attempt to establish a new transcontinental junior flight record.

Buck said he might hop off next week, if weather conditions improved.

WOMAN'S DEATH HELD SUICIDE

An investigation to the death of Mrs. Kate A. Kelm, which flared up today after the reported finding of blood stains on a bed in a room of her home, 1241 McNeilly avenue, Dormont, ended as suddenly as it began when a coroner's physician officially returned a verdict of suicide.

The throat-slashed body of Mrs. Kelm was found Tuesday in the bath of her home by an adopted daughter, Elisbeth, 19. Beside theb ody was a butcher knife, and it was announced that Mrs. Kelm had taken her life in a fit of despondency.

Elisbeth later found blood stains and a piece of flesh in a bedroom adjoining the bath and reported her fin.' to Dormont police. Accordingly, two coroners removed the body, which was prepared for burial, in the morgue where an autopsy was held.

Following the post mortem, it was announced that it was possible for the woman to have slashed her throat in one room and then to have walked into an adjoining one before collapsing.

Pittsburgher Likely Choice On Hoover Home Board

A. C. Robinson, Pittsburgh banker, named by President Hoover as a member of a committee to evolve a program whereby more persons may be able to build their own homes, today was thought the possible head of a sub-committee whose task it will be to work out a new financing plan for home builders.

Advices from Washington, after the first meeting of the new committee in the White House, said it was likely Robinson would have charge of an effort to determine a better financing plan so that it would be possible for more persons to undertake building.

President Hoover, in addressing the 33 members of the committee, stressed the importance of a new financing plan. He said:

"The financing of home building, especially for second mortgages, is the most backward element of our whole credit system. It is easier to borrow 85 per cent on an automobile and repay it on the installment plan than it is to buy a home on that basis—and generally the house requires a higher interest rate.

"Yet the home is certainly just as good collateral as an automobile. It depreciates more slowly, if at all, and its owner will make a harder fight to keep it."

HITLER AVOWS AIM TO SCRAP VERSAILLES PEACE TREATY

WOULD TEAR UP PACT, HE SAYS

German Fascist Leader Hints Bloodshed; Discloses Plans in Testimony

LEIPSIC, Germany, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Adolf Hitler, Fascist generalissimo, today declared that just as soon as the German Fascists by legal means have captured political power in Germany, they will tear asunder the treaty of Versailles, if necessary by means looked upon by the world as illegal.

His announcement of purpose was made at the trial of three Reichswehr officers to which he had been summoned as a witness.

HINTS AT BLOODSHED

That blood may flow once the Hitlerites are in power was admitted by the Fascist chieftain who declared passionately:

"Whenever my party, by legal means shall have seized power, then there will also be constituted a new German Supreme Court, November, 1918, will then find its expiation and heads will then roll."

Asked why he spoke of revolution so often, Hitler replied:

"What other name can we to a movement which aims overturn the present state construct a new Germany on entirely new lines?"

EXPOUNDS AIMS

Hitler, whose Fascist party made heavy gains in the recent German elections, expounded in detail the aim of his party to create a new German state—not by armed revolt but by a bloodless constitutional revolution. He cited Mussolini's recreation of Italy as an example of the peaceful reforging of a nation in the flame of reborn national consciousness.

Beginning quietly with his hands folded in front of him, Hitler became more emotional as he proceeded and the presiding judge several times warned him to cool down and to keep his answers on a conversational level. On the whole, however, his manner was dignified and restrained.

JACK DONAHUE, DANCER, ILL

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Jack Donahue, star of "Sons o' Guns," who was forced to leave his show in Cincinnati when stricken ill, came home today under the care of a physician.

Donahue walked up the train platform by himself apparently with difficulty. He paused to rest every dozen steps. Friends met him at the station and took him home.

Donahue's condition is diagnosed as critical but physicians say he has a fighting chance to recover.

The star's manager said Donahue's collapse came as the result of the strenuous work his role in the production requires and his willingness to continue work despite his illness.

Arctic Explorer Flies to Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Maj. L. T. Burwash, Arctic explorer, arrived in Winnipeg by plane today from The Pas which he left early Tuesday. Headwinds and rain delayed him.

Maj. Burwash is on his way back to Ottawa with the story of his expedition to the Magnetic Pole and of his discovery of the 60-year-old camps of the Franklin expedition, whose members perished on King William Island off the north shore of Canada.

2 Army Officers Injured in Crash

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Brig. Gen. B. D. Foulois, assistant chief of the Army Air Corps, and Maj. W. H. Kilmer were injured slightly in an automobile accident here yesterday. They received cuts and bruises when an automobile in which they were riding into Albuquerque from the airport swerved to avoid a truck, and overturned.

me I will gladly receive any legal document they serve on me, or they can present them to my attorney, Mr. W. I. Gilbert."

The repudiation of the checks was called to the attention of B. P. Schulberg, Paramount studio official, by James McKay, owner of the hotel.

McKay said Will Rogers, film humorist, had introduced the actress at his hotel.

ROGERS' GUEST

Prior to Miss Bow's statement issued late last night, Rogers was the only person concerned willing to discuss the assertions of McKay. He denied introducing the actress.

He said:

"Introducing Clara Bow to anybody is like introducing Hoover to the Senate.

"Clara and her boy friend, Rex Bell, film actor, were going to dinner one night, and I asked them to be my guests.

"The hotel is not solely a gambling house. A lot of divorcees stay over there in preference to Reno. I saw the wives of so many of my friends from back East that it was like old home week.

"Clara wasn't gambling much while I was there. I saw her going around making a few bets, but she didn't appear to be betting much.

"I don't gamble much. Fifty or $75 is my limit. I don't suppose it's going to hurt my reputation for people to know I've been in a gambling house. I couldn't have been much of a cowboy without having seen a lot of gambling. I've been to Monte Carlo, too.

"I went over there to see what all those old women were doing bending over those tables.

"But I don't like this idea of riding to fame on the skirts of Clara Bow."

Boy Friend Barred, Girl, 16, Shoots Self

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Refused permission to see a boy friend, Frances Woodward, 17, shot herself early today in her bedroom. She is in a serious condition in Cooper Hospital.

The girl's parents refused her permission to see Albert Clements, 16, a school chum, police said. At midnight the youth went to the Woodward home and called a greeting to his sweetheart. Other members of the girl's family ordered him away. An argument followed during which the girl shot herself.

Coolidge Sees Benefit In Agricultural Fairs

NORTHAMPTON, MASS., Sept. 25.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

This is the time of year when the agricultural fairs are flourishing. Some of the younger generation of the large cities probably have never had the opportunity to visit one of these excellent places of entertainment and instruction. But they are familiar to all our rural inhabitants and to most of the older urban population who have been recruited from the country.

Calvin Coolidge

These exhibitions of farm stock and produce, from the field and from the kitchen, are considered so important in stimulating and improving agriculture that they generally are encouraged by liberal appropriations from the state treasury. But their revenues, sometimes very large, are mainly derived from charges for admission. They are nearly all mutual benefit associations so that there are no personal profits and the whole income goes for maintenance.

The more modern and intricate forms of amusement are not able to detract from the wholesome pleasure that youth and age derive from the old-fashioned fair and cattle show. These autumn days will carry many, through cherished memories, back to them. They are a natural expression of human social instinct and friendly rivalry which nothing entirely can displace.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

3 in 30-Foot Boat Arrive In Boston on Way to Erin

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Three daring voyagers planning to cross the Atlantic Ocean to Ireland in 30-foot motor launch, despite the approach of autumn gales, arrived in Boston today, completing the first leg of their voyage from Bronson, Mich.

The trio were Joe Leppich, August Kubatco, and Christian Brath.

Their course, so far, has taken them along the Great Lakes, through the Erie Canal, down the Hudson River to New York, and then to this city.

Their diminutive craft is equipped with a radio, which has a range of 300 miles. On leaving Boston the trio propose to set out for Halifax, N. S., where they will stock their craft with food and fuel before the final "hop off" for Galway, Ireland.

QUICK ACTION ON POSTAL LEASES EXPECTED

Senate Quiz Committee Set For Inquiry; Kelly Will Start New Building Bill

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Early congressional consideration was assured today for the hundreds of post office building leases whose replacement through a government purchase and construction program was recommended by Postmaster General Brown yesterday in a report to President Hoover.

First the Senate committee named early in the summer to inquire into the nature of these leases will get to work, probably within 10 days, on its hearings.

KELLY TO ACT

Second, Representative Kelly (Rep.), Pennsylvania, a member of the House Postoffice Committee, announced he would introduce the legislation to carry out the postmaster general's recommendation for a five-year program costing $43,140,000 to replace some of the buildings.

Senator Blaine (Rep.), Wisconsin, is chairman of the Senate Investigating Committee. Chairman Blaine intends to proceed with the investigation shortly.

Brown's five-year program contemplates replacement of 198 leases, while another 103 would be eliminated.

106 NEW BUILDINGS

Seventy-eight stations and branches and 14 garage buildings would be purchased immediately as they stand for approximately $21,800,000. Their valuation was given as $19,060,998, and the annual rental $2,145,331. The annual saving, computed over 20 years, was placed at $650,000.

Construction of new buildings would replace 106 other structures on which leases expire within five years. The cost would be about $21,340,000 and the saving proportionate to that seen in the purchase plan. The remaining leases which do not expire by 1935 would be replaced later at a cost of $30,000,000.

The five-year program distribution recommended follows: 1931, $10,350,000; 1932, $14,650,000; 1933, $8,750,000; 1934, $4,000,000; 1935, $5,300,000.

Minister Is Blamed For Fatal Accident

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 25.—Identified as the driver of the car that caused the fatal wreck on August 14 on the Tyrone highway, the Rev. John B. Hackett, of Chest Springs, was held to blame by the coroner's jury.

Roy Estep, Tyrone, died of injuries when a car he was riding was forced off the highway by the Hackett machine. Occupants of the car identified Hackett, who contended that his car was stolen and later abandoned in Altoona.

Cashier's Suicide Closes Town Bank

PONTIAC, Mich., Sept. 25.—(INS.)—The Peoples Savings Bank at Walled Lake, near here, was closed today when, according to police, Clarence A. Chafy, 42, the cashier, committed suicide by firing a revolver bullet through his heart. The financial condition of the bank is not known.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Henry C. South, a Washington attorney and chief clerk of the House of Representatives from 1911 to 1915, died at his home late yesterday of heart disease.

VOTE MACHINE HOPES FADE FOR FALL

Move to Have Supreme Court Rule on Contract Seen As Ban Until Next Spring

Before voting machines are installed in Allegheny County the Supreme Court may have to pass on the legality of the contract entered into with the Poole Engineering and Machine Company, of Baltimore, by the County Commissioners.

If the Common Pleas Court refuses the injunction asked for by Francis S. Guthrie to restrain the commissioners from carrying out the contract signed with the Poole Company, the case will be carried to the Supreme Court, Attorney Charles F. C. Arensberg, counsel for Guthrie, said yesterday.

Arensburg asked that the hearing set for October 6 by Judges Frank P. Patterson and James B. Drew be made final. This means that the matter will probably reach the highest state court several months sooner than in the ordinary procedure, which would not go into a final hearing until at least 30 days after the first hearing date.

APPEAL PROBABLE

If the court grants the injunction then the Poole Company will probably appeal from this decision to the Supreme Court.

Adjudication of the case in the usual course of events would probably not be completed until late in the spring.

In addition to the several figurative monkey wrenches that have been dropped into the voting machine situation recently, Controller Robert G. Woodside dropped a handful of sand into the gear box yesterday by his declaration that until the legality of the contract has been passed on by the courts, he would not approve any payments for voting machines.

The voting machine matter was the headline attraction in court and at the county commissioners' meeting yesterday.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern and Joseph G. Armstrong clashed, McGovern said:

"What I want to know is, are we going to get the machines?"

RECALLS FORFEIT

Armstrong replied:

"The contract has been awarded and a $100,000 bond put up which will be forfeited if the company falls down on its contract. Maybe you can tell us why Guthrie waited so long to file his suit."

To which McGovern retorted:

"He's working for the Mellons."

This brought the remark from Armstrong:

"Well, maybe the Mellons don't want the machines."

This last remark ended the discussion, and the commissioners proceeded to award several contracts.

Guthrie, when informed the Mellons had entered into the commissioners' heated discussion, made the following statement:

"Any assertion connecting the Mellons in this business is too ridiculous to dignify with an answer. My sole purpose in this action is to bring about legal installation of voting machines."

Pay Too Small, Quits U. S. Post

HARRISBURG, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Mark T. Milnor, this city, announced that he had resigned as United States commissioner for the middle district of Pennsylvania, effective September 30. In announcing his resignation Milnor made public a letter he wrote to Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson, Lewisburg, in which he stated that the remuneration was so small that the office was tantamount to a non-paying public office and that 14 months of such service was all that he believed he could afford to give.

Rivera Says Reds Have Disowned Him

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Diego Rivera, Mexican artist, declared today he is not concerned over demands that he be denied the right to fulfill his contract for painting murals in the San Francisco Stock Exchange on the ground that he is a Communist. He explained that since his expulsion from the Communist party of Mexico a year ago he had abandoned Communistic activities.

Talkies in German Halted by Prague

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Motion picture theaters were ordered today to suspend temporarily the use of "talkies" in German.

The order, following two outbreaks of violence between Czech Fascists and German residents of Prague, was intended to allay anti-German feeling among the Slavonic population.

WADSWORTH LEADS ANTIS

Former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, championing a cause which was credited with costing him re-election to Congress four years ago, led the repeal forces.

State Chairman William J. Maier, after a four-hour conference of leaders, said nothing had been accomplished toward a general agreement on the repeal plank, and that the proposal would go to the resolutions committee. He hoped the matter would be settled without reaching the general convention, but this hope appeared offset by the threat of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, one of the anti-dry leaders, to bring the matter to the floor of the convention.

Hunt Society Girl Missing from Home

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Police of this city have been asked to join in the search for Miss G. Delancey V. Newlin, 30, who has been missing from her home in Bryn Mawr since Tuesday.

Miss Newlin, who is prominent in society circles, was last seen when she drove away from her home in a blue touring car. When the young woman failed to return last night, her mother, Mrs. Delancey V. Newlin, engaged private detectives to search for her. After checking with all hospitals and police stations, the detectives appealed to the local authorities for aid.

Columbus Plane With Pair Missing

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Trace of an airplane carrying William J. McNulty, Columbus business man, and piloted by William Parker, of Celeveland, was sought today by air field officials here. The plane took off from Cleveland, ostensibly for Buffalo, and has not been sighted since.

REDS' SHORT GRAIN SALE UNDER FIRE

Congressmen to Open Quiz In New York to Learn Extent of 'Dumping'

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—The congressional committee named to inquire into Communist activities in the United States will convene in New York City tomorrow seeking information on the short selling of wheat by the All-Russian Textile Syndicate, a Soviet agent.

Among the witnesses to be heard by Chairman Hamilton Fish are Basil Delgass, former official of Amtorg, another Soviet commercial agent, who told the New York Times today that the dumping of wheat and other commodities was a fixed policy of the Soviet government designed to foment revolution in other countries.

OTHER WITNESSES

Other witnesses to be heard are Ellis Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal; George Diamgaroff, president of an anti-Soviet organization and a former officer in the Czar's army; James Weldon Johnson, an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Joseph Szechenyei, editor of the Hungarian Daily.

The whole question of dealing in grain futures was discussed at a conference here today between Secretaries Hyde and Lamont, Chairman Legge of the farm board and three members of the Chicago Board of Trade.

BOARD TO HELP

Silas H. Strawn, counsel for the Chicago Board, said after the conference that the board entertained a friendly and sympathetic consideration for the government in its efforts in dealing with the alleged short selling of wheat by agencies of the Soviet.

MOSCOW, Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Official denial that the Soviet government is "dumping" wheat and other grains on the markets of the world was made by a high Soviet official to International News Service here today.

The present glut of Russian grain upon the world's markets was said to be due to the harvesting of a bumper crop of grain, the largest in the history of the Soviet.

COMMUNISTS HEARD

The Communist party representative, officially representing the Trade Union Unity League, an offshoot of the major branch, appeared in Council late yesterday with a plan. They wanted $5,000,000, to be distributed to the unemployed by their organization and allied unions.

The $5,000,000 should be collected, the speakers suggested, first, by a graduated income tax on earnings of $5,000 a year or more, and, second, by a 50 per cent reduction in the salaries of all city employes getting $2,000 a year or more.

Kemal Displeased At Life Job Idea

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—One European and three natives were killed in a mine explosion here. A number of natives have been entombed. A rescue party is attempting to reach the victims.

Armstrong Bids Colleagues 'Hire a Hall' During Tiff

County Commissioners E. V. Babcock and Charles C. McGovern have diametrically-opposed ideas concerning the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. They were discussing the lease given the Transcontinental Air Transport for landing privileges at the County Airport.

McGovern declared that the railroad is a "monopolistic octopus" that seized the steam railroad business, is crowding automobiles off the road with its buses that are using the highways that belong to the people—free of charge—and that now is seeking to take over the peoples' airways and airports. He produced a book, "The Life of Henry Frick," by George Harvey, to prove his contention, in which the "firm political intrenchment of this monopolistic corporation" is detailed. McGovern said the T. A. T. is a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Babcock declared that neither Frick nor Andrew Carnegie would ever have been the great men they were if it had not been for the railroads, and that Pittsburgh still would be a hamlet if it had not been for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Baltimore and Ohio and the Lake Erie railroads.

He said he "would be a mouse and not a man" if he did not "vehemently resent such attacks as McGovern's on the great public utilities companies."

He said he is against political quackery as expounded by McGovern.

Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong intervened during the interchange of pleasantries.

He ended the argument by saying:

"Gentlemen, there is nothing like this before the house. Hire a couple of halls to make your speeches in."

STOCK CRASH CHARGED TO HOOVER

Missourian to Stump for Democratic Congress, Is Silent on Own Ambitions

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON, International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—After a two-year voluntary retirement, the famous "Fighting Jim" Reed, of Missouri Democracy, returned to the national political spotlight today with a declaration that he would campaign for a Democratic Congress in November.

With his usual triphammer force, Reed demanded unconditional repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act; flayed the Hoover administration for the stock market crash and the business depression that followed; criticized the Farm Board for its handling of the wheat crisis, and literally rolled up his sleeves for the fall campaign.

AIMS AT HOOVER

The silver-haired Democratic orator did not mention his foe of food administration days by name, but his attack on the administration left no doubt in the minds of his friends that he expects to give voice to invectives for which he was noted while in the Senate and later during the pre-convention campaign. Reed visited the capital ostensibly in connection with his law practice, but soon he was the center of political speculation.

He shied at proposals made by his friends, that he be a candidate for President, remarking he was content to "practice law in Kansas City," his home.

He admitted, however, that he had not lost interest in politics, and disclosed his views on prohibition were as pronounced as ever.

SCOFFS AT DRY QUIZ

He made light of the Wickershaw Law Enforcement Commission, declaring there was no need for "investi, tion to prove what is obvious to all intelligent people." He added:

"It is obvious that the people of the United States have given this noble experiment a thorough trial and it is the greatest failure in the last century."

He pointed to New York, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Michigan as evidence that prohibition could not be enfo, .d without state assistance, and as certifying to "its absolute failure." He continued:

"The law was written by fanatics. It would have been written in blood by Draco, not by a civilized legislature."

He urged the return of liquor control to the states and declared:

"If the states cannot enforce their own laws, we might as well wipe out all state lines and say we've got just one big government."

Reed placed responsibility for the stock market crash directly at the door of the Federal Reserve Board for causing a "riot of speculation" by its policy of permitting large sums of money to go into the Stock Exchange through the banks.

DENIED RIGHT TO FACE HIS ACCUSERS

Bishop Declares Action by Group Illegal; Hurries Home From Brazil Tour

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, complained today in a radio message of the action of elders of his own church filng charges against him while he was in Brazil, on church work.

The message was sent to the Associated Press from the steamer American Legion, on which he is coming from Brazil.

NEW CHARGES

These charges, while their context has not been made public, are understood to involve Bishop Cannon's stock speculation operations and political activities, as well as certain new charges.

After detailing circumstances of his notification, while he was spending a honeymoon in Brazil with his former secretary, that new charges were to be filed against him, Bishop Cannon in his message said:

"I shall protest the legality of the hurried and premature action taken before my arrival, making impossible conferences with me, which the disciplinary provision 'to carefully inquire' necessarily includes."

DENIED CONFERENCE

According to the bishop's message he was notified on September 8 that four clergymen were inquiring into his case.

He cabled immediately, offering to meet his accusers in Washington after October 2, and received an answer which refused his right to confer with them.

Wherefore he boarded the first boat from Santos.

LAYS SHOOTING TO 'HOUNDING'

ENID, Okla., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Insisting she was "tortured" and "hounded" into shooting H. Z. Wedgwood, United States commissioner, and attempting to wound Judge Arthur Sutton in District Court here yesterday, Mrs. Dolly Douthitt, eccentric elderly widow, was held in jail today awaiting the outcome of Wedgwood's injuries.

Angered when a civil suit was decided against her and in favor of Wedgwood, Mrs. Douthitt shot Wedgwood in the abdomen and sent a wild bullet at Judge Sutton, on the bench. Attorneys and bailiffs overpowered her.

Mrs. Douthitt, whose gun play revived memories that she was acquitted of the slaying of her husband 26 years ago, told newspapermen she was "a volcano by temperament."

LYNCH SUSPECT IN GEORGIA

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Willie Kirkland, 20-year-old Negro convict, said to have been identified by a 9-year-old school girl as the one who attempted to attack her, was lynched here early today by a mob of more than 50.

Kirkland, serving a sentence on the chain gang for horse stealing, was taken from Sheriff Gordon E. Davis and several deputies who were seeking to transfer him to a nearby town for safe keeping.

Kirkland was hanged from a tree in Magnolia Gardens, a suburb.

After hanging him, the mob tied his body to the rear of a truck and drove to the city, circled the public square and deposited it finally on the court house lawn.

Stranger Kills Self In Rear of Church

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—(INS.)—An unidentified man, about 25, early today committed suicide by shooting himself in the head at the rear of a Catholic church. A railroad ticket to Marion, O., purchased yesterday, was found in his coat pocket.

The man wore an expensive gray suit and a valuable wrist watch. He was about 6 feet in height and weighed about 165 pounds.

NEW JOB GIVEN ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—A squall brewing in Congress over Philippine affairs since the appointment of Nicholas Roosevelt of New York to be vice governor of the islands, appeared dissipated today through the acceptance of his resignation by President Hoover.

Roosevelt, an editorial writer and author of books dealing with Philippine affairs, found his appointment blocked when it was presented to the Senate in the closing days of the last session. His resignation was tendered to the President yesterday on the ground that a controversy over his writings would complicate fundamental Philippine issues. Mr. Hoover announced his appointment as minister to Hungary. J. Butler Wright, now at Budapest, will go to Uruguay to replace Minister Leland Harrison, who has resigned. Roosevelt had not taken up his Philippine duties.

Martinsburg Plans Sunday Film Show

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Sunday motion pictures will be inaugurated here beginning next Sunday, the local manager of the Warner Brothers, operating the only theaters here, announced. One theater will be operated Sunday at hours designed to avoid conflict with church services. The Ministerial Association, it was learned, will consider taking action against operation of the theater. No meeting has been held, however.

BOARD REFUSES CAUFFIEL PLEA

HARRISBURG, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Joseph Cauffiel, former mayor of Johnstown, must serve at least six months more of his two-year sentence for collecting "protection" money from gamblers during his tenure.

The state Board of Pardons refused an application for a rehearing of a petition for a pardon for Cauffiel, declined the first time last February. Under rules of the board the former mayor cannot submit another petition for at least six months.

Only four of 29 applicants for rehearings of petitions were granted permission by the board to resubmit their cases. Other decisions included the following refusals:

Herbert H. Williams, Allegheny County, murder second degree; Thomas Nokes, Allegheny, robbery; George Mack, Allegheny, murder second degree; Albert Johnson, Allegheny, larceny, receiving stolen goods, entering; Raymond Bengele, Allegheny, conspiracy to defraud, extortion, and William Taylor, Allegheny, larceny.

D'ROSA BOASTS AS TRIAL OPENS

BRUSSELS, Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Public feeling ran high today as Fernando de Rosa, 22-year-old Italian anti-Fascist, went on trial for his attempt to assassinate Crown Prince Umberto, of Italy.

Dense crowds, threatening in their demeanor, milled about the courthouse as De Rosa was brought from his cell.

The prisoner was calm when he was taken before the bar of justice, and proudly boasted of his act, declaring:

"I take full responsibility for my act, which was an attempt to free the Italian people from tyranny."

De Rosa, a youthful political zealot who was a student at the Sorbonne in Paris, shot at Crown Prince Umberto as the latter was laying a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier here a short time after announcement of his engagement to the former Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, now crown princess of Italy.

Seek Man as Killer After Racket Split

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Police today were seeking Orlando Marano, 21, on a warrant charging him with killing Sylvan Del Rossi, 20, in a street gun battle last night. Marano, police believe, was wounded.

The two men, police charged, were partners in a number of gambling schemes and split after a quarrel three weeks ago. Del Rossi, authorities said, was killed when he attempted to put Orlando "on the spot."

Eucharist Congress Told World Morals Are Low

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Turning from the brilliant Eucharistic mass meeting which last night climaxed the sixth national Eucharistic congress, some 25,000 delegates today prepared to take part in concluding events of this year's Catholic gathering.

A huge parade and meetings for the clergy will close the convention late today.

The mass meeting, most brilliant event of the congress, began last night in Creighton University's amphitheater in the glow of thousands of candles, with the colorful processional and singing of the national anthem.

A nation-wide broadcast was started with the choir's singing "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus."

Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, giving the principal address, said:

"The religious and moral tone of the world has not grown better in this generation.

"One of the leaders of non-Catholic denominations recently said there were 10,000 idle churches in this country. They are but sparsely occupied, he said, and that only once or twice a week.

"One generation ago the majority of the American people were believers.

"But you will point out to me that Catholic churches throughout the land filled Sunday after Sunday from early morning until late afternoon."

Girl, 18, Bags Desperate Criminal Without Aid

SYDNEY, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Jewell Ferguson, 18-year-old daughter of Sgt. Ferguson, a leading Sydney police official, is to be rewarded by the government for making one of the most sensational civilian arrests for many years.

Single-handed she marched a desperate criminal, for whom police had been searching the whole state, to the lockup.

Miss Ferguson arrived home from a dance and, hearing a noise in her father's study, crept down the hall and saw the criminal perusing her father's papers and confidential police records. Without alarming him she reached upward to where some of her father's hunting trophies were hanging and took down a long-handled wild pig dagger.

Jabbing her captive in the back from time to time to prevent him turning round she marched him to the watch house with his hands above his head.

SHRINERS OPEN NEW MOSQUE AT ALTOONA

Thousands March in Parade Featuring Dedication; Pittsburghers Attend

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 25 (AP).—Thousands of Shriners marched in a colorful parade today as the opening feature of the elaborate ceremonies incident to the dedication of the new $1,000,000 Mosque of Jaffa Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

Altoona was in gala attire as the first of the visiting caravan of the city's two special trains arrived carrying Shriners from many and nearby localities.

BUSINESS SESSION HELD

A business session, participated in by the Shriners' officers and Altoona hosts, opened the day's program this morning. Greetings were extended to visiting officers.

The street parade was the early afternoon feature, bodies and organizations from the principal participating temples, Imperial Potentate Esten Aspers Fiedler of Rochester, N. Y., occupied the reviewing position accompanied by members of his staff.

Shriners participating include Syria Temple, Pittsburgh, with 600 members in charge of Potentate Charles H. Landefeld and including Syria band, patrol, chanters, drum corps and organization of honor. Other temples represented were Boumie Temple, Baltimore, led by Potentate Robert A. Studdard; Zembo of Harrisburg, in charge of William G. Fetter, potentate; Ali Ghan, of Cumberland, in charge of Potentate Milton Patterson, and units of Altoona including also a drum corps of Shriners.

TWO-MILE ROUTE

The parade moved over a two-mile route forming at the newly erected temple now nearing the end of 20 years of service, marchers being greeted by an enormous crowd that lined the streets. John C. Sloan was chief marshal.

Arriving at the new mosque, Shriners raised the American flag.

The key to the new mosque was presented to Potentate Fiedler by Mc Graw Moses, Altoona, by Noble A. L. Anderson, chairman of the building committee and the massive doors were thrown open as Nobles moved inside for the dedication.

RAID BREWERY ON NORTH SIDE

Discovery of a wildcat brewery and a quantity of alcoholic beverages was reported by prohibition agents in a raid on a club at 2028 Charles street, North Side, early today.

Breaking down a steel door to gain entrance to the club on the second floor, agents reported seizure of 360 pint bottles of home brew, five gallons of alcohol, 50 one-half pints of gin and 40 one-half pints of whiskey.

In the brewery on the first floor, six 20-gallon crocks of beer mash were alleged to have been found. Occupants of the club officers said escaped over the roof.

While conducting the raid the ignition system was torn from the officers' car parked in front of the building.

Raiding a garage at 929 Kirk drive, seizure of 50 gallons of moonshine was reported. A similar raid on a garage in the rear of 121 South Aiken avenue netted 70 gallons of moonshine and one at a garage in the rear of 108 Doebner was 245 gallons, they said.

1 HELD, 6 FINED FOR 'NUMBERS'

One man was held for court and fines were meted out to six others arraigned before Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side Police Court this morning following two "numbers" lottery raids in the North Side yesterday.

Raymond Hamm, 30, of 1421 Orchlee street, alleged proprietor of a pool room at 1606 Beaver avenue, where police reported they found pool paraphernalia was held for court. Of the seven arrested there, George Rafferty, 23, of 904 Kirkbridge street, and Cecil Clay, 22, of Charles street, were fined $100. William Boyd, 28, of 948 West North avenue; O. M. Pifferman, 40, of Adams street, and Albert Goetz, 30, of 1256 Lake street, were fined $25 and August Pfalzgraf, 35, of Woods Run avenue, and John Yeager, 69, of Juniata street, were discharged owing to lack of evidence.

James Henderson, 28, alleged proprietor of a restaurant at 1322 Federal street, where police said they found evidence of a clearing house pool, was fined $100.

J. C. Lane, 35, of 6367 Luther street, and Nathan Irwin, 28, a Negro, 272 Shady avenue, alleged "numbers" writers, were fined $100 and $25, respectively, by Magistrate Charles Papale in East End Police Court.

They were arrested by City Detectives Robert Burke and James Noon at Station street and Frankstown avenue.

6 Relatives to Get Estate of $23,000

Charles R. Brooks, 204 South Aiken avenue, disposed of a $23,000 estate in his will, filed for probate today. Small bequests are made to three brothers and a nephew, and the balance goes to a sister, Mrs. Minnie C. Hughes, and a niece, Miss Beulah R. Brooks, who are executors.

School Hard Guy's Dog Bites 6 to Hold Title

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 25 (INS).—Classmates defied 10-year-old James Cleveland's claim to the school's toughest title and six of them are suffering from dog bites as a result.

Refusing even to fix their tattered clothes, the fifth grade classroom yesterday leading his dog. He shouted:

"I'm the toughest kid in town. I'll bet my dog can lick your dog."

The ring observed with keen interest. The students scrambled for safety, but six were bitten. One girl so severely she was taken to a hospital.

SIX WIVES AWAIT MAIL ROMEO

DETROIT, Sept. 25.—John G. Wesley, 52, who followed the footsteps of his father in direct mail [illegible] according to federal officials, was to be returned to [illegible] probably to face trial on a charge of bigamy. Six women, who allege he is their husband.

Wesley attempted to avoid the Pittsburgh trip appearing before federal Judge Edward J. Moinet on a writ of habeas corpus.

One complainant is Mrs. James A. Carroll of Pittsburgh. She charges Wesley wooed her by mail won her heart with his ardent letters and then departed taking with him $10,000 in bonds, $1,500 proceeds from the sale of her furniture, her wedding ring, her clothing and her young son, it is charged.

Wesley was captured by federal officers who learned his father was a prisoner in Jackson prison. Papa Wesley was sent to jail when it was learned he had 18 wives. The officers waited in Jackson until the son arrived and then captured him at the prison gates.

MERGER TRIAL ENDS IN CLASH

YOUNGSTOWN, Sept. 25 (INS).—In a flare of verbal pyrotechnics of the three-cornered variety, the three-month-old battle of the giants in steel, the Bethlehem Steel - Youngstown Sheet and Tube merger trial came to a close here yesterday.

The trial began on the morning of June 25 and the defense rested late yesterday. It was the fifty-fifth court day since the trial opened.

Court adjourned with a recess to permit the lawyers to prepare briefs. The attorneys are expected to return October 20 for arguments following which Judge David G. Jenkins presiding is expected to take several weeks to premeditate his decision.

Frederick Wood, chief counsel for Bethlehem, Luther Day, leader of the Cyrus Eaton legal army, and Sterling Newell, commander of the battery of legal counsel for Ernst & Ernst, accounting firm, took part in the final clash over accounting information.

HELD IN KILLING 47 YEARS AGO

GUNTERSVILLE, Ala., Sept. 25 (AP).—After 47 years of freedom, James Neely, 70, was back home today to face trial on a charge of murder for the death of Hiram Cooley during a hand-to-hand battle along Georgia Mountain near here in 1883.

Neely was placed in the county jail following his transfer from Tyler, Tex., where he was arrested last week at the instigation of Cooley's son. The aged prisoner said:

"I am glad to be back. I was coming back anyway, even if they hadn't caught me."

Neely indicted with his brother, Tom Neely, said he would enter a plea of not guilty when placed on trial. Tom Neely died more than 30 years ago.

BOY, 9, KILLED BY TRUCK

Howard Apsill, 9, was killed while playing in front of his home, Twenty-third street, Sharpsburg, when he was struck by a truck driven by Sam Tandy of Tenth street, Sharpsburg.

Tandy told police the boy ran into the truck's path.

Film Writer Seized In Traffic Bribe

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 25 (INS).—Courtney Terrett, 27, writer for the films, today was free under $1,000 bail on charges of attempting to bribe two traffic policemen following his arrest on a traffic violation charge.

OAKLAND, CAL., SENDS HEARST INVITATION

Pacific Coast City Joins East and Midwest in Desire To Honor Publisher

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 25.—Mayor John L. Davie and the commissioners of the City of Oakland have issued a formal invitation to William Randolph Hearst to visit their city as an official guest.

The City Council unanimously adopted a resolution congratulating the publisher upon his sturdy Americanism and expressing the desire to join with New York, Boston and Chicago in greeting him.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas William Randolph Hearst, noted publisher and public benefactor, has just returned from Europe and whereas other cities of our country have already paid homage to the Americanism of William Randolph Hearst and have recognized the great public services he has rendered his country, and

"Whereas William Randolph Hearst is an outstanding figure in the publishing world and the people of Oakland have enjoyed the benefits of his efforts, and

"Whereas William Randolph Hearst is a native Californian and has done much together with his late mother, Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, to develop the resources of the state, to build the state university and to improve the cities in which he publishes papers.

PRAISE AMERICANISM

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, That the city council do and it hereby does invite William Randolph Hearst to visit the city of Oakland and be the guest of the mayor and the commissioners of the city that we may join in congratulating him on his Americanism."

Mayor Davie made this statement after the resolution was passed:

"William Randolph Hearst is a native Californian. California should join with other parts of the country in paying tribute to his unfailing Americanism, and I sincerely hope that Mr. Hearst will be able to be our guest.

"His stand on things American is always one of which we may be proud. He will not be bulldozed or flattered into conceding to other countries points of international dispute which he feels would injure America. Through his fearless and enterprising journalism he has saved many so-called American diplomats from making serious blunders.

LEAGUE FIGHT APPROVED

"He has courageously fought the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations, either openly or through the many rear doors provided by European powers who want the use of American prestige and American money.

"We, of Oakland and California, are even more in his debt than other communities. His beloved mother, Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, and himself have given millions of dollars to the University of California, providing higher education for our children.

"His activity in the Boulder dam project, which will benefit all of the state and particularly Southern California, will not soon be forgotten by those of us who have followed his fight for that great water and power project.

PATRIOTISM LAUDED

"It will be a privilege for the City of Oakland to join with other cities of the country in honoring this great American."

Commissioner Frank C. Gol[illegible]bourn added this tribute:

"The people of America owe much to William Randolph Hearst. More than ever we are realizing it now. New York, Boston and now Chicago are paying him tribute. I am glad to join with my colleagues in the City Council in extending an invitation to Mr. Hearst to be our guest that Oakland, one of the leading cities on the Pacific Coast, may join with the Atlantic Coast and the Midwest in paying tribute to this great publisher, this man who puts his country first at all times."

Identity of Injured Woman Mystery

FROSTBURG, Md., Sept. 25 (AP).—An unidentified woman about 30 years old was brought to the hospital here last night from near Keyser Ridge, where she is believed to either have fallen from an automobile or been hit by a machine passing along the highway.

Hospital attaches said she was not seriously injured, but that they had been unable to learn her name or address because she was unable to speak English well enough for them to understand her. She is thought to be a native of either Switzerland or Germany.

SOLDIER FIELD TO BE SITE OF HEARST FETE

Chicago Wild Over Chance to Honor Publisher; 40 Bands To Join Monster Parade

BY JOHN W. DIENHART.
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—All records of public demonstrations in Chicago promise to be broken by the reception to be tendered William Randolph Hearst by the city and county. The event has been tentatively scheduled for October 17.

The South Park Board of Commissioners threw its support to the movement today. It joined with the City Council and the Board of County Commissioners in inviting the publisher here and then tendered the use of Soldier Field for the event.

Mayor Thompson, on behalf of the reception committee and in accordance with the authority voted him by the Council and President A. J. Cermak of the County Board, accepted the offer.

Although the stadium is the largest in the country, the Mayor said the desire to pay Mr. Hearst tribute is so genuine and widespread he is convinced it will not be too large.

HUGE CROWD PREDICTED

In a telegram to the publisher he wired in part:

"After 48 hours' work and the remarkable favorable response by Chicago's citizens for your reception, I feel that I may increase my estimate that there will be 4,000 automobiles in the afternoon parade, accompanied by 40 bands, with 150,000 people in the stadium to greet you after a tour of our boulevards, and 10,000 people at the banquets in several hotels.

"May I presume that you might best place yourself in my hands upon arrival and permit me to assign you to some hotel of my selection, because the proprietors are already quarreling as to who should have the honor to entertain you and your party."

Earlier in the day the Mayor wired the official invitation to Mr. Hearst.

SENDS INVITATION

He said:

"In accordance with a resolution passed by the City Council at a special meeting held on Monday, September 22, 1930, which resolution I have duly approved as mayor, it becomes my privilege and honor to transmit to you an invitation to be the official guest of the City of Chicago in the near future.

"The great services rendered by you to the American people and the high value of your citizenship have long been recognized and appreciated by the splendid people of the City of Chicago.

"The recent affront shown to you by the French government has been deeply resented by our people, and accepted by us as an act of disrespect not only to your own fine qualities of Americanism, but to the citizenship and patriotism of our great country.

RECALLS AFFRONT

"The circumstances under which you, as an American citizen, were requested by the French government to depart from France reflect great honor upon your Americanism and devotion to your country's interests, and constitute a fine tribute to the value of the signal service rendered by you to the American people."

In view of the fact that it is to be a civic event, Mayor Thompson placed on the reception committee all of the public officials of the city, park boards, county and state Republicans and Democrats. An imposing citizenry also was being named.

Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling wired immediate acceptance from his home in Rockford. His message said:

"Accept with pleasure your invitation to participate in Chicago's welcome to Mr. Hearst."

PARADE PLANNED

Tentative arrangements call for a monster parade to precede the stadium reception to Mr. Hearst. Louis Golan, marshal of past parades, said after half a day's conference with patriotic and other organization leaders that he expects the line will exceed by far the number of cars which participated in other public demonstrations here.

James Petrillo, head of the local Musicians Union, agreed to organize 40 bands of at least 800 pieces. Upon completion of the parade and its entry into the stadium, the bands will merge to lead the assembled throng in singing the national anthem. Formal tribute then will be paid Mr. Hearst.

The South Park Board offered to provide a reviewing stand in Michigan avenue, between the Art Institute and Monroe street, to accommodate the community's guest and distinguished visitors.

Because of the large number of persons who already have inquired about seats at the banquet, the committee indicated it may be necessary to hold several banquets simultaneously. Mr. Hearst would be asked to dine at one, but to appear before all.

DISAPPROVE ACTION

State Representative Thomas O'Grady, a Democrat, advised the mayor yesterday that the French settlement in his district is resentful at the action taken by the French government toward Mr. Hearst. He added:

"They feel it would be just as improper and unwarranted for the American government to expel from the American shores a Frenchman who had protected the interests of his nation as it was for the French government to expel Mr. Hearst for having exposed the Anglo-French naval treaty."

Science Adds 10 Years Life To Every 1930 Baby

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP).—To every child born in 1930 medical science, in the old fairy tale role of god-father says:

"You may logically expect to have 10 years more of living than the 1910 baby."

Expectation of life at birth has been increased from 48 to 58 years in the last two decades.

The public health service pronounced these the principal disease-control triumphs of the 20 years, chief factors in the longer life span:

No child need now die of small pox or diphtheria, among the most deadly scourges of the past.

Scarlet fever has become so mild health authorities seldom recommend wholesale immunization.

If one child in a family has contracted measles, it is now often possible to protect the remaining children by administration of immune serum.

Typhoid fever is well guarded against in most American cities by sanitary control of water and milk supplies.

Children bitten by mad dogs can be saved by the Pasteur treatment.

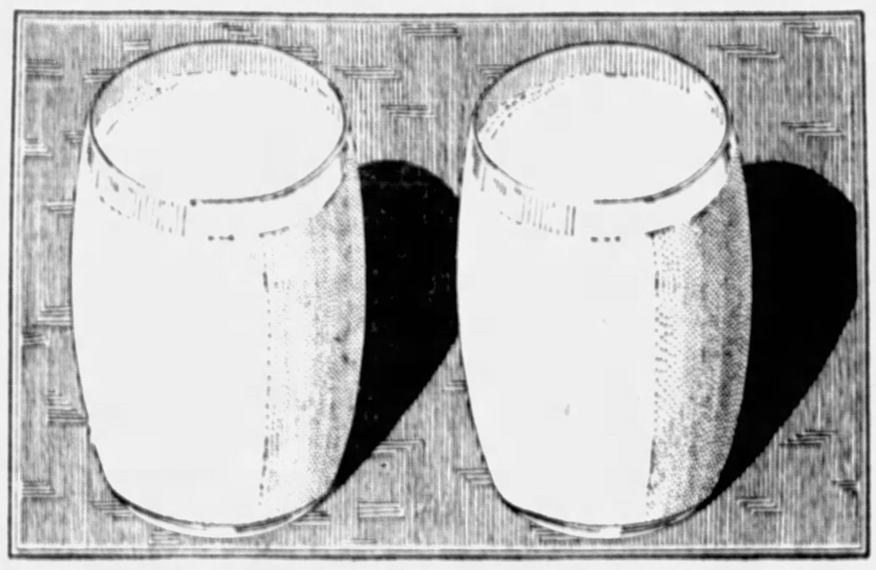
Two Glasses of Cream

—from two different batches of cream, ready to be churned into butter

Both look alike

and—thanks to the wonders of Science—

Both taste almost alike but



Number 1 Number 2

—which would YOU rather drink?

READ—and decide

No. 1—is separated from the whole fresh milk as it is received early every morning at an immaculate, modern, sanitary spic-and-span creamery—it has all the pristine freshness and delicate flavor of the ideal rich, sweet cream.

No. 2—is separated from the milk, on the farm, by the farm hand separator method—after the farmer has accumulated sufficient cream it is shipped either to a cream-buying station or to a creamery.

Arriving at the creamery, the various delays and unfavorable conditions, to which the cream has been subjected, has brought it to such a point of high acidity, or excessive sourness, that it cannot be churned into butter fit for the table use, until it has been treated with a "neutralizing" process.

"Neutralization" of cream, for buttermaking, means the reduction of the acid in sour cream, or, in other words, the use of a chemical alkali in the sour cream which makes the sour cream turn sweet.

A variety of neutralizers is used for the purpose of reducing the acidity in sour cream, intended for buttermaking, and all such neutralizers must have alkaline properties; they all belong to one of two basic classes of alkalies; namely lime and magnesium neutralizers, or soda neutralizers.

The most common neutralizers being used for this class of cream are the carbonates of sodium (soda ash) of calcium (chalk), and of magnesium, the bicarbonate of soda (baking soda), the hydrate of soda (soda lye) the hydrate of calcium (lime water and milk of lime), and the oxide of calcium (quick lime) and of magnesium, and mixtures thereof, (magnesia lime).

If scientifically and efficiently done, "neutralization" does not affect the wholesomeness of butter but great as is our respect for Science, who, knowingly, wants to eat a butter made from old sour cream made edible and fit for the table only by the wonders of science—especially so, when Donahoe's Whole Milk Separator Cream Butter is available who wants a chemical imitation when you can get the real thing.

UNIFORM LOAN LAW URGED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Enactment of a uniform loan law "to afford relief from the evils of unconscionable money-lending," was urged by A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, in an address before the American Association of Personal Finance Companies, in convention here. Whitney declared his organization stood back of such a proposal.

Expressing regret at lack of sympathy extended the President "in his efforts to preserve national morale in the face of business discouragement and to relieve along broad lines the economic distress of our people," Whitney then turned to social responsibility of business men and bankers, saying:

"Sometimes I am persuaded that those of us more closely associated with the operations of productive industry have broader and more human social viewpoints than those engaged in the more complicated and remote operations of modern business."

FUGITIVE, ONCE SENATOR, TAKEN

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—A Trenton, N. J. detective on a vacation here recognized and arrested in the business section a former New Jersey state senator sought throughout the country for nearly eight years as an embezzler.

Worn and exhausted, according to his own statement, by years of wandering, former Senator James Hammond, indicted on five counts for obtaining money under false pretenses, is in a jail cell here, awaiting extradition to New Jersey.

Detective Sergeant Clarence R. Briest was his captor. Riding in an automobile, Briest saw Hammond among hundreds of others walking along the street. He stopped his car and began talking to him. Hammond admitted his identity and his arrest followed.

Hammond said the $25 he had on his person constituted his all. It had been estimated he misappropriated approximately $60,000 from a building and loan institution and from clients.

STEWED FRESH FRUIT SHOULD BE IN DIET THE YEAR 'ROUND

It is a Pleasing Change From Raw Fruit and Often More Wholesome

It is often the tendency to overindulge in raw fruit. In many cases an upset digestive system can be traced to raw fruit.

However, when the fruit is stewed and sweetened to taste with pure cane sugar, there is less danger of digestive disorders. As far as taste-appeal is concerned, stewed peaches, apples, berries, plums and pears are most enjoyable when chilled and served for dessert.

In view of the fact that pure cane sugar is now at the lowest price it has been in a generation, and since fruit is still abundant, the value of storing away preserves of all kinds for winter use should not be overlooked. Not only is home-canning profitable, but grocers everywhere are offering worth-while bargains in preserved fruits, jellies and jams.

Pickles and relishes made of cucumbers, green tomatoes and cabbage are also economical to preserve. Their spicy, tart-sweet goodness encourages the consumption of essential foods such as meat, fish and vegetables. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

NATIONAL PIKE PAGEANT AT WASHINGTON

Reopening of Rebuilt Road Stretch From Claysville Moves Big Celebration

By CHARLES EARLEY
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON Pa., Sept. 25.—A page from Western Pennsylvania's early history was turned back here today with a historical pageant and parade to celebrate the reopening of the new stretch of National Pike between Claysville and Washington, and the redecoration of the Main Street of America."

Seventy-two floats depicting outstanding historical incidents in the nation's history from the days of the Conestoga wagons to the inception of the automobile were in the line of march.

BANQUET TONIGHT

Starting at Claysville 10 miles west of here, the procession passed over the newly-completed road, through Washington, where a reviewing stand had been erected in front of the Court House, and on to Brownsville from which point the procession returned here.

Tonight a banquet is to be held in the George Washington Hotel. From 9 until 10 o'clock tonight the banquet will be broadcast by radio over KDKA. Congressman Henry A. Cooper, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, will deliver the principal address.

GOVERNORS DETAINED

Representatives of Governor S. Fisher of Pennsylvania and Gov. William G. Conley of West Virginia were delayed in their arrival as an emissary from Governor Cooper of Ohio, who was to speak tonight. The governors were to be present at the banquet on business details.

Fourteen state highway patrolmen, under personal command of Lieut. A. J. Oldham, headed the parade.

As an added attraction, Washington High School will play Burgettstown High at College Field here instead of tomorrow as was originally planned.

The affair today, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and allied organizations, is known as "Pennsylvania Day on the National Highway."

PLANES START TOUR OCT. 14

Raymond M. Marlier, chairman of the aeronautics committee of the Chamber of Commerce, last night announced the program for the Chamber's good-will air tour, designed to advertise Pittsburgh and focus attention of the aviation industry here.

The tour will leave Bettis Field at 9:30 a. m. October 14 and will make stops at Cleveland, Syracuse, Albany, New York, Philadelphia and Harrisburg. Planes used in the tour will be provided by Pittsburgh concerns. Until reservations are closed it will not be known how many will be used.

At each city visited special receptions will be held in honor of the visitors by commerce bodies.

Points Out Still Owner, Freed in Rum Case

Acquitted by direction of the court, when the alleged real owner of a whisky still sat in court and witnessed his trial, was the unique experience of Henry Etmon, 2502 Glenmayr avenue, today.

Etmon had been arrested on charges of violating the Snyder act when raiders found a still in his house. Etmon denied ownership and said another family resided in the same building. Asked to describe the other tenant Etmon pointed to a spectator in the courtroom and said:

"That's the man."

William Chambers, the man pointed out, admitted he owned the still outfit.

Judge W. H. McNaugher ordered the acquittal of Etmon, after E. P. Adair, assistant district attorney, asked withdrawal of the charge. The jury did not leave the box.

Judge McNaugher ordered Constable J. H. Funk to make information against Chambers on a liquor charge. Bail was fixed by Alderman T. A. Flanagan. Chambers was unable to furnish bond and was remanded to jail for a hearing tomorrow.

Tipstaff Awarded Cane of Late Judge Cohen

Tipstaff John M. Titz today is the proud possessor of a silver and ivory handled cane and a seal ring once the property of the late Judge Josiah Cohen.

Mrs. Cohen presented the mementoes to Titz in appreciation of his engrossing the resolutions on the jurist's death sent to his widow in behalf of the district attorney's office and court attaches. Titz is regarded as the best pantsman in the Courthouse.

DAMAGE AWARD EXCEEDS LIMIT

A motion to reduce the amount of the verdict or application for a new trial was expected in Judge David M. Miller's branch of County Court following action of a jury in returning a finding of $8,450 damages when the largest finding allowable in County Court is $1,500.

The award was made to Edward Pinif of Baldwin Township, for automobile accident injuries in his suit against Joseph K. Atkins, head of the South Side Coal Company, whose truck had collided with Pinif's automobile at Carson and Twenty-second streets, December 30, 1929. Pinif in his suit asked for $450 for damages to his car and $1,000 to compensate for his personal injuries, thus keeping within the $1,500 County Court limit, but this was disregarded by the jury. They awarded $450 for the auto and $8,000 for the injuries. The amount was carefully written on the verdict. Judge Miller said he would await a motion by the attorneys to-day, then set aside the verdict, thereby granting a new trial.

DRIVE PLANNED BY CRUSADERS

[illegible] a meeting at which [illegible] for a membership [illegible] Patterson, executive committeeman of the Crusaders, Ward 3, announced plans would be laid immediately for participation in the National Crusaders campaign from October 15 to October 22. Concerning political activities he said:

"The platform of the Liberal Party will be supported by the Crusaders in the fall election. This platform is pledged to the repeal of the Snyder and Volstead acts and the Eighteenth Amendment. This can be accomplished in an orderly manner through organization. John M. Hemphill is the candidate of the Liberal party for governor, and will receive the Crusaders' support."

Former State Senator Wilson S. McClintock will head the executive committee for the drive. Attorney C. A. Facan, Jr., finance committee and F. D. Mason, publicity committee.

PARK SPEEDING PROSECUTIONS

District Attorney Andrew T. Park and his staff are making what is believed record speed in presenting cases to the grand jury and trying defendants in Criminal Court.

Until today 1,137 cases have been presented to the grand jury this month. Of these 845 resulted in true bills being returned, 292 bills were ignored. Of indictments found, 232 have been disposed of in court and 400 more are listed for trial next week. Fifty-three cases were on trial today.

Want to Curtail Trains in Fayette

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad filed an application with the Public Service Commission seeking authority to discontinue trains Nos. 193 and 194, operating between Hawks Nest and Ansted, Fayette County, claiming the trains were operated at a loss. A hearing date will be set later.

De Mille Breaks Ankle Aboard Yacht

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—(NEA)—Cecil B. DeMille, motion picture producer, has been suffering with a broken ankle since last Sunday, it was admitted at his home. DeMille received his injury on a sailing trip to Catalina Island when he attempted to step from his yacht, the "Seaward," to a dory.

PITTSBURGHERS FLY TO MEET

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 25.—(Universal.)—A part of the Pittsburgh delegation for the annual convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters now being held here arrived on a specially chartered plane. The delegation was headed by Jay Holmes, manager of the Pittsburgh office of the Travelers Insurance Company and vice president of the Pittsburgh Association of Life Underwriters. The party included F. Howard, of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, F. L. Andrews, Lee Himingway, Pittsburgh Life Insurance men, and Homer Andrews, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Life Association.

The high spot of yesterday's session was a meeting of the Million Dollar Round Table Club. This club is composed of life insurance representatives throughout the United States who have sold a million dollars or more of life insurance for one year. William M. Duff, president of the Edward A. Woods agency of Pittsburgh, was present together with five of his associates who qualified for the Million Dollar Club.

The Pittsburgh representation was the largest present at the gathering. The 1931 convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters will be held in Pittsburgh.

MILLIONS SPENT BY RAILROADS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 25.—(INS.)—The nation's railroads spent $468,305,000 for new equipment and additions and betterments to railway property during the first six months of this year, R. H. Aishton, chairman of the executive committee of the Association of Railway Executives declared in a report to the advisory committee of the organization.

Captial expenditures made during the first half of the year were an increase of $118,000,000 over those for the same period last year and show the extent to which the railroads through purchase of new equipment and improvements to properties have co-operated this year with President Hoover in maintaining employment and business progress, Aishton said.

In the first six months of this year the railroads [illegible] 20,000 freight cars and [illegible],000 passenger cars. The number of locomotives installed was 411.

URGE TRAFFIC RECIPROCITY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—A resolution calling for reciprocity between states in interstate vehicular traffic was adopted by the Middle Atlantic states regional conference on automobile and airplane transportation.

The resolution was opposed by S. B. Magee of Elizabeth, N. J., who said New Jersey was entitled to some form of tax from heavy buses and transport motor vehicles in heavy traffic such as between Philadelphia and New York and Baltimore and New York.

Benjamin G. Eynon, commissioner of motor vehicles for Pennsylvania, pointed out that trucks which drive through New Jersey buy gasoline there and contribute through the gasoline tax to the upkeep of the highways.

The resolution urged all states in the Middle Atlantic region to take action allowing motorists of other states to use their highways freely without a separate license.

ALLIED BOARDS URGE PROJECTS

Immediate action in the erection of a Town Hall, indorsement of big building, playground and highway projects to relieve unemployment, and the election of officers and directors were outstanding events at the annual meeting of the Allied Boards of Trade in the Congress of Clubs last night.

West View Board of Trade presented a resolution calling for the reconstruction and straightening of the Perry highway from the Pines, through Pine Hollow, to the north summit of Pine Hill, a distance of four miles, at a cost of $500,000.

Directors re-elected were C. V. Shoup, George B. Snyder and William B. Hodby. The directors then voted for officers, with this result: Harry Barstow, re-elected president; William G. Negley, first vice president; Mr. Snyder, second vice president; Mr. Hodby, treasurer, and Mr. Shoup, secretary.

Brothers, Mistaken For Squirrels, Shot

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Sept. 25.—Mistaking Alfred Hilton, 22, and his brother, Robert, 9, for squirrels, Bailey Reese, Roswell, fired his shotgun as the brothers were hulling walnuts at the edge of a woods on the Hilton farm, seven miles east of here, and inflicted six wounds in Robert's head, shoulder and leg, and wounded Alfred in five places.

Holdup Man Shoots Victim, Escapes

ASHTABULA, O., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Charles Holdley, manager of the local branch of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was shot in the stomach and seriously wounded today by a holdup man. The robber shot Holdley as he sat in a chair at his desk and then escaped after taking a small amount of money.

CARBONA
POWDER
REMOVES GREASE SPOTS WITHOUT LEAVING A "RING"
Most silks are now "weighted" or "loaded" with foreign substances to make them appear of better quality. Liquid cleaners dissolve this "weighting" or "loading," and this causes "rings" on Silks. We have therefore created Carbona Grease Absorbent Powder for use on Silks only. This Powder will not affect "weighting" or "loading" in any way—it absorbs Grease Spots instead of dissolving them, and no "rings" can result from its use on Silks.
For all other Fabrics use Carbona Cleaning Fluid

Introducing
UNCLE MATT

Here's the Star of "REAL FOLKS"

GEORGE FRAME BROWN is nationally—even internationally—known for his interpretation of Uncle Matt Thompkins, Mayor of Thompkins Corners, and leading character in the "Real Folks" radio program. You've heard him, of course, in the sketches which are broadcast every Monday night at 9:30 over station WJZ or KDKA.

Now "Uncle Matt" wants to tell you something about "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly. He finds it useful in so many ways, he says, that he doesn't see how any one can get along without a jar of it in the medicine chest.

"We men don't like to have chapped, dry skin, but we don't like a heavily scented lotion, either. 'Vaseline' Jelly has no perfume, and is just great to heal rough skin, to soften callouses on hands or feet, and it gives the smoothest, easiest shave you ever knew! For shaving, simply spread a little Jelly over the beard before lathering. Then proceed as usual. No razor pull, and you'll find your face feels absolutely comfortable—the Jelly prevents that smarting, drawn sensation."

NATIONAL HOME FURNISHINGS STYLE SHOW in your community September 26th thru October 4th
First Furnish Your Home

National Home Furnishing STYLE SHOW

THE period from September 26 to October 4 has been set aside throughout the country for presenting the newest Fall Fashions in furniture, floor coverings and other furnishings for the home, and for the discussion of home decorating problems. Horne's, one of the sponsors of this nation-wide event, joins in it with enthusiasm, heartily endorsing its purpose—the arousing of public thought on the subject of the home, its fashion significance and the important part it plays in our lives.

This is a week of visiting. We want you to come and look around, to see the new ideas in furniture, rugs, lamps and draperies. View the varied beauties of modern decorative arts as expressed in the new china, glassware, linens and bed coverings. Visit the picture and mirror department in its new home (fourth floor). See the new developments and inventions in housewares, kitchen and laundry utensils. You'll find interesting, fascinating new things at every turn. We hope you'll come often.

Picture Clocks

A decorative type of imported clock for desk or boudoir . . . a charming scene with a dial over it, and the whole encased with a bronze-finished frame. The scenes are varied, some are farm pictures, some windmills, some boating scenes . . . and just a few of each design in the selection. The clocks are good timekeepers, too. $4.95.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

Costume Belts

In New Fall Shades

For this season of the definitely indicated waistline . . . a costume belt is one certain means of assuring the smartness of your frock—jacket—coat!

Belts of suede, kid, metal, patent leather in colors, simulated alligator . . . come in all the fall shades, including, of course, the fashionable wines, greens, browns, and blues. 50c to $3.95.

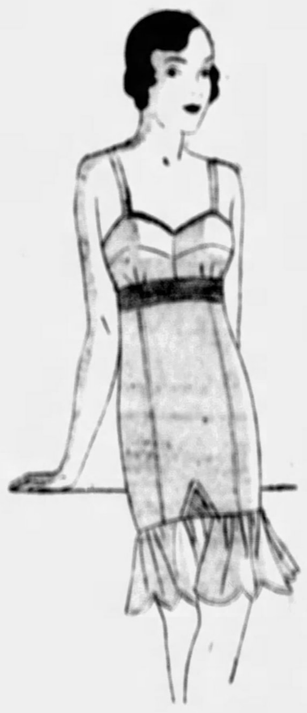
. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

Buttons Are Smart!

Another fashion revival . . . buttons for trimming every frock and coat—for sports, travel, daytime, and evening—colored buttons, matching buttons in various sizes on the same frock, rhinestone effects for evening! And if you choose buttons with matching buckles, you're smart to the tiniest detail!

These button-and-buckle ensembles may be chosen in so many varieties . . . silver, gold, galalith, prystal, crystal, filigree, rhinestone, ivory, bone, jet, celluloid . . . in every fashionable color for fall and winter wear.

. . . Horne's, Trimmings Section, Main Floor . . .



Youth Wears the

Soutenir

A foundation garment that actually molds the figure . . . gives all the restraint a youthful figure needs . . . and yet it feels, and looks, like a bit of lingerie.

All this because the Soutenir is made of firm silk jersey, designed so intricately that we can't tell exactly how it replaces a foundation garment . . . but it does.

The Soutenir is shown in many models; one-piece bandeau-girdle combination, some with pantie; and some with lace-trimmed pantie and bandeau of lace.

Priced $3.95 to $10.00.

. . . Horne's, Second Floor . . .

One of the Finest Qualities Obtainable in Canton Crepe

$1.65 Yard

Inexpensive silks are easy to find just now . . . but silks with the "hand" and the texture of this heavy canton crepe . . . silks as fashionable in weight and color are usually priced much higher. This canton crepe was just recently purchased at a great price concession . . . and offered opportunely just when a new fall dress of canton is most needed.

You can choose from more than thirty colors . . . the rich browns, the ruby and wine tones, the various blues, and the deeper tones of green . . . as well as the chic black and white.

. . . Horne's, Main Floor . . .

10 Models in Agnes Knitted Hats, $10

How this fashion has grown!—from a little rag of a turban which Agnes introduced only a few seasons ago, to ten models (of which these are copies), including turbans, berets and cocky little hats. . . . The smart and practical thing to go with tweed suits and sports outfits.

Of knitted fabrics in solid colors and black, and in sheer, tweedy effects that you would never guess were knitted at all.

Reboux' Corduroy Hat

Misses' Fine Frocks

Have Subtlety This Fall

Subtlety—penetrate it if you can, in fashion or in a woman. It can't easily be done, so certain clever creators have employed subtlety of line, this season, to outwit those who would copy their designs down to an uncomplimentary level.

That is how better dresses acquire distinctiveness, this fall, and why our collection of misses' dresses at $39.50 to $75 are worth every cent one pays for them.

. . . Horne's, Second Floor . . .

(Left) A Sunday night frock of dull black crepe, with tucked yoke of nude chiffon, trimmed with petals of self fabric. $55.

(Extreme right) An intricate skirt cut and belt arrangement together with dolman sleeves, give this canton crepe frock its chic. $39.50.

(Right) A street frock of black canton crepe, with its tunic fullness subtly grouped. Collar of white eyelet-embroidered satin. $49.50.

Students to Watch Flights in Glider

Glider flights from Flagstaff Hill, Schenley Park, were to be made today and also tomorrow by R. V. Trader, director of the Pittsburgh School of Aviation. They will be witnessed by students of the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Institute of Technology who are interested in aviation. Trader will make the flights to stimulate interest in flying among the students.

Public Service Commissioner S. Ray Shelby has continued the application of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad to abandon its service between Pittsburgh and Avella. He also continued the hearing on the application of the Penn Bus Lines to operate between the same points, as well as to Canonsburg by way of Bridgeville and Hendersonville and Avella to Federal to Pittsburgh by way of Woodville and Greentree.

DONLEY HEADS KIWANIANS

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Charles Donley, of Pittsburgh, was elected district governor of Kiwanis at the closing session of the Kiwanis Clubs of Pennsylvania convention here. William F. Burgess, of Pittsburgh, was elected district secretary, and Jacob C. Fisher, of Devon, district treasurer.

Lieutenant governors for the various sections of the state were elected as follows:

Allentown was selected as the convention city for 1931.

Woman Wounded, Marksman Held

ALIQUIPPA, Pa., Sept. 25.—Wounded in the chest by a stray bullet fired by Clark Moffet, a neighbor, during target practice, Mrs. James W. McElheny, 40, of New Sheffield, is in the Rochester Hospital in a serious condition. Police reported Moffet was shooting a .44 calibre revolver at a target on the side of his barn. One bullet went through the barn and struck Mrs. McElheny. Moffet is held pending the outcome of her injuries.

Fireworks Plant Blast Kills Man

BELLAIRE, O., Sept. 25.—Hundred of windows were broken in homes in West Bellaire when Dominick Pursetti's fireworks factory blew up last night, killing an employe, James Juliana, 42. Three small structures housing the plant were demolished.

HOME STYLE SHOW

The New Home Furnishing Fashions--What They Are--And What They Mean

THE whole home furnishing world is changing . . . has changed. A thousand influences point to an unprecedented interest in the home this fall and winter. The feminine spirit is in ascendancy. Completely feminine is the costume . . . completely feminine must be the background of our entertaining. In the polished surfaces of mahogany and satinwood one sees reflected the refinement and graciousness of the mode. Candlelight . . . the shimmer of silks and the gleam of lovely shoulders---the revival of everything that the world honors and cherishes as belonging to the home and her who presides over it. All this will be mirrored---beautifully, completely, and authoritatively---in the Housefurnishing Style Show to which

Kaufmann's Invites You

NEVER have the resources of our Home Furnishing Departments been marshalled to such limits, and to so concerted a purpose. On every Home Furnishing floor, and in every Home Furnishing Department you will find inspiration no end, to help you appreciate these new fashions and adapt them to your own needs. Aisles and aisles of ensemble displays welcome you to visit these departments, and to linger long.

ACQUITTED, SUE DRUG CONCERN

James J. Kelton, of Brentwood, filed suit against the Dow Drug Company in Common Pleas Court, seeking to recover $50,000 damages for alleged injury to his reputation by criminal informations he claims were maliciously filed against him.

Kelton alleged that as manager of a drug store operated by the Dow Drug Company at South Thirteenth and Carson streets, he was maliciously charged with embezzlement of $350 and larceny of $18 of wares in August, 1929, through informations made by F. W. McCulloch, general manager of Dow company. He stated he was acquitted of the charges January 22, 1930, by a jury in Criminal Court.

HIGHWAY CELEBRATION FEATURE ON RADIO

The Loudspeaker

On Being Polite
More Pep Needed
Angry Speakers
Popular Sopranos

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Of all the media of communication radio is the most polite. You may cup your ears until palsy steals over you but you seldom catch the accents of discourtesy.

Louis Reid

You seldom hear a voice raised in anger, even the cultivated anger of a faculty meeting when the salary of the football coach is under discussion. As for ripe and rich profanity and Billingsgate, they are as foreign to radio as to the pulpit. Well—almost.

Radio, it seems to me, could stand more wrath, more of the zeal and earnestness that come to men when their passions are aroused. I should like more often to hear a spade called a spade rather than a heart. I should like more often to see a damper put on the deference of the dials. In short, I should like to see Alphonse and Gaston chased away from the microphone. These symbols of overstressed politeness are amusing when they are not idealized. Radio shows evidences of idealizing them.

Operators Seldom Raise Voices in Anger

The very nature of the radio unquestionably is responsible for the tidal wave of courtliness that breaks over the loudspeakers. Orators for the most part—even those long experienced in public debate—approach the microphone with fear and trembling. They would no more dare to trust their voices to extemporaneous remarks than they would date burst into ribald song. They come prepared. They come with speeches brimming over with the niceties of expression.

The average radio speech may be devoid of all semblance of force and vitality, but the good Hoover it will not offend. It will not cause the eye to flash nor the mouth to curl. And there is nothing needed so much in the armchairs as some good concentrated eye-flashing and mouth-curling.

All this is to be regretted. There ought to be a regulation among the rajahs of radio that for the good of broadcasting only 50 per cent of the speeches put on the air are to be read from manuscript. Testimonial banquet speeches, of course, could—and should—be read. Reading might even save them from the hopeless inanity which characterizes most of them at present. Also talks on pie-making, thrift, health, dogs, gardening, love and hog-raising might be read to the benefit of both speaker and ear-cupper.

But when politics come under discussion—and most talks on the air are concerned with some phase of politics—speakers should be warned under threat of silence that they cannot read from script. They might be permitted a few notes, but in the main they would be compelled to rely upon their own resourcefulness in force and invective. Can you imagine the appeal of the divan under such circumstances?

Glass, Reed Talk Out in Meeting

Only once in our experience at the listening post have we heard a political speaker talk right out on the radio as he might talk out in meeting. It was a speech during the Hoover-Smith circus, given by Senator Glass in Richmond, Va. The second was the occasion of the last appearance at the microphone of ex-Senator Reed, of Missouri—before a mysterious SOS cut him off.

Neither speaker was profane. Neither was maudlin. But they were angry. They let loose a display of fireworks that had the air sizzling. They snarled, they poured forth bitter sarcasm, they thundered. They asked unanswerable questions and then proceeded to answer them. My ears rang for two days after hearing them.

The three most popular sopranos heard regularly on the loudspeakers are, according to our operatives, Jessica Dragonette, Olive Palmer and Countess Olga Albani. Miss Dragonette began her career as the Angel who sang behind the formidable clouds of "The Miracle." She came down to earth at a summons from the Shuberts to air the none too easy notes of Kathie in "The Student Prince."

Olive Palmer, heard in only one program a week, also forsook the stage for radio, having been a principal of that notable company while, at the Park Theater in New York made Gilbert and Sullivan pay as they had not paid since burnsides went out of style.

Let's See as Well As Hear Countess

Countess Albani is a real Spaniard who takes American jazz and gives it a Barcelona flavor. She, too, is a product of the theater, who not so long ago had a leading part in "The New Moon." It was a result of her success in that role that she came to the attention of the radio men. Today she is not only featured in many programs, she is also the NBC's principal eyefiller.

COD LIVER OIL IN TABLET FORM BOON TO MOTHERS

Children who Take McCoy's Tablets — Quickly Gain in Weight and Vigor

New York, N. Y.—Child health authorities here are enthusiastic over a recent discovery that makes the health-building properties of cod liver oil available in a new and palatable form.

The McCoy Laboratories have succeeded in concentrating the cod liver oil vitamins A and D in small, tasteless tablets. Children who never before could stand the nasty, fishy taste of cod liver oil now take these little health tablets without fuss or bother. Mothers get them at any drug store, just by asking for a box of McCoy's.

To see for yourself that these easy, pleasant tablets actually contain the magic health properties of cod liver oil, buy a box and bite the first tablet. Your own taste tells you that in these amazing little tablets are all the concentrated health values of cod liver oil.

Give McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets to your children freely. Be faithful and regular. To get the benefits you must keep it up, because cod liver oil is a food, not a drug, and the real health that comes from food comes gradually.

IS YOUR CHILD UNDERWEIGHT?

Age	Boys lbs.	Girls lbs.	Age	Boys lbs.	Girls lbs.
1 yr.	21½	20½	8 yrs.	58	57
2 yrs.	27½	26½	9 yrs.	64	64
3 yrs.	32½	30½	10 yrs.	71	72
4 yrs.	35½	33½	11 yrs.	78	80
5 yrs.	41	39½	12 yrs.	88	90
6 yrs.	46	45	13 yrs.	96	102
7 yrs.	53	50	14 yrs.	113	114

TO KEEP THAT SICKLY CHILD IN SCHOOL
Build up his little body first

Now in quick, easy tablet form comes cod liver oil to build up bodies . . . and no nasty, fishy taste

A NEW way has been discovered to get all the benefits of cod liver oil without that nasty, fishy taste . . . without touching messy spoon or greasy bottle. All the benefits of cod liver oil in these quick tablets!

If you have not yet tried McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets, begin at once to give your child cod liver oil the new easy way.

Now is the time to build up your child's weight and resistance . . . to give him strong bones and teeth . . . to ward off winter colds.

First put up for physicians only, McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets can now be purchased at any drug store. Fully approved by the experts of Good Housekeeping Institute.

So start this new health program now: Two tablets for children after meals and before bed. Three tablets for adults.

Cod liver oil is not a medicine, but a food, so be sure to take McCoy's Tablets regularly, faithfully, until real results come.

Jack Sharkey's setto with Vittorio Campolo at Yankee Stadium is a WJZ highlight at 10 o'clock tonight, taking the place of Victor Herbert opera series.

Were we to count the number of studio folk who have a weakness for "Sweet Mystery of Life," we'd include Fred Rodgers, Dot Harding, Gertrude Mohr, Marcella Deverson, Cousin Lora, Bob Thompson, Jr., as those at the top of the list.

We like to hear anybody sing it who knows how—and this includes the mystery man with Vincent Lopez, said to be the son of John Masefield, poet laureate of England.

A celebration marking the opening of the National Highway, Route 40, through Washington, Pa., is a KDKA feature at 10 o'clock.

We recommend Willard Robison's special arrangement of "Lonesome Road" for KDKA listeners at 9:30.

Vernon Dalhart, who made "The Prisoner's Song," is to do a jail epic, "Eleven More Months, Ten More Days."

Don't pass up Chaminade's "The Flatterer" on WCAE at 9:30.

The cave-woman series we told you about Sunday starts on WJAS at 8:45, with Selena Royle and Webster Van Voorhis up front.

Buzzing sounds and "dead spots" exist in Antarctica as well as in other parts of the world, according to the radio report of Admiral Byrd's Expedition, a copy of which has been received here by J. N. Ewing, salesmanager of Ludwig-Hommel Company.

The colorful display of the aurora australis interposed an impenetrable stone-wall "dead spot" between the Little America radio station and broadcasts from the United States, the report says.

Now we can understand why it was so difficult at times for KDKA's short wave station to pick up Byrd code signals. But conditions near the pole were reversed. Most of the KDKA programs were picked up on a Radiola superheterodyne without much trouble, the report stated.

The one difficulty in "getting out" with radio signals was the whirling snow which blotted out vision and created a snow-static which stopped transmission "dead" within a narrow radius of the explorer's camp.

Because of excess baggage, the receiving set used was left behind with proper notations. The next explorer going into Antarctica for a two year vacation may find something useful for his spare hours if he hits the right place.

Special releases of the Harms Music Company will be played over the radio for the first time at the Pittsburgh Radio Show. Arrangements for this unique feature were made this morning in New York.

Pittsburghers will hear for the first time many hits from Broadway shows in the making.

Auditors hope to have a report on the radio poll for tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph.

"BY THE WAY——"

The second edition of "Rainbow Revels"—radio's elaborate revue with original music never played before publicly . . . will be given over WABC and chain on Wednesday, Oct. first . . . "I've been on the air 'so long,'" says Milton Cross "That I can't even say 'Please pass the butter' at my home without sounding like a radio announcer . . . and didn't we hear on the night football broadcast last week something about a warrior "being held on the one-yard line a foot away from the goal" . . . ? . . . Louis Reid, our New York radio writer, often gets mail intended for Lewis Reid, the announcer at WOR . . .

Sun-Telegraph Pat. Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Small school girls are wearing miniature versions of grown-up favorites this year. This ensemble, consisting of sleeveless bodice, pleated skirt and short jacket, has warmth, practicability and smartness, and is quite inexpensive to make. A bit of the fabric should be used to make a belt.

Pattern 2025 is adorable made of tweed (new) wool crepe or velveteen. Attractive color combinations of brown and tan, green and navy, black and white, may be chosen for service as well as style.

May be obtained only in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 54-inch fabric and 1 1-16 yards of 36-inch blouse fabric.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

TRIBUTES PAID STEVENSON

[illegible] on the death of William H. Stevenson, civic and [illegible] leader who died Monday, were passed yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce and the County Commissioners. The Chamber of Commerce's resolution read in part:

We, whose inestimable privilege it so long was to call him friend, testify our boundless esteem and affection for this associate who wore the white flower of a blameless life and who bereaves not only those nearest and dearest to him, but a great community and a grateful community by his passing."

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern presented a resolution at a meeting of the commissioners. In the resolution Mr. Stevenson is described as an extraordinary citizen, an outstanding leader in civic affairs, an able public servant during his service as a city councilman, possessed of a fine personal character, and humanitarian qualities that will preserve his memory.

"I AM GLAD TO RECOMMEND A REAL MEDICINE"

Konjola the Only Relief After Months of Suffering—Pittsburgh Lady Finds Health.

Do not harbor any doubt about the merit of Konjola. More than seven million bottles of this famous medicine have been sold in less than two years.

MISS ALBERTA C. GIMMES

Konjola is compounded of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of well known medicinal roots and herbs. The Konjola Man at the Dow drug store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, this city, is prepared to tell you about this medicine and asks you to call upon him. He is passing out free samples and literature. Consider the experience of Miss Alberta C. Grimes, 131 Duffland street, Carrick, near Pittsburgh, who recently said to the Konjola Man:

"For four months after I had undergone an operation I was in such ill health that I despaired of relief. I was tired and nervous and frightfully constipated. I did not sleep well at night and never had the right energy to do my work. I tried many medicines and treatments and finally decided to give Konjola a chance.

"I want to say right now that Konjola is the tonic for tired, run-down, nervous people. I have steadily gained in weight, I sleep better, have an excellent appetite and am no longer nervous since I took this great medicine. And Konjola wasted no time in going to work. I was forced to discontinue my work because of illness and I am now ready to resume my former tasks. I am glad to recommend a real medicine like Konjola."

And so it goes. Taken regularly after meals over a six to eight week period, Konjola has done for thousands all that it did for Miss Grimes. Try Konjola for your own case today.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

The Mysterious 3-Z

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Anton Kasper, a small shopkeeper is murdered while on a petting party. A mysterious person, signing himself "3-Z" writes to the newspapers admitting the crime. He tells of a second murder. Mae Kyerson, Kasper's companion, sticks steadfastly to her story of a man with "fish-eyes." Philip Armour is found murdered in a car near the scene of Kasper's death. The scene is a dead-end street. On one side is a farm house, on the other a second short street with three cottages and beyond that the Kings Asylum for the Insane. The girl companion of Armour is found by the police and arrested. Belle Walsh, the girl, tells a story identical to that of Mae Kyerson. The police start an investigation at Kings Asylum. The chief clerk suggests a rollcall with both girls present. Floyd Esper, a paranoia case, escaped six months previous. A third murder is circumvented by the police.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER IV

The speed and thoroughness with which the police worked was amply demonstrated that morning of the 19th. Before noon they had already apprehended the escaped paranoia inmate, Floyd Esper. He was found in Trenton, N. J., after the receipt by the brother of Anton Kasper, the first victim of the mysterious 3-Z, of threatening letters.

They were quickly traced to a rooming house near the railroad station where the arrest of Floyd Esper ensued. The man was brought to New York immediately for identification by the two women in the case.

Mae Kyerson, following Belle Walsh's testimony, was released on bail as a material witness, all other charges against her having been withdrawn. Then both girls were to remain in the seclusion of their homes unless called upon by the police.

Dale was present when they were brought face to face with Floyd Esper at Police Headquarters. Hope that he was the mysterious Z-3 was quickly dispelled when neither girl identified him. In fact, they both admitted that he was not the murderer.

Late that afternoon, after Esper had been returned to Kings Asylum, Robin Dale visited the institution to interview the man with the hope that something might develop from it. However, when he had finished, Dale was fairly well satisfied that Esper knew nothing of the atrocious petter crimes.

Dale stopped in to chat with Ostermann a few moments to learn if anything new had came up in that quarter. Ostermann was willing enough to speak of the case and Dale felt sure he would be overjoyed if it developed that one of the inmates turned up to be the guilty man.

"Tomorrow morning, Capt. Blake comes with the two girls. I have the men all ready. You come too? Good. I have an idea."

"Let's have it, Ostermann—there're few enough ideas so we certainly can do with one."

"Listen, then—while the men are all lined up for the girls to see, you go with me through the rooms and maybe we'll find something."

"Well, that's not bad, Ostermann."

"Good! You don't know sometimes what a relief it is to get some little excitement. It's terrible staying always with these crazy men."

"I guess you'd get a great kick if one of them happened to be Mister 3-Z."

"Wouldn't it be only human? We all like to know famous people—and ain't this Mister 3-Z famous now? With thousands of police looking for him. And maybe I'd get a reward, too—yes?"

Robin Dale went directly home from the asylum. He was surprised to find Capt. Blake waiting for him at his apartment. Blake lit a cigar and Dale smoked his own cigarettes. After a light dinner they made themselves comfortable in Dale's library.

The reporter knew that Capt. Blake had come to discuss the 3-Z case, but he waited until Blake himself opened the subject. Finally it came.

"What do you make of the whole affair, Dale?"

"Well, there seems to be one reason why nobody's getting anywhere with it. Why—why—why? That's what I keep asking myself. Why those murders? There doesn't seem to be any real reason uncovered yet. No motive, captain—why even insane people have a motive of some sort for killing!"

"Then you don't believe in that mysterious document bosh, Dale?"

"Just camouflage, Capt. Blake—camouflage! It's too primitive. Suppose for a moment it was true; do you imagine that out of 14 hypothetical victims one of them would not have courage enough to come and spill everything to the police? If you overlook that possibility you overlook the strongest law of human nature—self-preservation!"

Go a little further. There are supposed to be three documents. Now only three people can have them, which leaves eleven with no assurance that the three holders of the papers are going to give them back. So eleven figure it's an even chance that they'll be killed. So they're not going to fare any worse by tipping off the police than by keeping quiet.

One thing more. How would Mr. 3-Z know which of the fourteen informed the police? He certainly couldn't go around killing all fourteen in one night and by that time, if these people know his identity, he would be caught. So their chances of safety by information are greater than in keeping quiet.

If that secret society hoax wasn't exploded before it is now, Dale," said Blake, with a faint smile.

"Your man is fairly well educated. He reads mainly the cheaper magazines where innumerable of 'dem mysterious papers' ideas will be found. It appealed to his sense of the grotesque and he merely used the idea. But not for that alone. It serves to throw dust in the eyes of his pursuers—drags a red herring across the trail, one might say. It complicates the whole affair and it adds a trace of the spectacular which almost every criminal craves."

"By the way, Dale, have you heard that the police at the Highway station received a letter from 3-Z today? He politely sent them the two empty shells. The letter was written on the stationery of the County Clerk's office."

"More clues, captain. But where do they point? The post-office station from which all the letters were mailed is close by the County Clerk's office, isn't it?"

"Not more than two blocks away. We've had a watch on it, but no one has been picked up."

"What did your investigation of Anton Kasper and Philip Armour uncover?"

"Nothing much on Armour. Clean young fellow, never in any trouble and half a dozen people ready to vouch for him. Kasper is a bit different. Married, but known to be a good husband and father, with his wife sticking by his memory despite his obvious philandering. We found he has $6,000 in an account kept in New York, which seems strange as his small shop wouldn't earn that much in years. Also, about a year ago, he took a trip to Europe about which no one seems to be very familiar. That's about all, so far."

"One of the 3-Z letters spoke about that mysterious account. Well, Captain, there's nothing very strange about it. 3-Z got the dope from the papers he took out of Kasper's pockets, probably had the bank book with him. I don't think there's any question but that Mr. 3-Z got the names and all other data on the murdered men from those papers before he wrote his letters to the Daily Journal."

"That trip to Europe—I'm inclined to believe Kasper was agent for one of those racing pools, which accounts for the money and also for the ticket found in Armour's car. 3-Z dropped it there, probably by accident, having already grabbed onto the symbol on the card for his own mysterious signature."

'WINE' IS WATER; 2 IN ROW FINED

Patsy Grazino, 36, of 563 Lenora street, was fined $100 or 60 days in the workhouse on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, and Michael Ponticere, 23, of 3108 Ellers street, an alleged visitor, was fined $50 or 30 days at a hearing before Magistrate Charles Papale in East End Police Court today.

Arrested after neighbors complained that a fight was in progress at the Lenora street address, Ponticere police reported, said he purchased 15 gallons of what he thought was wine from Grazino and that when he got home he discovered it to be colored water. He returned for settlement. The arrest followed.

FAIL TO SOLVE RAIL TRAGEDY

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25. (INS.)—Investigation of the fatal shooting Tuesday of Maxwell C. Byers and Dudley Gray, president and vice president, respectively, of the Western Maryland Railway Company, was closed today with the removal of the bodies to their respective homes in Columbus, O., and Point Pleasant, W. Va., for burial.

Dr. Otto M. Reinhardt, coroner, said:

"In my opinion, after questioning Mrs. Gray, officials and employes of the company and others, the truth of the shooting never will be known.

"On the face of it I believe Mr. Gray was unbalanced mentally, but what brought that condition about is something else and will remain a mystery.

"I have given my verdict that Mr. Gray murdered Mr. Byers and then committed suicide, and the case is closed."

This statement was preceded by a written announcement by the company, which said the two executives had "frequently differed sharply" on business matters.

TAXI TRIP ENDS IN MURDER

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Business was not so good with taxicab driver Joseph Perrone at Third avenue and Prospect avenue, Brooklyn, last night, and he was just starting to cruise around looking for a fare when two men whistled at him. The men climbed in and one of them ordered him to drive to Barren Island.

At the island the man who gave the directions stopped the car and the two men had not walked more than 10 feet when one pulled out a gun and shot the other several times. The gunman then forced Perrone to strip away the victim's clothes and assist him in throwing the body into Jamaica Bay. The killer—the man who had told where to drive—disappeared in the darkness and the taxicab driver immediately called police.

Siam's King Victim Of Eye Infection

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—The King of Siam was reported suffering from a serious eye infection in a statement issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The King and Queen, it was announced, have arranged to sail for Vancouver aboard the Empress of Japan arriving next April 19. The King, the railroad said, will seek treatment either at Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, or the Royal Victoria Hospital in Victoria, Montreal.

New Trade Board For Mt. Pleasant

Organization of a new trade body, to be known as the Mt. Pleasant Board of Trade, was effected at a meeting of the East Side District of the Twenty-sixth Ward, held in the Church Mission, Summit Hill Terrace, Mt. Washington, last night.

Officers of the new organization are: Albert Knopp, president; M. N. Schuller, secretary, and Edward Barthold, treasurer.

NEW IDEA SAVES SILK HOSE

Did you ever realize that it is the oily excretion of the sebaceous glands and rubbing that keeps you buying silk hose and undergarments so often? This invisible oil film that next-to-the-skin garments absorb is destructive to silks because it softens and rots the fibre. Soap and water alone will not cleanse it out; only a solvent like Energine cuts it.

Add a tablespoonful of Energine to a quart of lukewarm soapy water. Wash thoroughly, rinse well. Note the new cleanliness—the pleasing freshness—see how well the original color is revived. And all this with far less rubbing. You'll be amazed at difference in results from washing in just soap and water, and your silken hose and undergarments will last much longer.

And don't forget that millions use Energine daily for quick removal of dirt and grease spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 35c. Get Energine today.

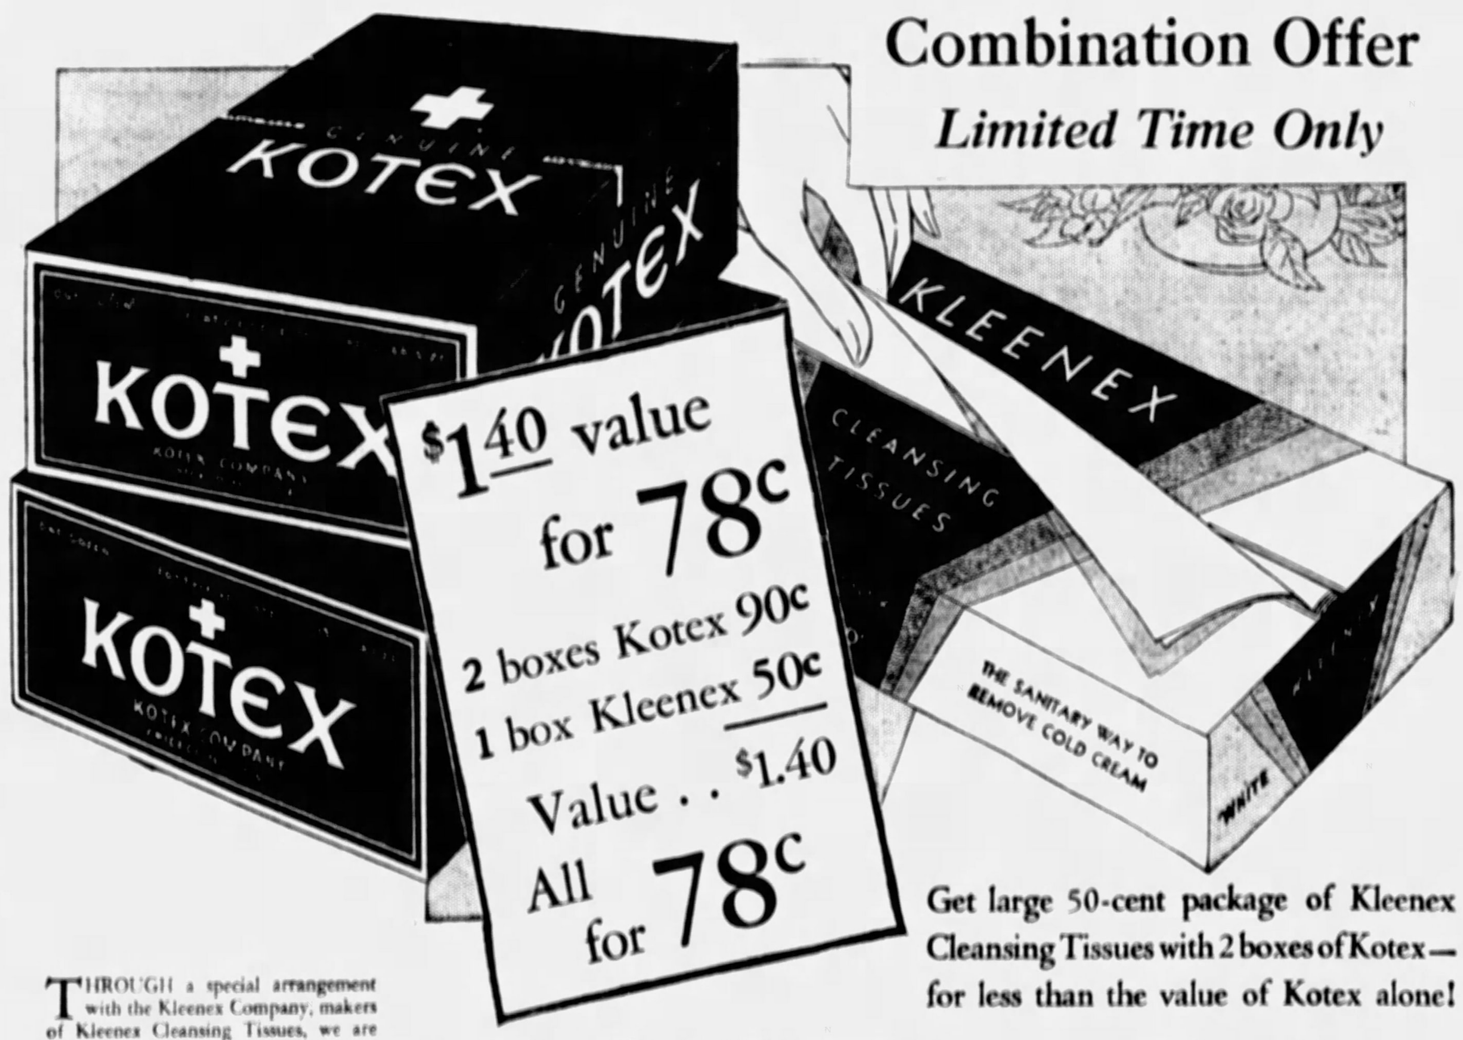
Combination Offer

Limited Time Only



Get large 50-cent package of Kleenex Cleansing Tissues with 2 boxes of Kotex—for less than the value of Kotex alone!

THROUGH a special arrangement with the Kleenex Company, makers of Kleenex Cleansing Tissues, we are able to make the most unique offer in our history. You can buy for a few days only two 45-cent boxes of Kotex with one 50-cent box of Kleenex—value $1.40—all for 78 cents!

Go to your dealer's today. Don't delay. Dealers' stocks are limited and will not last long. This offer is made, not only to give the millions of Kotex users a remarkable Kotex value—but to enable women everywhere who may not be users of Kleenex Cleansing Tissues to try, without expense, this important toilet accessory.

Once women do try it, the Kleenex Company has found, an overwhelming majority will accept no other way to remove cold cream. Kleenex Cleansing Tissues are used and recommended by many important stage and screen stars, and leading beauty shops everywhere.

Kotex—more than a "sanitary" pad

Kotex is utterly different from all other sanitary pads. There is no other "like" Kotex.

Kotex is the only sanitary pad filled with Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding.

Thus Kotex has the amazing power of absorbing 16 times its weight in moisture. That's 5 times more, by actual test, than surgical cotton. Think what this means in protection! Think of the ease of mind during busy days to feel sure of your sanitary protection.

Quickly, easily disposable

You use Kotex, then dispose of it . . . simply and quickly. No laundry problem. No disposal worries. Think of the relief in that feature alone.

Modern women appreciate these advantages of Kotex: It is shaped to fit under sheerest, tight-fitting or filmy frocks; it deodorizes thoroughly and absolutely. Keeps one dainty at all times. Banishes a one-time worry completely.

85% of hospitals use Kotex absorbent

Here's final, medical proof of Kotex' superiority: 85% of the country's leading hospitals use the identical material of which Kotex is made. They've tried everything. They consider Kotex best. They use it, not only for sanitary pads, but for the most serious surgical operations.

Accept this offer

Go today to any store in this city where Kotex is sold and take advantage of this opportunity. But do not delay. All dealers' stocks are limited. If you come late you cannot be supplied.

You must act at once—

Dealer's stock strictly limited!

Because of the extremely liberal nature of this offer, your dealer has been allowed only a limited supply for this purpose. First come—first served. If you come late, do not blame your dealer. When his supply is exhausted, he cannot get any more. Act at once!

STAGE and screen stars declare Kleenex to be the only safe and sanitary way of removing cold cream. It is so soft, so absorbent, that it blots up all dirt and cosmetics along with the cream. The skin is left scrupulously clean, free of the germs that endanger beauty. Towels are spared the ruinous stains left by cosmetics.

Doctors are recommending Kleenex for handkerchief use, especially for colds and hay fever. You use each tissue but once—then throw it away. Cold germs are discarded, too. Thus you avoid reinfecting yourself from an unsanitary handkerchief.

Kleenex makes ideal handkerchiefs for children, and for everyday use.

Kleenex comes in a smart, modern box which makes an attractive addition to your bathroom or dressing table. It is cleverly designed to give you two sheets at a time, just as you use them.

POLICEMEN SUE M'KEESPORT

Five McKeesport policemen, reinstated after a suspension they alleged was improper, filed suits against the City of McKeesport in Common Pleas Court to recover pay for the period of the suspension. They are Lieut. James H. Gray and Patrolmen Fred Kreiling, Martin Manning, Jack Morton and Dudley Prosser.

Each asked a sum in excess of $1,500, alleging the suspensions were ordered by a resolution of May 16, 1929, approved by the mayor and council, although no accusations were made against them and no hearing was held. They were reinstated February 18 last, and have been on duty since, they claimed.

Rail Hits Power Line, Man Killed

BEAVER FALLS, Sept. 25.—Raymond Kennedy, 24, of Negley, O., was killed yesterday at the plant of the Darlington Fireproofing Company, Darlington, when an iron rail he was helping to carry came in contact with a high tension cable. Other workmen were shocked but escaped injury.

well-groomed smile

ANIMATION IS PERSONALITY—an attractive smile is one of the best assets any man can have. And how surely it depends upon healthy teeth and gums! But how will you decide the best way to care for yours? You notice so many conflicting theories. You see dozens of different dentifrices. What is right? • • E. R. Squibb & Sons asked a leading research institution to tabulate the opinions of 50,000 dentists. Read the summary of the replies received:

95% of the answers stated that germ acids most frequently cause tooth decay and gum irritation.
95% of the answers agreed that the most serious trouble occurs at The Danger Line, where teeth and gums meet.
85% stated that the best product to prevent these acids from causing decay and irritating the gums is Milk of Magnesia.

Squibb Dental Cream is made with more than 50% Squibb Milk of Magnesia. Surely this is strong evidence that Squibb's will protect your teeth and gums. • • Use it regularly. Squibb's cleans safely and thoroughly—without the use of grit or astringents or anything which might injure enamel or gums. It is especially refreshing before and after smoking.

Orinthia Reads Shelley And Says She's Not A New Woman

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

"HOW DOES IT FEEL to be a Kemble?" I asked the fair Orinthia, who has come to Pittsburgh in "The Apple Cart" of Bernard Shaw.

Violet Kemble Cooper is a descendant of the most famous family in English theatrical history. One great uncle was the most renowned tragedian in the age between Garrick and Kean. Another great uncle was the best-loved actress of her time. Ellen Terry is Violet Cooper's aunt. One of her sisters was Sarah Siddons, the Tragic Muse, whose face as painted by Lawrence in the Royal Gallery might also pass for Miss Cooper's.

George Seibel

It is this relationship that gave point to my question. "How does it feel to be a Kemble?"

"I had rather you asked me how it feels to be an American," replied Miss Cooper. "You see, I have just bought a little place in Saybrook, Connecticut, and at last I feel completely at home. Which is a more comfortable feeling than to belong to a family from whom you're expected to inherit genius, but who have been inconsiderate enough to cut you off with a shilling."

Miss Cooper is as modest as she is charming. She told me that she had an opportunity to play Beatrice in "Much Ado About Nothing." She declined.

"Why?" I asked.

"Well, I had seen Ellen Terry play the part."

HER PERFECT DICTION

Most stage people, having seen some one else play a part, would be eager to show how much better they can do it.

To falter or doubt would be fatal. Yet how many are equipped as Miss Cooper is, with the face of Sarah Siddons and the most perfect diction on our stage today.

Is it any wonder King Magnus makes such a good speech in "The Apple Cart" He learned it in Orinthia's Boudoir.

Orinthia is a new woman. But not off the stage. Off the stage she pretends to be dreadfully old-fashioned.

But that is mere pretense, for she can quote Shelley by the yard, and Shelley married into the family of Mary Wollstonecroft, who was the very first of our New Women.

Miss Cooper likes poetry that makes music or makes sense. And she likes art that can be understood and appreciated.

"I always suspect," she said, "that these modern artists whose ugly and incomprehensible canvases I see exhibited, looked at Raphael and Duerer, and decided they could not paint anything as beautiful as the one or as true as the other, so they decided to 'scream in paint' and attract attention in that way."

NOW ONE OF OURS

It is only about nine years since Miss Cooper came to America, but she is now one of ours.

She was Lady Caroline Lancy with William Gillette in Barrie's "Dear Brutus," she was the Duchess of Beaumont in "Clair de Lune" with the Barrymores, and up to last week she was the heroine in the "Lysistrata" of Aristophanes—another new woman role.

Yet she insists that she hasn't even read Shaw's "Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism."

"The title ought to tickle my vanity," she said. "But I'm an old-fashioned frump."

Well, King Magnus knows better than that. And the crowds that see her floor the King at the Nixon Theater daily know better than that. And she knows better herself. I must insist in vindication of the long line of Kembles whose wit and grace she cannot conceal or deny.

Underworld!

John Harron finds himself in underworld atmosphere in "The Czar of Broadway," which opens on the Harris screen Friday.

Anna Q. Nilsson Plans Voyage to Sweden And Home Folks

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 25.

Now that she is able to get around on a crutch, Anna Q. Nilsson plans to leave for Sweden in November to visit her parents.

According to her present plans, she will remain there over the holidays, returning here in the spring. By that time she hopes to be able to make a comeback on the screen.

Anna's recovery from her hip injury has been a matter of many weary months, most of which she spent in bed. Once, she was up and around but too much activity brought on a relapse.

Anna Q. Nilson

When she fell from a horse and sustained her injury, the star was under contract to make a series of pictures for R-K-O. Betty Compson was signed to take her place.

PITY WASTED

It happened in a Hollywood restaurant.

An old gentleman summoned a waitress and pointed out a sailor and a girl sitting across the room.

"I want to pay that man's check," he said, "I was in the Navy once myself, and I know that sailors don't have much money. You just tell him, when he is ready to go, that a friend settled for him."

The waitress bided her time, and finally broke the news to the sailor.

He got red in the face.

"Say," he exclaimed, "I'm not a sailor, I'm a motion picture actor, and I don't need any money."

They looked around hurriedly for the Good Samaritan, but he was gone.

STILL POPULAR

The pessimistic chorus that has been saying that Jack Gilbert is through can take heed of this.

When the title of Jack's new picture was flashed on the screen at a preview, there was loud applause from the audience. A moment later when the star's image appeared, this applause grew into shouts which were so persistent that the first few speeches of dialogue were drowned out.

John Gilbert

NEW HOBBY

Antique shops have a strange fascination for the film folk. A short time ago, Eddie Nugent opened one as a sideline to his motion picture activities.

Now, it is Bill Haines, who has succumbed. He has taken over a house in the center of Hollywood, and will open his shop in a few days.

A part of Bill's stock was bought from Nugent who is a fellow player on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The return of the motion picture serial is no idle rumor. Roxy's, New York's largest cinema palace, has booked Universal's "The Indians Are Coming" and will show a chapter each week.

NEW FOX STORY

A swell title comes to Fox with the purchase of "Three Girls Lost," a story by Robert D. Andrews.

The screen treatment will be under way shortly, and, upon its completion, Sidney Lanfield (Shirley Mason's husband) will direct. No cast as yet.

Quaill Firemen Plan Card Party

The first card party of the Quaill District Firemen's Association, of the fall and winter season, will be held Friday night in the association's headquarters, it was announced today. Bridge, euchre and "500" will be played. H. P. Kentzel is chairman.

MUSIC

SYRIA MOSQUE

Syria Mosque resounded with cheers last night for Roxy and his "gang." They came all the way from New York and gave their services to Syria Temple to help a fund for crippled children. Aside from helping so good a cause, the "gang" gave us a first rate entertainment and the gratification of seeing all those favorites whom we know from the Sunday afternoon radio programs.

Roxy himself is a very genial entrepreneur. He knows how to choose talent, but better still, he understands how to present his artists so that the audience likes them even before they perform. For a time he took the director's stand and led his orchestra through all the rhythms that make the heart throb and our feet dance.

The program was impromptu, ranging from Rimsky-Korsakoff and Victor Herbert to the thrillers of the last 20 years. We made the acquaintance of Lucille Fields, Gladys Rice, Viola Philo, John Guerney, who gave us their best in songs reminiscent of Ireland, Cockney London and Palestine. There was Patricia Bowman, a classic toe dancer of nimble technique. Roxy's concertmaster, Joseph Stopak, did a pretty bit with the "Hymn to the Sun," and his musical director, Littau, showed us how he gets wonderful symphonic richness in those classic programs that are giving America the opportunity to learn the finest music in the world.

NEW STAGE DRAMAS AND FILMS FOR THEATERS

Seats go on sale today in the Shubert Alvin box office for the engagement, commencing Monday night, of the Viennese comedy, "Candle Light." Eugenie Leontovich, Russian actress, plays the leading role. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

Bill Robinson co-stars with Adelaide Hall in "Brown Buddies," the new Negro musical comedy which will be on view in the Nixon for one week, beginning Monday. Robinson is known all over the vaudeville circuits and he co-starred for 14 months on Broadway with Adelaide Hall in "Blackbirds of 1928."

"The Wasp's Nest," the first mystery play to be presented this season by the George Sharp Players, will be presented in the Pitt next week.

JOE COOK IN STANLEY

Joe Cook, the stage comedian, opens in the Stanley today in the screen adaptation of his success, "Rain or Shine." Supporting him are Louise Fazenda, William Collier, Jr., and Joan Peers. On the stage Ed Lowry is present in another Warner-Publix unit.

Gloria Swanson sings three songs in her new comedy, "What a Widow," a United Artist talkie, which opens tomorrow in the Penn. These numbers were written by Vincent Youmans of "Hit the Deck" fame.

Five comedians have featured roles in Radio Pictures' "Leathernecking." They are Ken Murray, Louise Fazenda, Ned Sparks, Eddie Foy, Jr., and Benny Rubin.

Bert Lytell, hero of "The Lone Wolf," "Alias The Lone Wolf," "The Lone Wolf's Daughter" and "The Return of the Lone Wolf," comes to the Enright screen tomorrow in "The Last of the Lone Wolf." Patsy Ruth Miller has the main supporting role. On the stage Dick Powell will offer "Step Lively."

SHOWBOAT DRAMA

"Ten Nights in a Barroom" is the current attraction on Capt. Menke's Golden Rod Showboat, located at Montrose, just above Aspinwall. Vaudeville numbers are presented between the acts of the drama.

George O'Brien comes to the Aldine tomorrow in the film version of Zane Grey's story, "The Last of the Duanes." O'Brien portrays a cowboy who, through force of circumstances, becomes an outlaw.

"Scarlet Pages" will open a second week on the Warner screen tomorrow. Elsie Ferguson heads the cast.

ENDS DIGESTIVE ILLS QUICK AND GAINS 10 POUNDS

Food does not nourish when it is not properly digested. That's why people who suffer from gas on stomach and bowels, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, etc., due to indigestion, often find themselves underweight, weak, with little energy and vitality.

All this is quickly changed when you start using the simple discovery known as Pape's Diapepsin. When people experience for themselves the amazing results of using these tasty little tablets, they invariably feel compelled to tell others.

Mrs. Amber Ross, 140 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I suffered for many months with indigestion, nervousness and headaches, trying all the time to get relief by dieting and medicines.

"Then I learned about Pape's Diapepsin and began on it. It has been a wonderful help to me. I eat onions now without bad after-effects. How they used to make me suffer!

"Friends that I have told about Diapepsin have been helped in the same way. I have gained ten pounds since starting on it."

All druggists sell it; or if you wish to try it before buying, write "Pape's Diapepsin," Wheeling, W. Va., for a trial box, FREE.

Broadwaycasting

Good evening, ladies and gentlemen, and those who would rather be listening to Udyray Alleevay. Before beginning my Broadwaycasting, Nick Lucas will warble and guitar for you. His delightful tunes have won for him armies of admirers and great success in the major theaters. Thanks so much, Nick.

When Herbert Fields, the musical comedy writer, was in California recently, a newly-married pair wrote him a sad letter about their distress and sour luck. They needed money badly. Would Herbert help? Yes, Herbert would, and did.

A few weeks later the grateful couple wrote Herbert thanking him for the $100 he sent.

"You will always have good luck and good health," the letter concluded. The letter arrived after Herbert broke a leg.

SUITS OVER RAIL DEVICE VOIDED

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Two suits in the patent infringement litigation by which Mrs. Katherine Ryan is trying to collect a half billion dollars damages from many steel companies and railroads were dismissed in federal district court here.

The suits dismissed were against the Inland Steel Company of Indiana Harbor and the Great Northern Railway for alleged infringement of Mrs. Ryan's patents on a self-locking railroad bolt and nut.

Judge John B. Sanborn in dismissing the suits, said the patents involved were combination patents and apparent infringement when shown for the bolt or the nut alone would not constitute infringement.

Mrs. Ryan said she would press other suits against other steel companies and railroads already on file in federal court here.

AIR STOCK TIP PLANT SOUGHT

BREMEN, Germany, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—The German police have been asked, with English and Dutch authorities, by the New York police, to try to locate a secret short wave wireless receiving station or stations used for eavesdropping on trans-Atlantic service.

New York police have endeavored to set up machinery for "spotting" listeners whose evident purpose is the securing illegally of American and European stock exchange transactions, financial plans and other confidential information.

The police charge that such matter is reaching outsiders before deals on the New York Stock Exchange can be effected and that eavesdropping speculators are acting on information so obtained and thereby pocketing large profits.

Warrant Officer Believed Suicide

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Warrant Officer Walter M. Bird, United States Army, was found dead in the hallway of his Baltimore apartment with a bullet in his head and pistol clutched in his hand. Although the coroner withheld an official verdict he said he believed the officer was mentally unbalanced and fired the shot while standing before a looking glass with a mirror held in one hand.

The officer had been taking treatments, police said, at Walter Reed Hospital for a nervous disorder.

MOSCOW, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency reports that the anti-religious campaign of Jewish Communists passed unnoticed on both Rosh Hashanah days, during which the synagogues in Moscow and in other parts of Russia were crowded. An anti-religious march which the Communists proclaimed for Rosh Hashanah was negligible in Moscow, as well as in the provinces.

A Harmless Prescription, but How it Moves the bowels!

DON'T you want this way of making the bowels behave? A doctor's way to make the bowels move so well that you feel better all over! Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin doesn't turn everything to water, but cleans out all that hard waste clogging your system. It cleans you out without any shock, for it's only fresh laxative herbs a famous doctor found so good for the bowels combined with pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

A doctor should know what is best for the bowels. Let Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin show you how soon you can train the bowels to move freely, every day, the way they should. It's wonderful the way this prescription works, but it's perfectly harmless; so you can use it whenever a coated tongue or sick headache gives warning that you are bilious. Fine for children, too (it tastes so nice) and they ought to have a spoonful the minute they seem fretful, feverish, or sluggish, or become stuffed up with a cold.

You can get the original prescription Dr. Caldwell wrote so many years ago; your druggist keeps it all ready in big bottles. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and use it any time anyone in the family is constipated.

"I find Flaxolyn worthy of warmest recommendation"

States Rome's Prominent Physician to Sufferers from this Common Ailment

Be warned by those occasional spells of sick headaches, biliousness, heartburn, belching, bloating, gas and other symptoms of constipation! Take care, or the attacks may come more frequently. There is no reason why this insidious disease—even though it appears only now and then—should make you dull and listless.

Those wise folks who appreciate the importance of keeping the intestines clear and free of accumulated wastes which may harbor disease and play havoc with health, will be interested to know that Flaxolyn has been examined and heartily recommended by physicians both here and abroad. Read, for instance, the statement of Dr. Fernando Vivaldi:

"It is singularly appropriate that Flaxolyn should be put in the hands of a physician of modern Rome, where, centuries before the birth of America and Europe, learned doctors decided on the merits of medicines which were used perhaps to combat the very same ailments as those of the present day.

"Tested by years of experience as a practitioner, I find Flaxolyn worthy of the warmest recommendation for cases of stubborn temporary constipation, and in particular as an aid to the bowels after a break-down or following a period of exhaustion due to overwork or unusual strain. The herbal ingredients are as old and famous as Rome itself."

Fernando Vivaldi M.D.

DR. FERNANDO VIVALDI

Dr. Vivaldi is one of many physicians retained to pass judgment upon the merits of Flaxolyn. His favorable opinion is in agreement with those of other distinguished physicians, including Dr. Heinrich Ritter of Switzerland, Professor Dr. Remy Hirsch of Berlin, Dr. Franz Rosen of Vienna, Dr. Regina Schumann of Leningrad, and others.

The high opinion of Flaxolyn held by Dr. Vivaldi and other physicians has been borne out by countless folks in this vicinity who have found in Flaxolyn a great stimulant to the appetite, a mild diuretic and a wonderfully efficient laxative acting upon the upper and lower bowel and the colon as well.

"I Have Seen the Unusual Results Flaxolyn Has Brought," says Rose Millen, American Dietitian and Author

Rose G. Millen is the well-known head of the Boston, Mass., "Health Products Centre" and the author of the book which all health-seekers should read, "Light on Dietetics." This book has an introduction by a former dean of a leading University Medical School, who calls attention to Miss Millen's broad scientific training on the subject of correct eating. Miss Millen's opinion of Flaxolyn is therefore received with a great deal of interest. She says:

"Flaxolyn comes to the timely aid of our people. In my opinion, human beings never were intended to be meat eaters; their colon is too large and their liver too small. Billions of decay germs may enter the body here, even from the most temporary form of constipation. Flaxolyn has been given an unprecedented ovation, and I believe it is the greatest means of treating this common condition."

MISS ROSE J. MILLEN OF BOSTON

Mr. Chas. Heck of Philadelphia says: "I Have Induced 500 Philadelphians to Take Flaxolyn."

Mr. Charles Heck is connected with one of Philadelphia's leading department stores. He tells his interesting experiences with Flaxolyn:

"I am so thankful for my improvement that I have induced almost 500 people to take Flaxolyn. One woman living on my street bought a half-dozen bottles and said, 'I only hope Flaxolyn does as much for my husband as it has for you, Mr. Heck'."

Charles Heck

Flaxolyn Free If It Fails

Flaxolyn contains no drastic or habit-forming drugs; it is rich in sun-dried and air-dried herbs, effectively combined with highly approved vegetable extracts, bile salts and organic medicinals. Have no hesitancy in trying it.

The whole world contributes to the potency of Flaxolyn. In it are Senna Leaves from Arabia, Licorice Roots from sunny Spain, "Sacred Bark" from California, Buchu Leaves from Africa, Sarsaparilla Roots from Mexico—and other important ingredients from the five continents.

By all means tear out the coupon and hand it to your druggist, who will be very happy to redeem it so that you may give Flaxolyn the trial it merits.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Vincent Lopez, the piano player, is a very serious young man who strives to please. He likes to meet all the customers and make a good impression. He tells frankly that he aims to promote good-will. The other evening he played a half-dozen Spanish waltzes to please two ladies of Spanish descent who had come to hear him.

Now Spanish waltzes are probably all right, when taken in moderation, but a young, wisecracking flapper who sat and danced through all this finally tired of it, walked up to Mr. Lopez as he waved his baton on the bandstand and asked:

"Mr. Lopez, when do you bring in the bull?"

Two of Pittsburgh's newspapermen of another generation remembered sentimentally are the late Erasmus Wilson and John O. Baglin. Mr. Wilson wrote a philosophical column, "The Quiet Observer," on the editorial page of the Gazette Times and Mr. Baglin was for many years financial editor of the same paper. Both kindly, good natured gentlemen, they were fast friends. Once a bank offered Mr. Baglin a post, with an impressive salary, advising its clients on what investments to make. Mr. Baglin, in refusing, explained that his conscience would suffer if ever he were to advise a client on an investment which turned out unfortunately.

In a pleasant conversation about gunmen and things, a friend of ours who can stroll or run in a half-dozen walks of life contended there wasn't one really bad man in Pittsburgh. He agreed, of course, there were booze or dope-crazed hoodlums who might kill a person without a moment's hesitation, and he conceded that there were those who would sneak up in back of you, clout you on the noodle and take your money—but what he meant was that there was no dependable operator whom you could approach with, "George, here's $12 and carfare; please bump off that guy Pfarr before morning."

Now that we've put it that way, maybe there is.

One of the major regrets of Quin Hall, who draws the cartoons on Page Two, is that Joe Armstrong, the County Commissioner, doesn't smoke cigars. From a cartoonist's standpoint, Mr. Armstrong would make a more fetching figure puffing on a cigar, one reason being that he suggests the late Speaker Cannon, who was a cigar smoker. Another reason is that a cigar often identifies an individual more readily than other features. Mr. Armstrong will be delighted to hear that Mr. Hall is planning to send him a box of good Havanas for Christmas.

Miss Dennis, the girl who answers all questions, was being introduced to a Pittsburgh newspaperman.

"How do you do?" Miss Dennis custsied politely.

"You should ask me!" the reporter replied.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 25.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Russia sold wheat over here, but they didn't have any wheat over here, so now our farm board is all excited. Looks to me like the fellow that should be hot and bothered is the fellows that bought it. We never will have any prosperity that is free from speculation, till we pass a law that every time a broker or person sells something, he has got to have it sitting there in a bucket, or a bag, or a jug, or a cage, or a rat trap, or something, depending on what it is he is selling. We are continually buying something that we never get, from a man that never had it.

Yours,
WILL.

Money Taken for Uniforms For Canonsburg Stand; Then Deserts 'Employes'

Hopes for steady employment with good salary, room and board included, were blasted last night when eight girls reported themselves swindled out of money, and in one instance clothes, police said.

Sol Bethel, employment agent of 631 Smithfield street, and the girls made the complaint to Lieut. Thomas Malone.

The girls were Jean Bastian, of 84 South Twelfth street; Mary Berdosky, of the same address; Mary Mikel, of McKeesport, Route No. 1; Emma Stasik, of 1814 Mary street; Ida Scott, of 110 Tenth avenue, Homestead; Helen Guthrie, no address; Anna Kanchak, of 2727 West Point avenue, North Side, and another girl, who left the bureau before her name was taken.

Bethel said a Mrs. Rice, who came into his office Tuesday, said she was the owner of the St. Clair Barbecue at Canonsburg and wanted to hire eight young ladies to work for her.

The salary was to be $15 a week, with room and board included. But the girls must be pleasant, intelligent and good looking, Mrs. Rice insisted.

Due to the lateness of the day, Miss Guthrie, 25, was the only one available. Miss Guthrie, who had quit her position that morning, shared Mrs. Rice's room at a downtown hotel.

Bethel was kept busy telephoning late into the night. Miss

RIVAL OPPOSES NEW YORK AIR LINE PLAN

Airways Corporation Fights Transport Concern's Plea; Declares 2 Can't Survive

Two airplane transportation companies carrying passengers between Pittsburgh and New York cannot survive,

That assertion was made by T. Taney, operating director of the Pittsburgh Airways Corporation before Public Service Commissioner Samuel Walker. The concern is opposing the application of the Pittsburgh Air Transport Company to operate a scheduled service between this city and New York.

Taney claims his company has been operating a scheduled service since April 15. Commissioner Walker called his attention to the fact he is doing so without a certificate. The company made application two years ago, but the commission has not acted on it. It is operating on a "call and demand" service certificate.

Daniel M. Casey, secretary of the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce and of the Capitol Landing Field Company, Harrisburg, told the commissioner the service of the Pittsburgh Air Transport Corporation is needed. This concern desires to route its planes by way of Altoona and Harrisburg, with a terminal at Harrisburg and also one at Philadelphia.

The Pittsburgh Airways Corporation runs its planes to the south of Harrisburg. Beginning October 1 it will make calls at York.

Maj. H. S. Martin, operative manager of the Pittsburgh Air Transport Corporation, testified the rate of fare to New York would be 10 cents per flying mile or $35 for one way.

His mother carried him to school until he grew too heavy, his father later wheeled him from their home, 354 Lehigh avenue. The Board of Education has a plea to do something in behalf of him and others who are as unfortunate.

TOWNSHIP MAY TEST POWER

Redistricting Commission's Authority Challenged; Court Ruling Likely

The authority of the redistricting commission to reduce the number of voting precincts in first-class townships has been challenged by Stowe Township, with likelihood of a test case to determine the issue.

At a meeting of a sub-committee of the Redistricting Commission, composed of N. H. Criss, W. H. Ziefel and Charles E. Flinn, last night in the Stowe Township municipal building, Attorney Alex. E. Erkles, township solicitor, averred it would be illegal to reduce the number of election districts as it would eliminate one or more of the nine township commissioners, each of whom represents a district.

ACTION DEFERRED

The sub-committee deferred action i na new alignment of voting districts and the protest will be considered at a meeting of the Redistricting Commission next Monday.

Stowe Township is the first township of the first class to be taken up by the commission. Cities and boroughs have been completed.

TO ASK RULING

Members of the subcommittee indicated that Judge H. H. Rowand would be asked for a ruling on the question. The alleged illegality of reducing the number of districts is said to consist in depriving of office commissioners chosen by vote of the people.

NATALIE TO WED HER DIRECTOR

A real life romance of the Hollywood talkie studios with its stars Natalie Moorehead, former Pittsburgher, and Alan Crosland, pioneer sound motion picture director, became known with the announcement of their engagements as a feature of a radio program.

The date for the wedding has not been set, the announcement said.

Miss Moorehead, who formerly resided on Thirty-ninth street, in the Arsental Park district, and who attended Peabody High School, has been in Hollywood several years. She is featured in the picture, "The Office Wife."

Crosland was a New York newspaperman and dramatic critic of the old New York Globe before entering pictures. He has been married before.

Under contract to Warner Brothers since 1925, it was he who driected Al Jolson in his first talkie, "The Jazz Singer." He directed John Barrymore in "Don Juan;" Lawrence Tibbett in the "Rogue Song;" the first technicolor production, "On With the Show," and Barrymore's talkie success, "General Crack."

LESHER THANKS COUNTY BOARD

Unanimously elected to the office of county solicitor, Mortimer B. Lesher made a brief acceptance speech at the commissioners' meeting yesterday. He said:

"To you, Commissioner Armstrong, I owe a deep debt of gratitude for since your action in making me an assistant county solicitor. You have been a father to me. To you, Commissioner Babcock, I am grateful for nominating me as county solicitor and for the encouragement and patting on the back that you have given me during my service, and to you, Commissioner McGovern, I am grateful for seconding my nomination, thus making it unanimous."

MAN, WIFE HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Ensign Margaret Thomsen, 23, Salvation Army officer stationed at New Castle, was in the Suburban General Hospital today suffering injuries to the spine. Her husband, Ensign Vaughn Thomsen, was treated for lacerations of the head and face. They received the injuries in an automobile accident on the Perry highway near Harmony stop late yesterday.

Returning from a convention held by the local post yesterday to welcome John McMillian, recently appointed commissioner of the eastern states, the machine skidded and overturned.

Walter Cross, 19, and an unidentified woman in the car were unhurt.

Woman Waits Trial On Shooting Charge

William Titum, 30, Negro, of 1811 Center avenue, is in the Allegheny General Hospital with a gun-shot wound in the right leg. Police said he was shot by his wife during an argument in the kitchen of their home yesterday. Mrs. Nellie Titum, 30, the wife, will get a hearing in Center Avenue Police Court when her husband is discharged from the hospital.

Body of Slain Woman Claimed by Sister

Mrs. Catherine Kern, of 1152 Holcomb street, Detroit, arrived here today to claim the body of her sister, Mrs. David C. Manson, killed by her husband, who later took his own life in their apartment at 44 Academy avenue, Mt. Lebanon.

Mrs. Kern said her sister had visited her several weeks ago, having returned here September 4. She told deputy coroners she knew of no cause for the dual shooting other than the fact that Manson was jealous of his wife.

On one occasion, Mrs. Kern said, he destroyed attractive clothing Mrs. Manson had purchased, and on another he broke a set of golf clubs his wife had bought.

Manson's body was claimed yesterday by his sister, Miss Jean Manson, of Chicago, who said her brother informed her last December he intended to apply for a divorce.

Gordon Resumes Visits to Farnsworth Home

CHAPTER XXVIII

Gordon Moore didn't write and he declined Fansworth's urgent invitation to make their home his headquarters on this trip.

"Thanks a lot, but I've made all the arrangements at the hotel. Sent my stuff there and everything," he said.

"Then we'll see you often for dinner," Farnsworth compromised.

"Oh, I'll be around under foot a lot."

He did come to the house often, and after the first trying, uncomfortable meeting, with Chester and Enid there too, and not a chance to see him alone, it seemed natural and right to see him sitting in the library in the evenings with Farnsworth. He had little to say to her, or she to him, but sometimes he would forget to listen to what his host was saying, and his eyes would rest on Cathie . . . oh he still loved her . . . she knew.

The surety of it made her bold. "Need we be so distant with each other?" she asked, a little wistfully one evening when he was going. "We were such good friends when you were here before."

"I know." He looked down at his shoes. "I'm so damn self-conscious," he burst out boyishly.

"But that's wrong," she said gently. "Besides if there's anything that will make people think . . . think . . . what you're afraid of—it's that. Couldn't we be—sort of pals—like we were before?"

Happiness
Uneasiness Between Pair Vanishes

"You darling!" he said slowly. He smiled, and reached out a long, brown hand, deliberately ruffling her neatly coiffed hair.

She laughed, too, and the awkwardness that had been between them was gone, never to come back again. They talked and laughed as they used to do. They had delicious, foolish jokes, and hot arguments over things they really cared nothing about. They sat side by side on the huge, down-filled cushions of the davenport, looking at each other, finding excuses for their hands to touch, content just to be together.

Chester was there most of the time, and always Farnsworth. Chester had taken to dropping in for tea . . . well, what of it? It was all open and above board, wasn't it? What could Chester say? Besides it made Farnsworth happy to see him, a frequent visitor and Cathie had fallen again into that beatific state that had been hers in the mountains. She loved everyone and everything in the world. She wanted everyone to be happy. She kissed the primroses and tulips Cheong brought to her to arrange in the flower bowls. She overlooked the most flagrant laziness and unexplained absences on the part of the half-crazy maid, Marguerite.

That the girl was really mentally unbalanced Cathie was sure of at last. How else to explain her mournful head-shaking, long rattling sighs, and cryptic warnings about unseen, nameless enemies whom she claimed were plotting Cathie's end? A few months ago Cathie would have been frightened, would have carried the tales to her husband, but it all seemed absurd now, and she was so used to the woman's white strained face and burning eyes that they no longer seemed sinister and tragic . . . it was just poor Marguerite.

The girl shouldn't be allowed to go out so much at night—Cathie knew that, but she put off speaking of it. Besides, she had grown used to the creaks and taps and sighs that she heard in the old house at night. All old houses are spooky, and that monotonous wailing of a far-away flute wasn't anything to be afraid of . . . probably one of the Chinamen playing on some flute-like instrument in one of the honeycomb of basement rooms . . .

It terrified her once . . . threatening, trying to tell her of dark things it knew. Well, Cathie wasn't going to be afraid of that old house any more. It couldn't scare her. It couldn't sigh and whisper to her of anything that mattered . . . for what can touch you when you're loved?

Still . . . Marguerite ought to come in earlier . . .

Laughable
Maid's Perfume Source Of Amusement

"Marguerite, is that you?" she called, waking in the small hours, hearing stealthy footsteps on the third floor steps.

Silence. Then Marguerite at her door. "Did you call, madam?" Marguerite wearing her most stupid expression, lashes heavy with mascara, eyelids smudged with blueish paint.

"Isn't it very late for you to be out alone?"

Marguerite's soft, weak mouth trembling. "I wasn't alone."

Cathie hesitated. After all, was it her business?

When Marguerite had slipped away, leaving behind a trail of that strong perfume she used, Cathie lay back on her pillow. Perhaps it was just as well that she hadn't said anything. Her husband surely knew all about the girl. He had hinted as much on that first day he brought her home. And if, for reason of his own he chose to overlook it, why shouldn't she?

One thing made her laugh to herself in the darkness. That perfume. It was the same scent that Enid used . . . Enid, the superior, Enid, the snooty Mrs. Farnsworth Junior! Cathie giggled mischievously. She felt

RUM RAIDS NET TWO, STILL

Prohibition agents yesterday reported making two raids, arresting two violators.

Edward Ward, 48, alleged bartender, was arrested, agents reported, when they raided a saloon on the second floor of a building at 6117 Penn avenue. Whisky, moonshine, gin and alcohol were reported confiscated.

A 50-gallon still and some moonshine was reported seized from the home of Mike Koran, 46, of 4426 Third street, Versailles.

Mayor Proclaims Westinghouse Day

Mayor Charles H. Kline today issued a proclamation setting Monday, October 6, as "Westinghouse Day" in Pittsburgh, when the monument erected to the memory of George Westinghouse by former employes and associates, in Schenley Park, is to be unveiled. Prominent guests from all parts of the world are expected to attend.

Ore Crushes Man At Work on Truck

City to Open 'Safety Lane' To Speed Auto Inspection

Now is the season of the year motorists who have not already received the compulsory state inspection to think of getting their cars ready.

To take as much worry out of the process as possible, the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, and the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, working with the Pittsburgh police department and with the approval of the State Highway Department, will establish "Safety Lane" on one of the city streets yet to be designated.

Every day next week, from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., every motorist who runs his car through the mechanical testing devices of "Safety Lane" will have it inspected free for all the points required by the official state inspection, and others besides.

If his car passes all tests he will receive a certificate which, through arrangement with the State Highway Department, will entitle him without reinspection to the official state sticker upon presentation at any official garage in Allegheny County, and upon payment of the fee charged by the garage for that service.

If his car is found defective in any one or more of the required tests, his ticket will be marked to show the various adjustments necessary to put his machine in shape to pass official inspection.

DRIVE REOPENS FOR EAST LIBERTY GOLF COURSE

$350,000 LINKS PROJECT GETS NEW START

Ask U. S. Advice in Mine Fire Obstacle; Hearing Shows Lincoln Board Opposed

The Department of Public Works today is beginning another investigation of the feasibility of constructing a golf course on a hill overlooking Washington boulevard near Leech Farm Tuberculosis Sanitarium.

The investigation was ordered yesterday by Council after a large delegation from the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce, the Lincoln Avenue Civic Club and other organizations appeared to advocate the course.

LONE OPPONENT

One of the leading advocates was Michael DeRosa, Republican chairman of the Twelfth Ward. The only voice raised against the proposition, which will cost approximately $350,000 according to witnesses yesterday, was Brooks Edmondston, representing the Lincoln district board of trade.

The matter has been considered by Council for five years, the chief obstacle to the purchase of the site being a mine fire. Advocates of the plan expressed the opinion the fire had burned itself out. Representatives of the United States Bureau of Mines will be asked to aid in the survey to be made by the department.

When R. C. Long suggested $350,000 as the cost, Councilman John S. Herron tossed him a slip of paper, saying:

"Here is an appraisement of the property. We are holding this as a secret and don't want it to be public, but read the figures and then tell us what you think of your own."

FOR SUNDAY GOLF

P. J. Flood, of the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce, who headed the delegation, admitted when questioned by Councilman Harry A. Little that he favored Sunday golf. He said:

"My personal opinion is that any clean sport that is not commercialized is a good thing for the people of Pittsburgh."

Edmondston explained he did not object to a golf course, but that his organization felt the great amount of money needed would be used better if applied to more police protection, playground facilities, street improvements and lights. He told of the burning mine, predicted it would burn for years and said an "enormous expense" would be involved in conditioning the property. He added:

"It will get no support from us unless the city fathers give us the golf course and our necessary improvements in the same bite."

SEE GOLFER FLOOD

Charles Blank, asked by Councilman Robert J. Alderdice if the city should buy the proposed site or the Stanton Heights Golf Club, which has been offered for less money, advised purchase of the latter. He and other witnesses said, however, that at least two more courses are needed.

Miniature golf, in their opinion, is a preparatory school that will send floods of graduate golfers to the municipal courses soon. This view was expressed by the Rev. J. G. Brand, Corpus Christi Church.

Magistrate Charles Papuga was another speaker favoring purchase of the property.

Mackey is in the county jail in default of bail of $11,000 on charges made against him in Fayette County and default of $1,000 bail on a worthless check charge here, it is said.

POLICE HUNT 2 IN NORTH SIDE HOLDUP

Bandits Escape With $200 From Brighton Laundry Co., Miss $3,000 Payroll

Police and detectives today are looking for the two bandits who yesterday held up employes of the Brighton Laundry Company, Stayton and Hodgkiss streets, North Side, and escaped with $200.

A payroll of about $3,000 was the object of the robbery, police said, but the money was placed in pay envelopes about 10 minutes before the holdup and distributed to employes by the manager. The bandits were both armed and escaped in a stolen machine.

ONCE MINER; NOW POLOIST

Pittsburgh polo enthusiasts are interested over the discovery of George Vang's private polo grounds and stables on the Dry Run road, near Monongahela City.

Vang is a Pittsburgh contractor, who, starting as son of a poor miner, developed a $7,000,000 business, extending from the Mississippi to the Atlantic Coast. He worked as a boy in the Clearfield County mines.

Yesterday, business associates and friends gathered at the first of a series of polo banquets Vang is planning. Before dinner they saw Vang and friends play five chukkers on his field.

Vang captained his side, with Randolph Milholland, Cumberland (Md.) oil man, and V. C. Elphinstone, Baltimore construction equipment manufacturer, supporting him. Playing against him was Chief Field Engineer W. C. Kline, of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad, captaining; Lewis E. Goerder, Vang's general manager of railroad construction, and John S. C. Herron, Monongahela City banker.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: What is the ideal type of man?

Mrs. McDade

MRS. C. McDADE, North Side, housewife—There isn't any ideal type of man. I believe that a man who possesses an even disposition comes about as near as any to being ideal.

Miss Behanna

MISS ELSIE BEHANNA, city, color artist—There is no ideal type of man. I wouldn't care if a man were not rich or handsome if he had a good disposition. I think that generosity is an ideal characteristic.

Miss Duff

MISS WILLA DUFF, Sheraden, waitress—Every girl has an ideal type of man. I think the ideal type is tall, with dark complexion, curly hair and an athletic figure.

Miss Wantje

MISS WILLA WANTJE, Sheraden, resident—The ideal type of man, in my opinion, is tall and possesses a light complexion. By this, I do not mean the German type of man. I do not care for that type.

Mrs. Thompson

MRS. BETTY THOMPSON, North Side, business woman—I don't believe there is an ideal type of man. One man is the same as another as far as I'm concerned with them.

Miss Bann

MISS IRENE BANN, North Side, waitress—An ideal type of man is one who is not afraid to work, is clean cut, and willing to take care of a girl. To me a man such as this belongs in the "ideal" class.

LUCKY GIRL

that it gave her something to crow over secretly. Whenever kind got mean she could think "Well! You're using the same perfume my maid does, whether you know it or not!" It was such a good joke . . . maybe she'd tell Gordon. But no, it would be cruel, for the silly creature had taken the most ridiculous fancy to him. Found pretexts to wait on him, stared at him with a moonstruck look. She might almost be in love with him. . . No, Cathie couldn't give her away, not even if it was funny. She had once worshipped him from afar, herself . . .

A Visitor Tries to Sell Gems To Cathie

At half past four every afternoon the tea things were brought into the library. Cathie made it a point to be home by then, for Farnsworth might bring Gordon for tea.

Today a fitting on a new gown delayed her. She was out of the blue limousine and in the front door before Meredith was out of the driver's seat.

"Anyone call?"

"One lady, name Hennessy. She wait in the room," the inevitable Chinese Charlie answered.

Mrs. Hennessy! Old Mrs. Hennessy! Wonder of wonders . . . old Mrs. Hennessy making a visit! Cathie dropped her bag and fur, and went into the small formal drawing room, still wearing her hat.

It was no old Mrs. Hennessy that awaited her. Lillian! Lillian Hennessy, the girl who used to go to school with Ruth. Who always liked boys, and whom the boys always liked . . .

"Doncha know me?" It was Lillian all right, running her words all together, just as she always did.

"Of course. You're Lillian Hennessy. Won't you sit down?" Cathie was flustered. She hadn't seen Lillian for years, though ma had talked about her enough . . . her furs, her rich man, her shameful carryings on . . .

"Mrs. Bertram Hennessy," Lillian said and laughed. "Listen, Cath—you don't mind my calling you Cath? God, we used to live next door once!"

Her bold brown eyes appraised Cathie, the room, everything.

"No, I don't mind—Lillian," Cathie said. Now what in the world brought the girl? Why don't she say?

"Expectin' somebody, hon?"

"No—oh—yes, I really am."

"I won't keep you. I just come in on an errand. Listen, how'd you like to buy a coupla diamond rings?"

"I'm afraid not."

"Now, listen. I'll sell them cheap. Pure white, flawless, worth four thousand easy, why I could hock 'em for two grand, I'll sell for two and a half."

"Two thousand five hundred."

"But I haven't anything like that, Lillian. Besides I don't want any diamond rings, really I don't!"

"Every woman wants diamonds, don't kid me. These are good. I'm only sellin' 'cause I'm makin' a change. Goin' to Australia. Honest to God, Cath, haven't you got the dough?"

"Truly I haven't."

"Well, in that case!" Lillian Hennessy gathered her orange chiffon and velvet draperies about her opulent figure. Cathie, still puzzled, followed her to the door. Lillian went out, just as Chester Farnsworth came in.

Lillian waited until Chester, with a curt nod to Cathie, had gone on inside. "Sugar papa?"

Cathie couldn't help laughing. "Stepson!"

Lillian wrinkled her nose. "All right. No hard feeling, Cathie. But take an old timer's advice. Salt away a little dough. You never know when you're goin' t' need it! Theodore!"

JOYS OF TOURS SPUR ENTRANTS

Now that the girls who sent in nomination blanks on the Gloria Swanson "What a Widow!" free de luxe tours to Paris and the five trips to Bermuda, all expenses paid, have received complete information on what they have to do to get one of the awards, the interest in the tours has tremendously increased.

Yesterday the Tours Editor was swamped with telephone calls from girls anxious to get additional information that will be helpful in getting one of these free trips.

It isn't too late to file your nominations. You'll find a blank in today's Sun-Telegraph. Carefully read the requirements, and if you are eligible fill in the blank and mail it today.

The Paris trip will be one to be remembered for a lifetime, as Gloria Swanson has overlooked nothing that would add to the comfort and entertainment of the girl who gets this award. Incidentally, this girl will be given $200.00 in cash to spend, less her Paris hotel bills for a week, for which a special low rate has been arranged by Miss Swanson's representatives.

Almost as much may be said about the five trips to Bermuda. Everything will be first class, finest accomodations on the steamships, the best hotels, special entertainment and extra money to spend.

Miss Swanson, incidentally, is arranging for the Paris tour on account of her new picture, "What a Widow!", which has its first showing at Loew's Penn Theater tomorrow. Nearly all of this picture was filmed on board the French liner Paris and in the city of Paris.

Laurel Gardens Parents Say They Will Fight Any Court Action

A showdown appeared near today in the strike of approximately 40 pupils of the Laurel Gardens district, Ross Township, after a meeting of parents last night in which they agreed to continue their refusal to send their children to the Perrysville school.

Truancy notices have been sent to parents of the children on strike, according to L. C. Lustenberger, president of the school board, requesting that the pupils report immediately. Provisions of the school law are cited.

At the meeting last night, leaders of the parents declared they would welcome a court fight. The parents say they object to the long walk which their children must take to reach the Perrysville school. They ask a building in Laurel Gardens or bus transportation for their children.

BUREAU WARNS EMPLOYERS

The state Bureau of Workmen's Compensation is carrying on a campaign to impress on all employers of labor the necessity of carrying compensation insurance in order that workmen injured in the course of their employment may receive benefits to which they are entitled.

The Legislature, at its last session, the announcement said, amended the workmen's compensation law fixing a penalty of from $100 to $500 and costs of prosecution or imprisonment of not more than six months for failure to carry compensation insurance. The law applies to all employers, regardless of the number of workmen employed, it was pointed out.

Those excluded from the provisions of the act are farmers, domestic servants and those engaged in casual employment.

SNOW COVERS WEST CANADA

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 25. — (AP.)—The prairie provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta, where a few weeks ago torrid temperatures prevailed, were covered in many sections today by snow.

A wind that at times reached gale force, accompanied by rain and sleet, broke poles and snapped telegraph wires. Telegraph communication between Saskatchewan and Alberta was severed.

Two inches of snow blanketed Swift Current, in Southwest Saskatchewan, and the town was without telephone, telegraph or power service. In other places an inch or more of snow fell.

The coldest spot in the West was Grande Prairie, in Northern Alberta, with a temperature of 24 degrees above zero.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Betty Curry Names Nov. 26 As Day for Marriage To J. M. Kingsley

As the gracious season of autumn advances, we're going to have more and more stately weddings. I've just learned of a new date added to the already attractively long list of fall weddings.

The end of the summer brought news of the engagement of Betty Curry daughter of the James Henry M. Currys of Beechwood boulevard. Her fiance, you'll probably recall, is John M. Kingsley, son of the Darwin P. Kingsleys, of Park avenue, New York.

Betty has decided upon a November wedding and the date is November 26. The ceremony will take place in the afternoon, at the Curry home.

Betty was a debutante of the past winter and is a graduate of Ethel Walker School. She also attended Vassar. Just now, I might add, she's in New York. Her fiance attended Groton School and is a Yale man.

Debutante news is becoming more exciting every day. And the most interesting bud news I've heard this week is the addition of a new name to the enlightening list of girls who'll come out this winter. Mary Jessup Magee, daughter of Mrs. R. J. Magee of Sewickley, will be presented to society during the Christmas holidays. Mary studied last year at the Sorbonne and will be a member of the graduating class at Smith in June. Her mother had planned to present her daughter last winter, but later decided to have her daughter study in Paris.

Now for some more wedding news. The James William B. Schmertzes and the Louis Schmertzes will leave by motor today for Atlantic City to attend the wedding of their niece, Elizabeth Schmertz, daughter of Mrs. Edward Augustus Schmertz, of Atlantic City, formerly of Pittsburgh. Elizabeth will marry Dr. Wilson Arbogast Foust on Saturday in the Olivet Presbyterian Church of Atlantic City. The W. E. Carnahans, cousins of the bride-to-be, will leave today also to attend the wedding.

Wedding Guests

One of the first of October's weddings will take place on October 4 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when Mary Emma Landenberger, daughter of the late Eugene Landenberger and of Mrs. Landenberger of Skaneateles, N. Y., will become the bride of Richard B. Scandrett, Jr., of New York, son of the late Richard B. Scandrett, Pittsburgh lawyer, and of Mrs. Agnes Morrow Scandrett of Pittsburgh.

The ceremony will take place in Mr. Scandrett's country home, Idlewild, Orange County, N. Y. The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman will officiate.

Capt. George Landenberger, United States Navy, will give his niece in marriage and Cynthia Beatty, of Skaneateles, will be the bride's only attendant. Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow will arrive from Mexico City to serve as his nephew's best man.

Bridal Party

The ushers will include C. Carleton Brown of Syracuse, N. Y.; Meade Brunet, Mendham, N. J.; Robert A. Chambers, Dr. Beekman, J. Delatour, John Worden, Elwood, Harry Evans, Alexander Gumberg, Hewitt H. Howland, Charles L. Merrill, Albert Ottinger and Lowell Wadmond, all of New York; James C. Hamilton, Waterford, Va.; Lewis G. Kaye of Louisville, Ky.; Charles H. March of Litchfield, Minn.; John Marshall Washington, Brig. Gen. Jay J. Morrow of Englewood, N. J.; Dwight W. Morrow, Jr., Englewood; Walter Stuart Orr, Cornwall, N. Y.; Nathaniel Peter Rathbone, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Jay J. T. Scandrett, Atlanta, Ga.; Frederick Perkin Smith, Bronxville, N. Y.; Winthrop H. Smith of Englewood, N. J.; Col. Edgar Z. Steever, Fredonia, Md., and Jouette Ross Todd of Louisville.

Miss Landenberger is a graduate of Syracuse University and is now engaged in newspaper feature work. Her fiance is a graduate of Amherst and is a member of the law firm of Wilcox, Swiger, Chambers and Scandrett. In addition to being the treasurer of the New York Republican County Committee, he is a member of the University Club, Knollwood Country Club, Bankers Club, Knickerbocker Country Club and the Uptown Club and Burning Tree Club of Washington.

Word comes from Gotham of a wedding on Tuesday morning in the Church of the Immaculate Conception in North Fullerton avenue with the rector, the Rev. Edward Farrell officiating. The bride was Lillian Poole Duffy, daughter of the Edward J. Duffys of Russell terrace, and she married James Gwynne Dougherty of New York, son of Mrs. John Webster Dougherty of Pittsburgh and Beaver, Pa. The ceremony took place at 11 o'clock. And there was a breakfast in the Montclair Golf Club after the ceremony.

Gotham Wedding

Mrs. John Newman Davey of Port Chester was her sister's matron of honor. The bridesmaids included Helen Duffy, another sister; Margaret McCormick, Marie Flanagan, Mabel McCullum of Montclair, Mrs. J. Paul Carey, Jr., and Mrs. Edwin Carey of New York, Mrs. Edwin Stengel of East Orange and Mrs. Peter Conlon of Trenton.

John Webster Dougherty was his brother's best man and the ushers included Alfred P. Duffy and E. J. Duffy, Jr., brothers of the bride, George Childs, John J. Rafferty, Alfred McCormick, Raymond Keenan, Shepard Cornell, Carlton Shanley, Duncan O'Brien, Edwin Stengel, all of Gotham, Regis O'Brien of Buffalo, William Wooldridge of East Orange and John K. Renelli.

Mrs. Dougherty is a graduate of Trinity College; you will be interested to know, and the bridegroom is a graduate of Lehigh University and is a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity. After a honeymoon in Europe, the Doughertys will make their home in New York.

Yesterday there was a smart wedding in Overbrook, Pa., of interest to Pittsburgh folks. The Brooke Lessig Jarretts of Sewickley left last week to attend the wedding and Mr. Jarret was his brother's best man. The bride was Elizabeth Newberry Bland, daughter of the John I. Blands of Overbrook, and she married Richard Brooke Jarrett, son of Mrs. Harry Spotswood Jarrett of Ardmore. The ceremony took place in the Memorial Church of St. Paul at 6 o'clock.

Wedding In East

The maid of honor was Isabel Orr and the bridesmaids included Louise Bland, Mrs. J. C. Curtis Hayes, Jr., cousins of the bride; Sara Smitherman and Ruth Tiernan, John Newberry Bland, brother of the bride, was an usher, and the others included the bride's cousin, Brooke M. Lessig of Pottstown, Pa.; S. Harvey Krouse, J. Staley Heunsler, of Catonsville, Md., and H. Reginald Jarrett of Miami, and Louis Clayton Jarrett of Philadelphia, brothers of the bridegroom.

There was a small reception in the home of the bride's parents after the wedding. The Brooke Jarretts plan to return to Sewickley tomorrow.

The Richard M. Kuhns of the Frontenac Apartments returned yesterday from visiting the Junior Matthew Hillers of Forest Hills, L. I., and next week Mrs. Hiller, who is a sister of Mrs. Kuhn, will arrive in Pittsburgh to visit her parents, the F. J. Forsyths.

Mrs. George W. Chalfant, Dr. and Mrs. Fred Mortimer Clark, Mrs. James M. Schoonmaker, Jr., and Andrey Avinoff will also be patrons for the Rodin sculpture exhibit to open to the public tomorrow in the Junior League club rooms in the Clark Building. Today the private view is being held.

Mrs. J. Watson Over of Beaver road, Glen Osborne, will leave tomorrow, accompanied by Miss Mary and Miss Kathryn Over, for a visit in Old Point Comfort and New York.

Miss Alice Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Kerr of Freeport, Pa., became the bride of Thomas Lehner, son of Mrs. John Lehner of Kittanning, yesterday morning in St. Mary's Catholic Church of Freeport with the Rev. Stephen Benson as officiant. The bride wore a gown of brown lace and tulle, with hat to match, and carried yellow Parnet roses. Miss Marie McNally, of Pittsburgh, as the bride's only attendant, appeared in tangerine crepe with a brown velvet hat and wore a corsage of Killarney roses. Charles Ellermeyer was best man. After an eastern motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Lehner will be at home in Kittanning.

Alliance to Honor Head Wednesday

The year book of the Woman's Alliance, First Unitarian Church, is always worth noting and the list of programs made out on the 1930-31 subject, "Civilization Marches Forward," is no exception. At the opening reception for the president, Mrs. Harvey S. Fouse on Wednesday, Mrs. John G. Howard will forecast the year and there will be music under the direction of Mrs. Edward B. Lee.

Among the talks and discussions which the members will hear are: A review of "Apple Cart" by Mrs. K. C. Heald; "The Unadjusted Voter," Mrs. R. Templeton Smith; a round table on "Which Book?", which will take in all phases of literature; discussion of "Home Arts in Colonial Days," by Mrs. Lee; round table on "Russia," Mrs. Roswell Johnson's talk on "Pleasant Art," "The Story of Gandhi," by Mrs. Lina McKain; "How Russia and India Affect the World Today," by Dr. Roswell Johnson; "Art in Industry," Penelope Redd Jones; "Up in the Air," Louise McPhetridge Thaden; "Why Less Crime in Britain?", Mrs. H. C. Clausen; "Cathedrals," Mrs. George Pearson; "Rebounds of Punishment," the Rev. Frank Edwin Smith; "Art in Advertising," William H. Hetzel; a travelogue by C. E. Skinner; "Novels from Pittsburgh," Elizabeth M. Vermorcken; "The New Generation," which will include discussion of parent training, family technique, references and the ideal grandmother; "Art in Dress," Mrs. Chester B. Story; "Water Fronts and Bridges," Mrs. E. L. Parker; "The Home and the City," John Ihlder; "Art in Living," Mrs. J. O. Handy—all these in addition to the other interesting features.

The College Club membership now grown to 475, will begin the season October 3 with a reception to the new president, Mrs. Ralph W. Davis.

A somewhat unusual feature for the tenth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Conference, National Council of Jewish Women, will be the absence of speakers from the business sessions. Instead, the time will be devoted to reports and discussion. The conference will open October 19 with a supper at the Hotel Schenley, at which Mrs. Leo Half, president of the Pittsburgh Section, will be hostess to the other section presidents. This is to be followed by the opening session at the Y. M. and W. H. A. There will be luncheons both Monday and Tuesday. The annual banquet is to be Monday, when Miss Mary Agnes Boyle, of the Goodman Memorial Theater, Chicago, will entertain with "Broadway and Ballads." On Tuesday evening the delegates will visit the International Art Exhibit. A tea at the Hotel Schenley the afternoon of the twenty-second will give visitors an opportunity to view the work of the Handcraft Guild and the Industrial League.

SUITS ARE IMPORTANT IN THE DAILY STREET MODE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 25.—The street scene should be a well dressed as well as a bright one this season. The delightful clothes created to grace the first brisk days of autumn are, while most attractive, most eminently suitable for out-of-doors wear. The typical sport suit which overstepped its domain and walked into the smartest restaurants at lunch and even at tea time ate out of the picture on these occasions, for our re-discovered femininity demands more colorful and appropriate clothes. The smart suits now an parade are ideal for street wear when they are not too lavishly furred with luxurious pelts; for this type of suit suggests a degree of formality belonging to the afternoon mode. A suit of black woolen with discreetly applied simple fur trimming and a smart blouse is far more suitable for everyday wear than the elaborate suit of velvet with rich furs that one so often sees at luncheon time or even in the morning. A more elaborate blouse can always be added to a comparatively simple suit, should the occasion demand it.

THE IDEAL SUIT, as Worth sees it is both smart and practical and he has demonstrated his theories in a suit, a sketch of which is hereby appended. It is of a soft woolly surfaced black material. The short jacket is nipped in at the natural waistline and has flaring elbow-length over sleeves bordered with squirrel fur dyed a glossy black. There is a standing small collar of the fur. The skirt shows the tiered effect, favored for winter, by this house. The blouse is of white satin with an irregular dotted design in black and gold. The sleeves of the blouse are short, for they end way above the elbow.

THE SMART FROCK, as well as the suit is adding charm to the street scene as we view it this autumn. The sketch of the street frock here shown in conjunction with the suit is quite sufficient to give added impetus to the frock-versus-suit argument which seems to be in progress on both sides of the Atlantic. The advocates of the frock should be able to more than hold their own with the charms of the Drecoll-Beer street frock which is the subject of the sketch. It is of black crepella with trimming of snowy ermine. The bodice is very well arranged with a shallow, curving bolero overtopping curved set-in bands. The unusual skirt has narrow stitched bands interspersed with godets.

Pilsudski Quashes Rivals by Jail or Army Service

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 25. (AP.)—Marshal Pilsudski has his own methods of conducting election campaigns. A large number of opposition former deputies suddenly were called to the colors for military service lasting six weeks on the grounds that during their deputyship they were exempt from the usual summer military duties of reservists.

Meanwhile 20 or so deputies, recently arrested, remain prisoners in a fortress without means of communicating with the outside world. The people are asking if there will be leaders available to carry on a campaign in opposition to the premier.

Alphonse is such a strange [illegible] I have [illegible] it—a [illegible] Everybody has—somethin[illegible] he [illegible] somethin[illegible] cares [illegible] he narrows [illegible] ter—

"You [illegible] what he [illegible] were here [illegible]

"That's [illegible] call the [illegible] And yet I'm sure [illegible] to him [illegible] and day [illegible] years. He's done everything [illegible] me. Everything. But [illegible] I'd be a statue [illegible] desert. It's unlucky."

"He has [illegible] become Mrs. Jeffers."

"How could he [illegible] no idea of such a thing [illegible] until a few hours ago."

"Umm. Something [illegible] the old boy is going to [illegible] into the nice pink [illegible] he hears about [illegible] about you. [illegible] a tear or [illegible] He's a good [illegible] had a few [illegible] time."

Greta's Advice

"He's splendid," said Raquel without stint. "He honestly tried to care for him—that way. He's like a father."

"Well," said Greta. "Alphonse is not exactly what you could call a father. And if he [illegible] couldn't go through life with papa. So there's no use getting yourself in an uproar about it."

"I don't know what I'm [illegible]," Raquel confessed.

"Then don't do anything. Just tune in on the wedding march. Let them dance as likes it. I'll miss you like I would the other half of me if I was a Siamese twin. But you don't hear me crabbing about it."

"Alphonse might be ugly about it. He can be, you know."

"Then be yourself. Hard-boiled. He'll get over it. They all do. You've always claimed you do these bimbos a good turn when you give them the air. That's what you said about Bertie Adams and Stafford."

"Yes," thought Raquel. "And Bill Johnson and Jack Farrell."

"It does sound hard, but it's true," she said to Greta. "I know myself. There are many devils in me. They would turn on any man who bound me against my will. His life would be a hell. Not just an ordinary hell with fire and brimstone either."

Panic Seizes Raquel

Raquel reached her decision. She would not inform Alphonse of her approaching marriage until it had become an established fact. Once she had taken the step there was nothing Alphonse could do about it. Her future with Jerry would be reasonably secure. A week remained in which to accomplish this security. Alphonse would not be in Paris for another week.

She did not stop for sleep. She could not have slept had she tried. Instead she set about packing such things as were personal and enough of the simpler things from her elaborate wardrobe to carry her overseas. Greta helped gabbling the while like an excited young hen over a single chick.

Jerry came in at twilight. Baffled. In a ferment of impatience and thwarted hopes. The French palms had not turned so easily to the greasing. Certain forms must be followed. They could facilitate the happy event for monsieur up to a certain point. Beyond that, it was "impossiebeel!"

"It will mean five days at least, Raquel," he raged as if five days were five eternities. "Even a week. It's preposterous. I felt like wringing a couple of official necks. Five days! Maybe seven!"

A week. Alphonse might return before she had given herself, definitely, to Jerry. He would.

A panic seized her. It shook the [illegible] of her already [illegible] nerves. Just [illegible] afraid. There are [illegible] was a resistance [illegible] happiness. If she [illegible] the corner [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

the provinces and she made a young fortune. She married a chorus boy, old enough to be her son. After a year of misery with him, during which time he squandered two-thirds of her coin, he was arrested on a serious charge. A great deal of bribe money and influence hushed and closed the case. He died a month later!

She let Potter's Field bury him, refusing to claim his body. And with the money she might have spent on his funeral she threw a cocktail party. The reason she spent all that coin to save him from the law is obvious. She spent it to save what is left of her own reputation.

One of the better stories about Lindy is the one concerning a reporter's great scoop. While Lindy was still winging his way to Paree, Hank Wales, of the Chicago Tribune's Paris branch, had an interview with quotes and everything all prepared, merely waiting for the flash of Lindy's happy landing. As soon as the plane landed, Hank instructed his office to release the interview, scooping every paper in the world by 24 hours. Because Lindy, on the following day, gave out the same interview that Wales had written the day before.

How did Wales know what Lindy would say? Simple. He knew the queries the Paree correspondents were going to make, and he knew what the late Ambassador Herrick would tell Lindy to say—so by mixing the two with common sense he hit it exactly.

"Those bold, reprehensible, brave, indispensable, sensible lads of the press!"

The Commonweal, one of the better weeklies, discusses a Mr. Hooper, of Idaho, who sends his writings (which are published) to various journals "without pay or hope of earthly reward." Mr. Hooper even pays his own postage, says the Commonweal.

"There still remain," says the Commonweal, "a few things for which money is not the measure of value, and the 'winged words' of truth are to be numbered among them. The letter-writing apostles need not mind the contrast as to financial reward."

One presumes that the editors of the Commonweal are working for nothing, and, if so, one wonders how they pay their bills.

The Duke and Duchess de Richelieu, of 140 East End avenue, parted recently after a tiff following the interior decorating of their local mansion. The Duke left for Yurrup in a huff, the Duchess sailing only the other day to cry it out with him.

The observation last week (that if you have two O's in your handle your chances for the presidency are better) has excited one lad, who reminds us that if your tag ends with "son" your chances are better.... The double O Presidents, you know, included Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Coolidge and Hoover.

There were more Presidents with "sons"—frixample: Thomas Jefferson, B. Harrison, Andrew Jackson, W. H. Harrison, James Madison, Andrew Johnson and Wilson.

Joe Cook, whose new show, "Fine and Dandy," is in town, could not feature his latest trick, viz: the juggling of seven Austins at once. It appears that Cook was rehearsing the stune and dropped one, which disappeared as mysteriously as Justice Crater's girl promoter.

One of us i agines that the baby Austin that Cook dropped and lost is in his trouser cuff.

You've probably heard about the only sandwich sign woman in the world . . . At any rate, a Times Square beauty parlor engaged her to walk up and down the Long Lane of Short Careers a few years ago . . . She was a sorry sight, but her appearance and shabby apparel provided a wallop . . . The signs she carried read: "If you never want to look like I do at 40 then patronize Soandso's Beauty Shop" . . . She saved her money and one day spent some of it to have herself pretties and gowned . . . Of course, they had to fire her . . . The rumor goes, however, that she still sits home, wondering whether to enter an old lady's home or become a road show ingenue.

G. E. Announces New 500,000 Volt X-Ray

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Sept. 25. — (AP.) — Development of a 500,000 volt X-ray tube, more than twice as powerful as the tubes now used in X-ray therapy, was announced in a radio talk over Station WGY by Ellis L. Manning, physicist of the research laboratory of the General Electric Company.

The half million volt tube was perfected by Dr. W. D. Coolidge, associate director of the laboratory.

Noted Composer Gets Reno Divorce

RENO, Nev., Sept. 25.—(INS.)—Louis Gruenburg, noted American composer, won a divorce here this afternoon from Irene Gruenburg, on charges of cruelty. Gruenburg accused his wife of asking him to give up his career. They were married on July 20, 1914, and have no children. While establishing his legal residence here, Gruenburg has been working on the score for an opera, for which the words were written by John Erskine, novelist.

LAKE BUSINESS ON UP TREND

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—A score of commodity committees reported to the twenty-eighth session of the Great Lakes regional shippers advisory board, that virtually all types of business have passed the low point and that business is either better or showing signs of improving.

Shipments of grain and grain products in the final quarter will aggregate 70,000 carloads, compared to 55,459 a year ago, W. E. Maloney, of Buffalo, chairman of the grain committee, reported.

W. M. Lorenz, of Cleveland, chairman of the steel committee, said sentiment in the industry looks to a decided upward trend in the last quarter.

While railroad car requirements for the automotive business in October will be about 60 per cent of actual shipments for the month last year, November and December needs will pick up, K. A. Moore, assistant traffic manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce said. Automotive concerns will need 10,640 cars in November, compared to 11,165 last year, and in December 12,019 cars against 11,373 used last December.

3 ST. VINCENT BOYS INJURED

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Three St. Vincent College students are in the college hospital as a result of being struck by an automobile while walking along the road from the college to Whitney. The car was driven by Don Shrevar, of Latrobe, who was not held.

The injured students are Charles Wendell, of Pittsburgh, right leg fractured; Henry Blick, of Baltimore, Md., and Robert Myers, of Pittsburgh.

Shevar turned across the road, striking the three youths, to avoid crashing into a steam roller being used in repair work on the road.

Hair that sparkles!

No one can deny the importance of having the hair arranged in the style best suited to the individual type. Much of the effect is lost, however, unless the hair is kept soft, abundant, lustrous.

A million busy women and girls know the easiest way to keep the hair in perfect condition is with Danderine. The first application will show you how marvelously it removes excess oil from the hair; cleanses it; makes it sparkle with new life and lustre. It's so simple to use Danderine. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you arrange your hair! The consistent use of Danderine will dissolve the worst crust of dandruff; soothe, heal the scalp; stimulate the growth of long, silky, abundant hair.

Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. It makes the hair easy to manage; holds it in place for hours. Set your waves with it and see how much longer they stay in.

have advantage of constant Vitamins

The main reason why Nucoa is what it aims to be —the finest margarine possible to produce—is because its makers have spared nothing that Science and Money could give to make it so.

Take vitamins, for instance. Nucoa has the essential vitamins because science sees that they are a part of each fresh batch. The effect of this is to contribute to the vitality of every Nucoa eating family. Nucoa does not depend upon nature and seasons. It does depend upon Science. Margarine cannot be cheap and have these advantages. Nucoa is not cheap—it is economical.

Nucoa is the only margarine guarded by controlled freshness.

Nucoa is the only margarine with a Central Master Control for quality.

Nucoa is the only margarine with a nation-wide organization of carefully selected distributors receiving fresh goods every day who have had years of experience in handling perishable foods and table delicacies.

JOB GAIN SEEN BY GREEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(INS.)—An improvement in the employment situation was seen by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in figures for trade unions in 24 cities showing September unemployment of 21 per cent compared with 22 per cent in August.

Green said:

"We welcome this more definite trend for the better. It indicates improvement in the business situation, at least seasonally. This is the first time in the three years since we have collected figures from trade unions that employment has shown so definite and general an improvement in September. This is partly due of course to the unprecedented number out of work in July and August. But in the present situatin it is encouraging since better employment means more purchasing power for wage earners."

Auto Deaths Rise In Westmoreland

GREENSBURG, Sept. 25.—Autos have claimed more victims during July, August and September in Westmoreland County than in any three consecutive months on record, according to the coroner here.

In the past three months 44 persons have been killed in Westmoreland County, with September's report not yet complete.

Man's Burned Body Discovered on Farm

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 25.—(AP)—The badly burned body of an unidentified man, evidently a murder victim, was found on the farm of Frank De Marco, near here. The victim's skull had been fractured and there were indications he had been bound and gagged. The clothing had been saturated with oil. Wheel tracks indicated the body had been brought by automobile.

Nick Altrock Gives Formula for Experting on World Series

By NICK ALTROCK,
Famous Baseball Comedian.

Your Uncle Nick has laid in his stock of opium and is prepared to expert the world series. I will describe how I do my experting.

First, I open a can of alphabet soup. By crossing this alphabet soup with a bowl of cold consomme, I get an ouija board. From then on, the task gets simpler.

This year, I will have a private bodyguard. That is to prevent anybody from kidnaping me and pouring liquor into me all night so I can't expert against Connie Mack, Gabby Street, Calvin Coolidge and other experts who will be covering the series.

If I don't go around accompanied by burly bodyguards, I could be seized and plied with liquor from now till the end of the series. Of course, I do not have these bodyguards with me 24 hours a day, as they have to get some rest. They lay off guarding me from sundown to midnight and in case any of my rivals are planning to kidnap Uncle Nick, why I will be alone down in front of the postoffice tonight at 8 p. m. It is easier to ply me with rye than Scotch, but I will even take gin.

In case I should get by the postoffice safely tonight, I will be down there again tomorrow night at 8 o'clock and give the kidnapers another chance.

This gives you an idea of how the real experts have to be safeguarded. When I am at the series I also have to take precautions, as a rival expert might kidnap my spelling primer, and then where would I be?

Many admirers are interested in how I arrive at my conclusions in doping a series. It is easy when you know how.

First I compare the rival pitchers of the contending teams, giving each man a percentage of values down to the sixth decimal point. Then I compare the rival catchers and keep on jotting down figures of strength and weakness until the two whole teams are compared.

I then add up the totals of both teams and examine the figures with a microscope. Next I take out my Old Farmer's Almanac (which is not to be confused with the Hotel Almanac) and study what the weather conditions will be. For instance, if the weather is going to be damp and clammy, Flint Rhem might be taken with a chill. So I subtract 17½ per cent of the Cards' pitching strength till the sun comes out again and Flint is back on his feet.

If the almanac says the weather will be dark and cloudy, I know that Lefty Grove's fast ball will be more effective, so I jot down 11¼ per cent extra for the A's. I take all these miniature things into consideration, except the golf courses, and that is why my expert dope is so good.

Finally, when all the figures are computed, and I am pretty well exhausted from comparing strengths with weaknesses, etc., and managerial brains and all that—finally, when all this data is before me, I flip a coin to decide which team will win.

That is the experting system I use and it's a good one. The old law of averages always works and I am only wrong 50 per cent of the time, which puts me in first place ahead of the other experts. Some of them are so far below zero they should be covering the Antarctic with Byrd instead of the world series.

NEW SHORTSTOP TO REPLACE BARTELL

THE LOCAL BASEBALL season is over and the Pirates have gone for another year, a four-game series in St. Louis being scheduled to wind up the first pennant campaign since 1918 in which the Buccaneers failed to finish in the first division. It is strongly probable that when the club next appears at Forbes Field in the spring of 1931 it will present an altered appearance, at least so far as the infield is concerned, aside from the possibility of a managerial change. A new shortstop is certain, and there is no assurance that a shift will not also be made at first base.

Dick Bartell

Whether or not Gus Suhr is retained for another season at the initial sack probably will depend upon the chances for the making of a winter deal. If a better man can be obtained Suhr will be dropped in all likelihood, but naturally the local club will hang on to Gus if it finds itself unable to strengthen the position. There is no longer any doubt about a change at shortstop, however, Dick Bartell's days on the Pirate crew are numbered.

SHORTFIELD SHIFTS MADE from time to time during the season now ending indicated that Bartell was not fitting smoothly into Buccaneer bosses' scheme of things. Convincing signs that a change is planned came yesterday in the development that waivers had been asked on the player as published exclusively in The Sun-Telegraph, followed by the action of the management in letting Dick depart for his California home instead of taking him on the final trip to St. Louis.

Of course, it is not to be expected that Bartell will go to the minors. A waiver request on a player of his type is generally only a feeler, designed to bring information as to what club wants him and as to the direction in which a deal can be made to best advantage. There can be no trading in the majors until after next Sunday, but the waiver request had to go in yesterday, as baseball law fixes a closed period from September 25 to October 20, both dates inclusive, during which inter-league waivers cannot be asked. A deal involving the transfer of Bartell to some other club probably will be attempted soon after the season closes.

ASIDE FROM THE rapid advance of the Dukes toward the front ranks of college football in a playing sense, Duquesne University and Graduate Manager John D. Holahan must be given credit for keeping right up with the parade in progressive business policies.

John D. Holahan

Duquesne's athletic chiefs were the first in this part of the country to adopt a signaling system whereby the spectators are instantly informed as to the nature of the offense for which a penalty is imposed, and now they are about to add another improvement in the interests of their patrons.

IT IS ANNOUNCED by Manager Holahan that in preparation for the Bluffites' game with Slippery Rock at Forbes Field tomorrow night, and for all of the Dukes' subsequent games at home, a microphone system is being installed. Through amplifiers placed in the lower and upper decks of the grandstand and in the left-field bleachers, announcements will be made as each game progresses, keeping the spectators informed as to the identity of the player carrying the ball, the distance gained or lost, the number of the down, the yardage needed, and all other details. In the grandstand alone there will be 16 amplifiers, eight in each deck. It is a progressive move that is certain to meet with the approval of the fans.

ANOTHER NEW RECORD will be held by Bobby Jones if he comes through at Merion. He will be the first golfer ever to win the United States amateur championship five times. He shares the present record of four with Jerry Travers. In 12 previous tournaments, aside from his four wins, Bobby was runner-up twice, reached the semi-finals twice, was stopped in the third round twice, in the second round once and in the first round once.

The Georgian's best run was from 1924 to 1928, inclusive. In that span of five years he won the championship four times and was runner-up on the other occasion. His record for the tournament follows: 1916, defeated in third round; 1917-18, no tournaments; 1919, runner-up; 1920, defeated in semi-final; 1921, defeated in third round; 1922, defeated in semi-final; 1923, defeated in second round; 1924, won title; 1925, won title; 1926, runner-up; 1927, won title; 1928, won title; 1929, defeated in first round.

TAKING A TIP from the Pittsburgh club's announcement that it would attempt to make a pitcher of Outfielder Jim Mosolf, the Detroit management tried to do the same thing with Shortstop Mark Koenig recently. But from all reports, the Tiger leaders are convinced that it can't be done.

Mark Koenig

Koenig, off shortstop duty because of eye trouble which has forced him to wear spectacles, showed a fast ball but his curve was not of a major league grade, he did not have a good slow ball, and on top of that he lacked control. It has been suggested that, while he might be able to acquire control in time, he would then have to something to control. That threatens to be no lot a job, so if Koenig remains in the big show it will hardly be as a pitcher.

GEORGE VON ELM announced before the present national amateur golf tournament at Merion got under way that it would be his farewell tourney as an amateur, win lose or draw. He did not pass out without leaving a mark to make his departure memorable, as all previous records for drawn-out play were shattered by the second-round match in which he and Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., played 10 extra holes before McCarthy won at the 28th. Five was the high-

BUCS, CARDS OPEN SERIES TODAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25.—The Pirates and Cardinals today are all set for an important series, even though it be the last set of games on each club's schedule. The important matter of clinching the pennant is put up to the Redbirds, and, as the Pirates also are in a fighting mood, there is bound to be some excitement in the battles starting this afternoon.

But the Buccos are going into the significant series without the services of Peppery Dick Bartell. Richard the Lionhearted did not accompany the club to St. Louis. He was excused from further play, according to the information furnished by the Pittsburgh officials, but, owing to the importance of the series between the league leaders and the Pirates, the absence of Bartell may be the subject of warm comment among the Chicago players and their supporters, inasmuch as the Bruins are still in the flag fight.

COMPLAINTS EXPECTED

It was pointed out by some of the baseball men that President Heydler, of the National League, a few days ago, sent letters to all pilots requesting them to keep their best lineup intact when engaged with a flag contender. The Pirates bumped off one flag aspirant after another with the aggressive shortstop at his post, so that it would not be surprising to hear some complaints about the departure of Richard. Dick, it was said, would leave Pittsburgh for his California home soon.

Well-founded reports are to the effect that the Pittsburgh officials are getting ready to make a trade involving Bartell. Dick has had a big season offensively and his defensive efforts at times have been brilliant, although he has made many errors this summer. It is stated that waivers have been asked on the player with a view of feeling out clubs who might wish to swap for the lively one.

KREMER OR BRAME

Ben Sankey, who performed in Dick's position yesterday at Forbes Field, will be at the same post today.

Either Remy Kremer or Ervin Brame will take on the Redbirds in the first fight. Burleigh Grimes has had sufficient rest, so the Buccos may have to swing against the moist offerings of their former burnkmate. Each team has a first-string performer ready to start each battle.

As the race stands now, the Redbirds must win two of the four contests to clinch the flag. They are three games ahead of the Cubs, who today will take on the Reds in the first battle of a four-game set.

BUCS TOP REDS

The Pirates closed their home season yesterday with a victory over the Reds in a game that had to be stopped in the sixth inning on account of rain. The score was 5 to 1.

Rain halted the contest for 40 minutes in the third round and

Auda Abu Tayi, chieftain of the Howeitat tribe, is considered the most famous fighter in the Arabian Desert today, and during the Arabian Revolution was an intimate associate of the well-known Colonel Lawrence. During his innumerable raids on the desert tribes, Auda killed 86 men in hand-to-hand combat—not counting the Turks, whom Auda considers as women. BARTELL, BUCS IN WRANGLE

Dick Bartell, star shortstop, and the Pirate management engaged in hot words before the player was left behind as his teammates left last night for St. Louis to close the season with a four-game series.

This developed today as an aftermath to the exclusive announcement in yesterday's late editions of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph that waivers had been asked on the player.

The details of the controversy were not available, but it is believed to revolve about Bartell's transportation back to his home in California at the end of the season. It culminated in the suspension of Dick for the last five days.

SHARKEY HITS 200 POUNDS

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Jack Sharkey scaled an even 200 pounds when he and Victorio Campolo, of Argentina, weighed in this afternoon for tonight's heavyweight bout at the Yankee Stadium.

Campolo, weighing 222½, had less of an advantage than had been expected, as Sharkey registered considerably more than he has for any previous fight.

When the boxers appeared at the Stadium for the weighing-in, Sharkey became involved in a noisy altercation with a cameraman and refused to pose for photographs.

HOMANS LEADS LEHMAN

Gene Homans, New Jersey star, piled up the most commanding lead of the morning when he won three straight holes to go 4 up on Johnny Lehman, of Chicago, the Western amateur champion.

Maurice (Iron Man) McCarthy, black-haired New York youngster, fought Jess Sweetser to a standstill in a ding-dong match and was 1 up at the end of the morning round.

Charles Seaver, 19-year-old Los Angeles youth, after being 2 down at the turn and still 2 down at the eleventh, staged a rally and went 1 up over Billy McPhail, of Boston, for the round.

Homans led Lehman all the way. The former Princeton star shot the best golf of the morning, finishing with a 73, only three over par, while his opponent had an approximate 78. The cards:

JONES OFF FORM

Jones was away off form and hard pressed to gain any kind of a lead on Coleman, whose poor putting cost him chances at least to hold the triple champion on even terms. Bobby didn't have a single birdie and on many holes he was struggling to get his par, winding up with a score of 76 to Coleman's 78.

For the third time in two straight matches, the Georgian drove out of bounds. He three-putted on two holes, besides hav-

HIGHLAND STAR LEADS FIELD BY STROKE

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Sept. 25.—With the course well soaked as a result of yesterday's rain and no signs of letup in the terrific scoring pace which featured the 36-hole qualifying round, 16 top-notch golfers were prepared to begin match play at the Riverside Golf Club here today to decide the Northwestern Pennsylvania Amateur championship. Eighty other players will engage in match play in five flights, with prizes awaiting the winner and runnerup in each division.

The heavy showers of yesterday failed to check the splendid scoring which has marked the tournament so far, and the 36-hole card of 142 with which Sam Parks, Jr., of the Highland Country Club won the medalist prize was the same count credited to Bobby Jones in leading the National amateur field at Merion. The highest score to qualify in the first flight was 152, five strokes better than last year, while the highest to make the grade in the second sixteen was 157, two strokes higher than the maximum score in the National amateur qualifier which selected 32 players for match play.

LOW SCORING

The scoring in the qualifying round here is almost unprecedented. Arthur (Ducky) Yates, Rochester, N. Y., amateur, who has played in 212 tournaments during the past several years, branded the local competition yesterday as the most severe he has ever witnessed.

Parks' 142 card gave him a lead of only one stroke over B. F. Kraffert, Jr., Titusville banker, who trotted in with a fine 71 yesterday. One shot back of Kraffert was James J. Crookston, of Stanton Heights, who led Ducky Yates by one stroke, the New Yorker turning in a 72 yesterday for a 145-total.

The list of qualifiers in the championship bracket follows:

Sam Parks, Jr., Highland, 142; B. F. Kraffert, Jr., Titusville, 143; J. W. Crookston, Stanton Heights, 144; Arthur Yates, Rochester, N. Y., 145; Geo. McCall, Bellaire, 146; E. H. Silliman, Jamestown, N. Y., 146; James Lappen, Pittsburgh Field Club, 146; Harold Dukes, Oil City, 146; W. C. Crutchlow, Titusville, 150; Ray Walsh, Erie, 151; Alex Dempster, Syracuse, N. Y., 151; George McClure, Chartiers Heights, 152; Dr. Joe Stanger, Highland, 152; Carl Scott, Pittsburgh, 152; Frank Nash, Highland, 154; F. H. Melton, Conneaut Lake, 152.

OAKMONT WINS TITLE

The Oakmont Country Club won the Section 1 championship of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania Team League, by defeating the Field Club yesterday. The final standings are as follows:

Oakmont, 48 points; Allegheny, 47 points; Field Club, 30 points; Fox Chapel, 28 points; Edgewood, 27 points; Stanton Heights, 19 points; Shannopin, 19 points; Chartiers Heights, 14 points.

Chartiers Heights will play Longue Vue next week to determine whether or not it is to be a first-division member next season.

In the matches yesterday Edgewood defeated Stanton Heights, 5 to 1; Shannopin defeated Fox Chapel, 5 to 3; Allegheny defeated Chartiers Heights, 8 to 0, and Oakmont defeated the Field Club, 7 to 1.

the showers were so heavy in the sixth that play ceased again. In less than 10 minutes the officials ruled that the ground was too wet for action.

Larry French won a verdict over Owen Carroll, former American League star. The home triumph made it 14 out of 22 for the Freebooters in the season's play. Capt. Traynor made a homer, with Lefty Dugas on base, in the first round.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK
MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 16.

After it was known that I no longer would manage Pittsburgh and was a free agent, Ban B. Johnson, then president of the Western League, sent me word that the Milwaukee club, of his circuit, would like to negotiate with me for my services as manager for 1897.

Connie Mack

I was invited to go to Chicago for a conference. I accepted this invitation and met Matt Killilea, president of the club, and Fred Gross, secretary.

The conference lasted several hours and at the finish I signed a contract to manage Milwaukee, and, during the winter, I thought so much of the future there that I bought a quarter interest in the club.

When I went to Milwaukee to take charge of the team in the spring of 1897, I found that most of the clubs in the circuit were owned by experienced baseball men. Charley Comiskey was at St. Paul, Jimmy Manning at Kansas City and Tom Loftus at Grand Rapids and later Columbus, W. K. Watkins at Indianapolis, while the other clubs had men of this caliber.

PROFITABLE YEARS

I count the four years I spent at Milwaukee the most beneficial in my career, for they gave me an insight into the game from all angles. Not only did I manage the team, but I signed the players, named the salaries and also handled all of the business of the club.

On the road everything, including the business details, was in my hands. I picked the trains, bought the transportation, made the hotel reservations.

I paid all the bills and collected the checks coming to us as our share of receipts. Countless problems arose and I taught myself how to meet them.

It was a training that stood me in good stead when I organized the Athletics in Philadelphia a few years later. I always have figured that my decision to go to Milwaukee following my release at Pittsburgh was one of the best moves I ever made, for the reasons I have just offered.

Therefore, I give the Milwaukee club a lot of credit for any success I attained in baseball in later years.

The Western League was operated on real business principles because Ban Johnson, the president, would not have it any other way.

He was a most able leader and an untiring worker. He was successful in making the league a going concern because he had the foresight to surround himself with owners and managers who had made reputations in the major leagues.

President Johnson visited all clubs regularly and he never failed to pound it into our heads that he was going to build up the circuit by playing good, hard, clean baseball.

AMERICAN LEAGUE BOOM

His talks always made a distinct impression with me and helped me in later years.

While nothing of great moment happened in my first three years at Milwaukee, the final year of 1900 was fraught with important events that led to the biggest upheaval that baseball has known.

Ban Johnson was too much of an enthusiast to stand still in contentment. By some skillful finessing, he was able to extend his loop to Chicago.

Charley Comiskey transferred his St. Paul Club to Chicago and thereby the league had a foothold in the second largest city in America.

It was a bloodless invasion. To do this Comiskey had to gain the consent of James Hart, president of the Chicaga National League club. No major league president would do today what unsuspecting Hart did then.

He agreed to let Comiskey in Chicago provided the Old Roman would give an option on two or three players each season. Comiskey readily consented.

Hart had been informed that Comiskey was going to locate his park in the stockyards district of the South Side, miles away from the National League grounds, in the more refined North Side.

CIRCUIT STRENGTHENED

The Chicago president thought that Comiskey, isolated in the stockyards district, never would be a flea bite to his baseball interests. He might as well be in another state, thought Hart. He soon was to bitterly regret this philanthropy.

Elated over this success, President Johnson began to strengthen other weak spots in his league. Cleveland and Buffalo were added to the circuit.

This made the circuit consist of Chicago, Kansas City, Minneapolis and Milwaukee in the West and Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo and Columbus in the East.

As a fitting climax, the irrepressible Johnson changed the name of the circuit to the American League. In one off-season, Johnson had invaded Chicago, placed teams in Cleveland, and Buffalo and now was the head of the most powerful minor league in America.

Ban Johnson kept hounding every owner to strengthen, after this expansion.

Comiskey, delighted over his good fortune in getting into Chicago, signed Dick Padden, formerly of Pittsburgh, as his captain and second baseman and also acquired a lot of other former major league stars to which he added a number of promising youths.

For my part, I sought principally young players and obtained a number who made good later in the fast set. Among them were Dave Fultz, who was to play with me in Philadelphia later; Widow Conroy, who was with the New York team subsequently; Jimmy Durke, a fine third baseman, who now is coach of the Cubs; Pitcher Frank Sparks, later with the Phillies, and many others.

TICKETS MAILED TO WINNERS

Tickets are in the mail for the winners in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pitt All-Time Team football contest eligible to receive pasteboards for the opening contest with Waynesburg College at the Stadium next Saturday. This includes all of those who guessed six of the members of the "official" team correctly and also the 59 season ticket winners who guessed the entire team.

The season ticket winners are receiving their ducats for all home games at once.

Tickets for other home battles will be mailed out within a few days. A recheck of some of the ballots, where this was requested, has been made and corrections made where necessary. No changes will be made after this date, however, the contest being officially closed.

Mrs. Hill Ties Mark; Virginia Keeps Lead

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, yesterday rattled off a 77 over the Glenview course to tie the new record set by Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, but failed to gain much ground in the second round of the women's Western 72-hole derby event.

While Mrs. Hill was adding the 77 to her 84, Miss Van Wie retained a big lead by scoring a 79 to give her a 36-hole total of 156, six strokes in front of the Kansas City star. Mrs. Lee Mida, of Chicago, shot an 85, to take third position with 171.

Mobilgas

IT'S ALIVE!!
IT'S ALIVE!!!

YOU bet it's alive—but it's no freak—this newest gasoline. It had to be alive to keep pace with modern motors and their new fuel requirements.

The makers of Mobiloil knew, as you do, that cars and motors have changed. They knew that the modern motor needs a modern fuel. Mobilgas is modernized by Vacuum's process of distillation.

It's right for the car you drive today . . . in anti-knock, in cleanliness, in economy, in every phase of performance. And the price is the same as the price of regular gasoline.

Switch for a week and let your car decide.

CARNEGIE LEAVES FOR BUFFALO TOMORROW

TECH SQUAD HOLDS FINAL DRILL TODAY

Feeling that they have done everything possible to prepare their squad for its opening game against the University of Buffalo, at Buffalo, on Saturday, Coaches Steffen and Waddell planned to conclude their practice with this afternoon's session, assemble what boys who have no classes tomorrow afternoon for a final limbering up, and entrain for the Lake City at 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

"In physical condition, we certainly are ready for the opener," Steffen said at the close of yesterday's practice. "I am not so sure that our offense will function as I would like to have it. I am pleased that the boys who were injured in training camp are all available now if we need them. We will send the best-conditioned team onto the field that has ever represented Carnegie in an opening game.

"But I fear that we will have a little tougher opposition at Buffalo than most people believe. Of course I believe we will win. What is worrying me is the possibility of some of our important players being tied up so badly that they may not be available for Georgia Tech on October 11. We are not so well off for reserve strength as we were several weeks ago, and our tackle problem is an acute one.

"I will stand pat on the line that I named on Tuesday, but I still am not sure of the starters at left halfback and fullback."

This means that Dutch Eyth, John Graveno, Joe Morbito and John Karcis will not be sure, even when they leave Pittsburgh, which two will take the field against Buffalo.

PITT TO DECIDE LINEUP

By today Jock Sutherland probably will be decided upon his lineup for the opening game against Waynesburg. After four weeks of intensive drill, during which he has changed his lineup almost every day, the silent Scot will be able to go into a huddle with his assistants and announce his starting team for the opener. No scrimmage is scheduled for today, and he will be forced to choose his men according to the way they work in signal drill, and by their physical condition.

Yesterday's rain gave the Panthers an opportunity to handle a wet ball, but Sutherland took no risks of having anyone hurt on the slippery ground and there was no rough work. The team that ran through signals for almost an hour was made up of Jim MacMurdo and Eddie Hirschberg at the ends, Chuck Tully and Jess Quatse at the tackles, Walter Babic and Ernie Lewis at the guards, Daugherty at center, Eddie Baker at quarter, Buzz Brown and Josh Williams at the halves, and Jimmy Clark at fullback.

DUKES PREP FOR TEACHERS

The Dukes step out to Forbes Field tonight for the daily workout, and Head Coach Elmer Layden is laying down the law in these daily drills of his Night Riders. A smoother, faster and stronger eleven will go into action tomorrow night against Coach Kerr Thompson's Slippery Rock State College gridders, who are going after a reputation as upset artists.

The forward pass will appear under new guises in the Duquesne University play in tomorrow night's game, and while a serious angle is lent the struggle, due to the lack of a kicker on the part of the Dukes, the Red and Blue quarterbacks will have a big bag of tricks at their command and will be ready to use their contents wisely.

Doggo Burns is going to be the brunt of the running attack. Jack is known on the campus as "Jack the Giant Killer," and he is rapidly proving that on the football field.

JACKETS SHIFTED

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 25.—In an effort to strengthen his backfield for the University of Pittsburgh game Saturday, Coach Frank Wolf, of Waynesburg College, shifted Elmer Patsch from tackle to halfback. Patsch, former Canonsburg High star, is big and fast and may develop into a satisfactory ball carrier. It is likely that Capt. Frank Demoise, Yellow Jacket fullback, will be in the lineup Saturday. He has been on the sidelines for several weeks because of injuries. Coach Wolf is sending his men through two-hour drills daily.

W. VA. LINEUP UNDECIDED

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Just who will play in West Virginia University's line Saturday when the Mountaineer football team meets West Virginia Wesleyan will be a hard thing to guess until the team takes the field. Coach Ira Rodgers has been giving every man on the squad of three teams a chance this week to show what he can do.

Rodgers was not satisfied with the tackling of his linemen last week in the Duquesne game and has had them practicing tackling all week. They tapered off yesterday with a long dummy scrimmage and signal drills.

D. & E. GOES WEST

ELKINS, W. Va., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Several hundred citizens of Elkins and students of Davis and Elkins College were at the station last night to see the Scarlet Hurricane football squad off on its trip to North Dakota, where Saturday the team will play the North Dakota State College Bisons at Grand Forks. A week from Saturday, Davis and Elkins will play the University of North Dakota Flickertails at Fargo.

INJURIES HIT ST. VINCENTS

LATROBE, Pa., Sept. 25.—Injuries, the dread of all coaches, has taken hold on the St. Vincent's football squad and the problems that face Coaches Crowe and Edwards are mounting daily. With Sappone out with a broken ankle, received in the Geneva game, and a big job on hand in finding a man to fit in his place, the coaches thought they had received their share of hard luck until yesterday's practice, when both the regular guards, Yankovitch and Pipik, were injured in practice.

With Pipik, with a bad wrist, and Yankovich, limping badly on a sprained ankle, the chances of the Bear Cats in the game with Westinghouse Saturday appear mighty slim. Pipik may be in shape for the contest that will open the Bear Cats home season, but it looks like the veteran Yankovich will be out for a least a full week, perhaps longer.

Sport Vignettes

Babe Ruth, in his first analytical story on the world series, in today's issue, makes quite a point when he says that steadiness is one of the main factors that have made the Athletics a great team. . . . Their defense is so tight that they don't need a lot of runs to win games. . . . The same rule extends to all other sports. . . . The best asset any boxer, golfer, tennis player or other contender can have in a pinch is steadiness. . . . Lack of steadiness has made Jack Sharkey, for instance, the most erratic star in his profession. . . . In all other departments he is head and shoulders over everybody in his class and should be the world champion.

When it comes to versatility in sports, hand the palm to Eddie Baker, the Pitt quarterback. . . . Eddie this season will call the signals, lead the interference, do the punting, kick the field goals, if any, handle part of the passing, and kick off. . . . And, as soon as the football season is over, he will be back on the Panther basketball team, than which, in recent seasons, there haven't been any better. . . . Jack Sharkey still lacks confidence in himself. . . . Primo Carnera watched him work out the other day for his fight with Victorio Campolo, that other giant, tonight, and, after Primo left, the big Lith cracked: "Is that all the bigger he is? I'll knock out that bum in a round any time." . . . And the garrulous one may have his hands full beating Campolo tonight.

A New York newspaper is printing an expose on the racket conditions surrounding the boxing game in which it promises to name names and places and dates, and a lot of the bigwigs of the sport are beginning to squirm, fearing it may lead to a repeal of the Walker law. . . . Rogers Hornsby may start off next season as the manager of the Cubs the most thoroughly despised man in the sport because he is taking the place of a popular man, Joe McCarthy, whose greatest sin, Chicagoans say, was that he wouldn't jerk a pitcher under fire, thus causing the loss of many games that might have been saved. . . . At that, we believe the McCarthy theory to be a good one. . . . Why shouldn't a pitcher be fit, after several days' rest, to pitch nine innings and work out of his own holes? Too much coddling and relieving of the moundsmen has spoiled them as a class.—HARRY KECK.

DEFENSE MACKS' BEST ASSET, RUTH SAYS

By BABE RUTH,
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

There are two strong points about the Athletics that cannot be emphasized too much as they go into their second world series in two years. One concerns their defense, which allows few of those real heavy scores to be rolled up against them. The other is their tendency to step out in the late innings and get enough runs to carry them through a tight game.

Babe Ruth

We have been looking at these things in our league ever since the A's became strong pennant contenders. National Leaguers must remember them from the series with the Cubs last year. In four of the five games the Cubs scored a total of only nine runs. There was the power of defense. In the one game which showed Joe McCarthy's team doing any real scoring the A's made that famous rally with 10 hits and 10 runs in the seventh inning. That was the fourth game. They put on a ninth-inning rally to take the fifth game when it seemed certain that the Cubs were winners.

NOT GREAT HITTERS

If batting records decided a series, the A's would be sunk now. Their team hitting is far below six National League clubs and three of their own league. Simmons, Cochrane and Foxx stand out as strong hitters, but the remainder of the cast runs from fair to light. As a hitting and scoring machine, Connie Mack's team will trail its National League rival. But we have found in our league that the A's can win consistently and let other teams take the hitting and scoring honors.

Tight defense is the answer. By defense I don't mean simply the stopping of grounders and the catching of flies. It includes pitching as well as the backstopping, infielding and outfielding. Without any question, the A's are tougher to score on than any other team in our league. They make fewer errors. They get tighter pitching. You seldom see another club completely overpower Connie's team with hits and runs to win by a top-heavy score. The A's can pull themselves together and stop rallies better than any other team that I know of.

The power of the A's defense is best told in figures. Here is a team that is clearly outhatted by nine of the 15 other big league clubs. And yet Mack's team leads them all by a good margin in winning ball games. No other team in either league will enjoy the distinction of winning 100 games.

The value of team balance over the base hit is strongly indicated in the 1930 returns. One Philadelphia club has been hitting around .315 all season and it is completely sunk in last place. The other one is hitting around .290 and it walked into a pennant with plenty to spare. The A's did not need any such hitting strength, because they have had a powerful defense to work with an attack that might be called only a little above normal.

Take that infield of the Athletics man for man. They are good ball players, but none of them stands out above all others at these positions. But we have played games against them when it seemed almost impossible to get a ball through that infield. The game they play is not so flashy as it is steady. It is on the infield that most errors are made and the Athletics have made fewer errors this year than any other major league club.

TOUGH TO SCORE ON

The outfield defense is all that any manager could ask. All Mack's outfielders cover a lot of ground. The fact that Al Simmons is such a good hitter is inclined to make some people overlook his fielding. He looks clumsy as he starts after a ball, but I regard him as a really great outfielder. He can travel far and he can throw. I like the A's outfield better than their infield, but, as I said before, that infield will make fewer mistakes than any other you can name.

Catching, too, is a big part to be considered in defensive play. But why talk about the A's catching? Everybody knows about Mickey Cochrane.

Win or lose, the A's will make scoring tough for the other fellows.

GLICK TO BOX HERRERA AT GARDEN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Announcement of the opening card for Motor Square Garden, one week from next Monday night, and changes in the programs at Hickey Park, Millvale, tonight, and at the Moose Temple tomorrow night feature today's boxing news.

Tony Herrera, Mexican lightweight star, of Chicago, a prime favorite with the local fans, and Joe Glick, of New York, who has boxed all of the leading lightweights and junior-lightweights, will top the opening bill at the Garden. Harry Harris, Gene Tunney's "double," from Bellaire, O., who moved to Pittsburgh yesterday to establish training quarters, will be one of the principals in the eight-round semi-final.

MALCO CANCELS BOUT

A change was caused in tonight's program at Hickey Park when Tom Malco, Soho welterweight, who was to meet Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, in the main bout, came up with a bad hand and said he couldn't go through with the match. Matchmaker Harley Luck immediately got busy and pulled Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, out of his eight-round semi-final with Cowboy DeLuca, of Lawrenceville, and paired him off with Randall for the finale and secured Jackie Herman, of Wheeling, W. Va., as a substitute against the Cowboy. The two preliminaries stand. Anastasio Vacquerio, the Panamanian bantamweight, meeting Terry McManus, of Lawrenceville, in the second bout, and Mose Butch, of Oakland, and Young Nanci, of Swissvale, boxing the opener. The change is a break for Yarosz, who really has a fine record, but never has had a chance to impress the local fans under favorable conditions.

CHAMBERS TO BOX WRIGHT

The switch at the Moose list in the opening of Georgie Chambers, of the East End, to take the place of Nick Polis, of Aliquippa, against Snowflakes Wright in the second bout. Polis was injured in a motorcycle accident a few nights ago. Battling Gizzy and Chet Smallwood, box the 10-round main bout. Mickey Solomen and Billy Brent the eight-round semi-final and Steve Senich and Johnny Montebano the opener.

If Jack Sharkey is himself tonight, he ought to outpoint Victorio Campolo, the Argentine giant, in their 15-round bout at the Yankee Stadium in New York. Paul Cavalier meets Mike Jankovitch and Roy Wallace and Joe Bantour are in 10-round preliminaries. Other bouts listed for tonight include: Al Friedman vs. Jack Gagnon and George Gomar vs. Mark House, Duquesne Arena; King Larsen vs. Freddie Mitchell, Brockton, Mass., and Eddie (Kid) Whalen vs. Billy Kraut, Fort Hamilton, L. Willie Cunningham, formerly of Buffalo, is located in McKees Rocks and is ready to box anybody in the featherweight class. He has met Carl Tremaine and Pete Sivo in Buffalo and Ken Hargraves and Bobby Burns here.

SECOND LITTLE SERIES GAME CALLED OFF

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Rain today caused the postponement of the second battle of the "little world series" between Louisville, of the American Association, and Rochester, of the International League.

One big inning in which they scored six times was sufficient to give Louisville, a 7-to-3 victory over Rochester yesterday, in the first game. The inning was the fourth. Through two wide breaches in the home club defense, the Kentuckians poured four hits and two walks for their winning margin.

Rochester's vaunted attack netted them 11 clean hits, two more than their rivals were able to amass, but they were unable to connect with the offerings of Phil Weinert, rugged Louisville lefthander, in the pinches. Weinert pitched a cool, heady game. He was aided immeasurably by the thrilling defensive work of Butch Simons, fleet Louisville centerfielder. Simons ranged from deep right center to left center, making seven catches, three of which were spectacular.

Overcast skies kept the attendance to 8,000.

NEW GRID CONFERENCE TO LIFT LID SUNDAY

CLUB ROSTERS SET FOR OPENERS

By TOM BIRKS

Plenty of interest is being manifest in the opening games of the independent gridiron conference scheduled for Sunday, when, at West View Park, the McKeesport Olympics hook up with the Muzzio outfit, and, at the Quarry Stadium, Turtle Creek, the McChesneytown team battles with East Pittsburgh.

Next Wednesday the third game of the opening week will be staged at Parnassus High School Field, the Burns A. A. of New Kensington, meeting the Hope Harvey Majestics, in an evening game under the flood lights.

The West View list of players, announced on Monday in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will have one change. Stack has been dropped and Scott added. Scott was with the Olympics for a couple of weeks.

The Olympic list of eligible players for the West View game is as follows: Dangerfield, Barnes, Williams, Dunlay, Sapp, Ford, Boyer, Weston, Pottersnack, Fyock, Minnick, Contrella, English, Isenberg, McCurdy, Kaletz, Zoltac, Toline, Detwalter and Hirshburg.

The Burns list follows: Heinzer, Cullen, Graham, Ecker, Pendro, Deliman, Parkinson, Uanssa, McKean, Cully, Barbero, Thompson, Chili, Gusanovic, Campbell, Lutz, Halpate, Mercurio, Sharkey and Urik.

Jim Rooney, manager of the Majestic football club, announces the 20 players signed to play Conferences games and they are requested to report for practice this evening. The roster follows: Levey, Jim Rooney, John Rooney, Hull, Glenn, Kelsch, Sweeney, Vaughn, Guarino, Moran, Scanlon, Nelson, Bronic, Skender, Harris, Greenberger, Karcis, O'Malley, Red Whitmore and Benedict. The Majestics want a game away from home Sunday. Call Fairfax 3178.

Talent abounds on the two lists. Tomorrow the East Pittsburgh and McChesneytown rosters will be announced. It would seem fine crowds will be the order of things in the conference and the fans are going to see a high-class brand of independent football.

SWEETSER TRAILS

Sweetser and McCarthy never were separated by more than a single hole and most of the time they were all square, but the younger man, whose play has been the sensation of the tournament, finished stronger to gain a slight lead. "Ironman Mac," who beat George Von Elm at the tenth extra hole last evening, was in serious trouble only on the seventeenth, while Sweetser was frequently wild and putting in erratic fashion. Big Jess laid his tee shot three feet from the cup on the short thirteenth for a birdie, but then drove out of bounds on the fourteenth. The cards:

Seaver was nervous at the outset, going out of bounds on the very first hole and trailing the veteran McPhail by two holes at the turn. McPhail began slipping on the twelfth however, loving that hole and also the fourteenth as Seaver squared the match. The youngster chipped to six inches of the cup on the eighteenth to clinch a four and win when McPhail missed a simple two-fotter.

JONES 'WARMS UP'

Jones slipped out to a spot above the eighteenth fairway to hit a few practice shots before the start of the second round. Quite a number of customers strolled down from the club house environs to gape at him and loose a few "Ah's!" and "Oh's!"

The practice was wholly perfunctory and through it all his opponent lolled on the veranda looking like a man who'd just been advised by a physician not to start any continued stories.

est number of extra holes ever played in a tournament match before. This, with the elimination of every seeded player before the third round, will give the Merion tourney a place of its own in golf history, even if it is so old-fashioned otherwise as to result in a victory for Bobby Jones.

BY A RATHER odd co-incidence, the closing game of Pittsburgh's baseball season, as well as the opening event, was interrupted by the weather man before a full contest could be played, with the same team, the Reds, opposing the Pirates, and the same pitcher, Larry French, working for the locals. Snow stopped the opener on April 23 after two innings, and rain halted the wind-up number in the sixth round.

The Buccaneers won 42 and lost 35 of their 77 games on the home grounds during 1931. They won eight and lost three against both St. Louis and Philadelphia here, won seven and lost four against Cincinnati, won six and lost five against Boston, won five and lost six against both Chicago and Brooklyn, and won three and lost eight against New York. Their road record is 37 won and 36 lost.

TWO SHARON BASEBALL fans write for a sketch of the career of Pitcher Flint Rhem to settle an argument as to whether or not he ever pitched for any club in the major leagues other than the St. Louis Cardinals. He did not. He has never been on the roster of any other club in the big show.

The Cardinals signed Rhem while he was at Clemons (S. C.) A. & M. College, and sent him to Fort Smith in the Western Association for seasoning in 1924. He was recalled during the latter part of that season and remained with the Cards until the close of the 1928 season. He was sent to Minneapolis in the American Association under option and pitched there last year, being recalled by St. Louis for 1930.

Billy Johnston

FROM CALIFORNIA, WHERE tennis stars are bred in record-breaking numbers, comes a contradiction of the general impression that when Johnny Doeg recently won the national singles championship at Forest Hills the title passed to the youngest player ever to hold it. Doeg captured his crown at the age of 21, but Paul Loury recalls that Billy Johnston, of San Francisco, was only 20 when he won the championship in 1915 and did not reach 21 until the November following the tournament. Doeg, therefore, gets only second place on the age list. Maurice McLoughlin, once famous "Comet," and also a Californian, was 22 when he won his first title in 1912. R. Norris Williams was 23 when he won in 1914, and R. Lindley Murry was 24 when he became champion in 1917. Bill Tilden was a veteran in comparison at the time of his first crowning, as he had reached the age of 27 when he hung up his initial title victory in 1920.

OF COURSE we've had a depression! We had a depression coming to us. What else could we expect? Once the falls caught us there was no way to turn back. Silly salaries—far beyond what we ever earned. Thirty-cent dollars. Paper profits that really didn't exist. Living standards far beyond anything we could afford. Judgment gone haywire. The dizzy dance, popping corks—and the soft, warm body of Lady Luck in our arms whispering sweet nothings into our ears—and all the time a dagger in her garter.

BUT, just the same, this is still America. It's like pulling teeth to get tickets to the World's Series. Demi-Tasse golf courses stay open all night. Trains still travel full speed, in sections—one block apart. We still have the same old traffic jams—the same old rush hours.

Essentially, there is no real difference. The good show draws the crowd—the good joke gets the laugh. And the boys in the Pullman still have the answer to EVERYTHING.

All of which means that WE ARE STILL OURSELVES—and that's all that matters. There is still no black in the flag, and certainly no yellow—just red, white and blue, as it always was. Whatever the depression did to us—that's water over the dam. Last October is ancient history. Good flesh heals fast.

Everybody now agrees that a good stiff slap in the face was the one thing we needed. It sobered us up. It re-awakened the good, old pioneer strain in us. It made us THINK.

And, from a strictly commercial standpoint, that slap in the face did the one very important thing that will go down in history: it ended the high cost of living and brought prices down where a man without a step-ladder CAN REACH 'EM.

Do you realize what your dollar will buy today? Have you taken the trouble to visit the stores and check up? In all your life you never saw such values—and it's general throughout the whole country. Where you used to get a handful for five dollars, they fill your market basket now. Shoes marked 'way down. Dresses, furniture, groceries, radio, automobiles—ANYTHING you want at prices so far below anything you ever expected to see again that you'll swear you're dreaming.

Why There Is Extra Charge on Mortgages

—By B. C. FORBES—

ARE THE CHARGES made in connection with granting mortgages reasonable or unreasonable?

This subject, raised by a reader the other day, has created widespread interest. Sharply differing opinions are expressed.

Mr. Forbes

A WELL-TO-DO man complains that a hundred thousand dollar mortgage in New York City, on property worth far more, cost him $2,000 in addition to the interest charge. He vowed that $500 should have covered all necessary technicalities incidental to issuing the mortgage.

That's one view.

NEXT READ what Harry H. Wiggins, lawyer, has to say:

"While I am willing to admit that advantage was taken of the situation that prevailed in the mortgage money market up to a short time ago, and that exorbitant charges were made by lenders for loans secured by mortgage on real estate, yet the allegations made by a writer in your column are not correct.

"In the first place, assuming the property to be located on Long Island, in either Queens or Nassau County, the cost of the title examination on a $20,000 loan would be $180. This is the regular title company charge for the title examination and premium on the policy. title insurance, to which certainly the lender is entitled as protection of his security.

"Secondly, the services of an attorney are required in drawing the bond and mortgage in closing the title, in order that the lender may be sure that he is getting a valid first lien free from incumbrances against the property upon which the mortgage is given. A reasonable charge for these services certainly would not be less than $100.

"Thirdly, the writer quoted failed to mention that a tax of one-half of 1 per cent must be paid to the state, and that the recording office charges a fee for recording the mortgage which may run from $5 to $10. He also failed to include the cost of a survey, which is as important as the title examination. This may run to $50.

"Adding these sums together, we get $440. Any charge made above this amount would be in the nature of a bonus."

PERHAPS THAT explanation may make prospective buyers more friendly towards lenders when an extra payment, on top of the regular interest rate, is mentioned. Apparently, arranging, sifting, issuing and recording a mortgage involves much more than you or I might imagine.

What has been here done to clear up misunderstanding may encourage prospective home builders not to hold back simply because they felt they were being gouged when they sought to obtain mortgage money.

IT WOULD HARDLY be an exaggeration to say that whether America enjoys prosperity or suffers depression depends largely upon whether building is active or inactive.

Therefore, this whole matter of mortgages is of transcendent importance. One reader puts it this way:

"The real estate mortgage is of tremendous value and deserves first place among investment securities when properly made. It builds towns, villages and cities out on the prairies, it constructs schools, churches, colleges and universities, business blocks, hotels, clubs and, most valuable of all, homes. It creates business for Main Street, stimulates activity in far off forests, turns the wheels of the mills, furnishes labor for untold numbers and incomes for invested capital.

"Yet, it is today in bad repute. Capital refuses to invest—lenders are overstocked, frozen, the builder is doing nothing, mechanics are idle, businessmen and the public are becoming discouraged—all because of lack of confidence.

"The present epidemic of mental depression can be effectively and permanently cured, prosperity restored and safety and happiness assured through the medium of common sense, confidence, honesty and publicity.

"As the principal means to this end, real estate and real estate mortgages must be restored to their rightful standing."

ASSUREDLY THERE is plenty of money in this country available for safe investment. Won't more borrowers and lenders please get together so that more hammers and saws may get busy?

Stocks Decline | Local Fuels Firm Up

MARKET COURSE UNEVEN, MAIN TREND DOWN

Stocks Bob Up and Down In Confusion, Decidedly Irregular—Rallies Fail

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP).—Stocks bobbed up and down in confusion today, but the main trend was downward. The market, nervous after its recent experiences, moved with decided irregularity, developing little strength on the rallies and, on the other hand, becoming more active whenever professional offerings were pressed. Selling was was improved somewhat by the early firmness of wheat.

Selling however, was concentrated more noticeably in individual issues and a couple of well-defined groups, and the movement in most shares as a class was fairly well on the reactionary side.

Pressure was partly attributed against the farm implement stocks and the oils, more than a dozen of the latter classification touching new lows for the year.

U. S. Steel, after making a fractional improvement, lost a couple of points and American Can turned a 1-point advance into a moderate loss. On the whole the same course was followed by other investment stocks, including American Telephone and General Electric. Case furthered its profits, International Harvester, 4 and Prairie Pipe about 3, to new minimums. Auburn Auto and Auburn Motor lost 3. Vanadium and a few other pool stocks in which liquidation was severe yesterday were again heavy. Radio, Standard Oil of New York, Gillette, Packard and Chrysler, among others, dipped to new 1930 lows.

TRACTORS STRONG

New York City Traction shares were a strong feature and there some prominent advance in the buying stimulated by a burst of recent developments. Important and possible successful efforts toward unification of Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit-Unified an inactive stock, soared more than 17 points and gains of 5 to 6 in the active members of the group were general.

The gloomy comment which has accompanied [illegible] against stocks were largely missing and although such reports find little credence in calmer circles of the financial community their absence was something of a relief.

Last week's gain in steel operations drew considerable comment. Some experts on the industry felt that the upward trend might not be so evident when the next reports come out, basing their contention on the ground that production might again pass requirements for finished goods, thus permitting a slackening in output. In this connection it was pointed out that the railroads have so far made little or no inquiry for rails, notwithstanding the fact that the usual season for this demand is now at hand.

AUTO INDUSTRY

The automotive industry, another important user of steel is likewise apathetic. One of the trade papers expressed the opinion that production of motor cars this year would probably fall below 4,000,000 units for the first time since 1927 unless an unforeseen improvement appeared. Another publication asserted that a large volume of deferred purchases of automobiles had piled up and that manufacturers were expecting to reap the benefits of large replacement orders next year when the business uncertainty should have been allayed.

The dividend action by the Anaconda copper group had been expected. Anaconda's cut to a $2.50 basis brought a rally in the shares on covering from shorts who had thought that a larger reduction was likely. Greene Cananea, in which Anaconda holds a 90 per cent interest and Inspiration Consolidated another 90 per cent, of the family omitted their common payments entirely.

Money was almost embarrassingly abundant. Some of the brokers in the outside market quoted call loans as low as one per cent. Reductions of ½ of a per cent on several time loan maturities were also reported and six months accommodations in a few instances at least were available as low as 2½.

Pennsy Loadings Decline for Week

Total cars handled by Pennsylvania Railroad system for the week ended September 20 were 148,374, against 150,883 last week and 186,262 a year ago.

From January 1 cars totaled 5,402,638, against 6,266,913 in the like 1929 period.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 2 points to an advance of 3 points. Near months were relatively easy under liquidation when reported the resignation of director motors while the late months were steady in response to the showing of Liverpool.

At 9:30 o'clock, trade buyers on cutbacks, absorbing the early offerings and after the initial setback subsequent the market held generally steady, October sold up to 10.39 and March to 11.00 or about 10 to 9 points per higher. Prices were within 1 point of two of these figures at the end of the first half hour.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 25.—Cotton, Spot in fair demand; prices irregular; American strict good middling 6.75; good middling 6.49; strict middling 6.36; middling 6.26; strict low middling 5.88; low middling 5.58; strict good ordinary 4.80; good ordinary 4.45. Sales 8,000 bales, including 7,300 American. Receipts 7,000 bales, including 6,900 American. Futures opened steady; October, 6.32; January, 6.08; March, 6.08; May, 6.07; July, 6.03; October, 6.22.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 25.—The market was due ½ to ¾ penny higher. Opened 5/8 to 7/8 and at 1:20 p. m. was unchanged to ¼ penny up.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Price movement in the Curb market today cut an irregular swath as traders strove to get their bearing after the devastation of yesterday. The principal consolation for those on the long side was the resistance displayed by key stocks when depressed within shooting distance of the low levels reached before the rally set in in the final hour yesterday.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list, 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Action of Bond Market Indicates Depression Is Passing

Aside from all other considerations, the action of the bond market clearly suggests that we are following the long established method of clearing out of the wreckage of depression. Rapid gains along the bond market has totally ignored the weakness in speculative markets and again yesterday with stocks on the toboggan, investment securities were active and strong. In previous periods of recovery from depression and the effects of a collapse of stock market speculation, the bond market has turned first with strength at the outset restricted to the most seasoned type of loan. Later as confidence returns and corporate earning power improves the lower will reach out to embrace the second grade type of bonds and finally with yields in that quarter have been beaten down to unattractive levels will once more make itself felt in renewed interest in investment stocks.

A veritable collapse in Vanadium Steel, long one of the market's most spectacular performers, ushered in the heavy selling movement which shortly before noon yesterday drove the general market back to approximately the low levels of Monday. While selling here was ascribed chiefly to the operations of a well known bear trader it was, nevertheless, learned that offerings were quite general with a number of firms letting go of considerable amount of stock. Vanadium has been one of the market's widest movers since the beginning of the year, selling brought forth unpleasant reports on the current operations of the company, which for the first six months of the year reported net income equivalent to $3.30 a share, about half of which was in the form of operating profits and the balance realized from the sale of securities.

Leading steel trade journals made out a much better case for that industry. Improved demand though not especially pronounced is maintaining itself. Specifications, despite the absence of important automotive or railway buying, have averaged some 15 per cent better than in August according to the Iron Age, with some lines running ahead of the volume a year ago when the decline set in. Ingot output is up to 61 per cent against 58 per cent the past fortnight, and growing interest in forward buying is making for strength in prices of finished steel. Bars and structural shapes are quoted $1 a ton above recent minimum. Pig iron continues weak with the price the lowest since the end of 1915, and scrap markets are more irregular than recently.

Just about the time Wall Street was convinced that a new group had started sponsoring the market for Kreuger & Toll, foreign conditions developed which affected the stock adversely. As a result, there has been considerable liquidation by those who had anticipated an advancing market in the shares when the pool became more active. Naturally, the stock of a company with such extensive interests in foreign countries would be likely to feel the influences of a disturbance in sentiment concerning the immediate outlook in various sections of the globe.

Case has been reflecting the fluctuations in the grain markets from time to time in recent months. While there has been bear pressure based on the belief that the company will feel the effects of unfavorable conditions in the agricultural sections, it is known that this same view has been held in outside quarters. Naturally, that has led to liquidation which probably has been larger than many have admitted thus far. The stock responds readily to activity on either side and for that reason, and because of the wide fluctuations from time to time, conservatives have discouraged clients from taking a long position, even when prices have declined sharply. Some of the recent selling has been credited to western houses.

Investment interests report that another development seems to indicate the return of stock buying. Following the investment demand for high grade bonds and preferred stocks, it is now reported that convertible bonds of good companies have been attracting buyers. Demand for them has come from those who seek some return on their purchases, and at the same time desire to take a speculative position with the likelihood of increasing their principal when the stock market again moves ahead.

SUPREME COURT HELD PARTY TO SLUMP

'Fallacious' Reasoning on Questions of Valuation, Charged by Economist

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.

In examining the causes of security inflation which led to the depression, Felix Frankfurter, Harvard University legal and economic luminary, holds the "fallacious" reasoning of the Supreme Court of the United States on questions of valuation, especially of public utility enterprises partly responsible.

Mr. Rukeyser

Incidentally, Mr. Frankfurter warns the utilities that now that commodity prices have fallen the Supreme Court doctrine of reproduction costs" which seemed so bullish when prices were high might now prove unfavorable even to the corporations themselves.

RAPS TRIBUNAL

Taking a shot at the high tribunal, Professor Frankfurter writing in the forthcoming issue of the Yale Review, asserts:

"The determination of utility rates and the ascertainment of the rate base are essentially economic problems. But no judicial pronouncements upon matters fundamentally economic run so counter to the views of economists as do the more recent utterances of the Supreme Court upon present value. They are based upon unrealities, are financially unsound, and lead to uncertainty and speculation. The so-called rules set the regulating agencies an impossible task, for they form a maze of cobwebbery.

"The New York Telephone case proves conclusively why the prevalent Supreme Court doctrines does not work; it also proves why, in the vernacular, it is being 'worked.' The range of 'value' in this case reveals that the doctrine of present value is totally devoid of elements for objective tests. For the same property as of the same date, July 1, 1926, there were six different estimates of the fair 'value' and fair 'return' of the New York Telephone Company for rate-making purposes.

"Undoubtedly, the stakes are high for those who control utilities which offer great opportunity for speculative gain. But to conservative utility managers or to investors in bonds and preferred stocks, the present scheme of utility valuation must be as unsatisfactory as it is to utility commissions. For it is based fundamentally upon untruths."

OFFERS REMEDY

After tearing down the present valuation philosophy of the Supreme Court, which emphasizes reproduction costs as an element in value, Prof. Frankfurter offering a tentative remedy, declares:

"Public regulation must extricate itself from the present doctrines of judicial valuation. Some such fixed rate base as has been proposed by the Interstate Commerce Commission and by Gov. Roosevelt's representatives on the New York Commission is necessary in the interest of the public as well as that of far-sighted investors. Owen D. Young's desire 'to see a rate base fixed on the actual investment and not on "reproductive value" may eventually commend itself to other utility leaders."

Emphasizing how the present economic situation had changed the practical effect of the new doctrine, Mr. Frankfurter adds:

"The drop in the price of commodities far below the prices on which utility developments have been made since 1920 may lead the utilities to realize that a return on prudent investment is their own best safeguard. And the Supreme Court, one believes, will find the constitution no bar to economic wisdom and the demands of stability and fair dealing."

McKeesport Tin Mills Working At 100%

McKeesport Tin Plate Company reported today that its mills were running at 100 per cent after working at more than theoretical capacity for the greater part of the year to date. While operations for the final quarter probably will decline to be between 60 per cent and 70 per cent representing the seasonal character of the company's business, the falling off from the preceding months will be considerably less than in former years. During the last three months of 1929, mill operation was at about 45 per cent. This output for the entire current year will approximate 4,000,000 cases of tin plate equivalent to the plant's theoretical capacity, as compared with 3,200,000 cases in 1929. The ability of the company to turn out its full rated annual capacity in 1930 in the face of the usual slow down in operations in the final quarter is due to the forcing of output over theoretical capacity of the mills during a large part of the year.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Mlle. La Joie"

"Fifty Thousand Frenchmen Can't Be Wrong!"

It came to us through the night across the lawn from the neighboring house.

Bertha laughed rather musically.

There was far more music in Bertha's laughter than ever came out of the ether by way of a microphone.

The full moon lighted the terrace with a radiant softness. It seemed to make Bertha's yellow hair glint like a sort of halo.

"Is that so?" I remarked.

We laughed again. Bertha and myself.

"Let us in on the joke, Tom," my brother said.

My brother Edgar and his wife had come up from Washington for a visit. I hadn't seen Ed for five or six years and Ed had never seen Bertha, nor had Ed's charming wife, for that matter.

"It's no joke. It's merely a fact—fifty thousand Frenchmen can be quite wrong, thanks to Tom," Bertha remarked.

"We'll tell you about it later," I promised. "It's time for Mlle. La Joie to keep her promise and entertain us."

"Oh! Do you really mean it, Tom?" Mary exclaimed.

Mary is Mrs. Garner brother Ed's wife.

"She promised," I assured her.

"I didn't know she was here—trot her out, let's see if I'll lose my heart to her the way every man is said to do. Mary will take a chance on not losing me."

"All right, Ma'," I turned to my wife. "Bertha be a dear and run across lots—you know how forgetful La Joie is—she may have forgotten all about her promise."

"Surely, dear."

Bertha got up and started to go across the back way to the street at the rear, the short cut.

"Better go inside, Tom—and be ready for her—not keep her waiting," Bertha called.

We went inside.

Married in France

"You cleaned up big when you put this Mlle. La Joie over, according to your letters, Tom," Ed said.

"I'll say I did—"

"If you made her, she has a nerve to be temperamental with you," Mary remarked.

"The 'artiste' in her explains everything—how do you like Bertha?"

I had married Bertha in France, and my brother and his wife had never seen her until they arrived at our suburban home a few hours before.

"She's beautiful—one of those true blondes—types no woman has to wonder if she touched up her hair—one can tell at a glance that it is absolutely natural," Mary enthused, "and she is really a dear—how such a little lady ever fell for you is beyond me."

Mary had always joked with me. I was just a kid of 18 when she married Ed, 10 years before, and I was no Adonis.

"Bertha is one of those women who naturally admire a homely man."

"Did you know her here before you went over?" Ed asked.

"No, I had never heard of her. She had been in some musical comedies—"

"I didn't know she was a professional!" Mary explained.

"She wasn't well known, I'll admit. While she's gone after Mlle La Jolie, I'll tell you. I had gone over to manage a jazz orchestra, but we had a sort of misunderstanding, so I was glad to take half of my two years' contract salary and quit. I looked around to see if there were any American entertainers I could put over. That's how I found Bertha."

"What was she doing over there?" Ed asked.

"She had been with an orchestra, singing and dancing and when the orchestra finished its engagement Bertha remained, hoping to make good in some of the Paris companies—she could talk French like a native, or perhaps with a Montreal accent, for she was educated in Montreal."

"Was she all alone over there?" Mary asked.

"No, Miss Prude, she wasn't all alone, she had her mother with her—her own mother, not a stage mother; but it would have made no difference if she had been in Paris alone—Bertha is—well, Bertha—she's the most wonderful girl—"

"We agree, we agree—they are all like that when you are just married," Ed said, with a laugh, "go on about your romance."

Good Actress

"Bertha had heard of me through some friend I had managed the season before and she came to my hotel with her mother to see me. I went back with them to the two rooms they had and watched her do her stuff. It was great—"

"It would be with you in love—"

"I hadn't started to fall in love then. But Bertha put over her songs mighty well and her dancing was good. I don't mean that she was the world's best, but she was good. I told her I believed I could put her over big."

"And then you ruined her career by marrying her," Mary chided, "like any selfish man."

"Not so fast," I said. "I tried my best to put her over. But this was the season when those dear Frenchmen got the idea that the United States shouldn't accept a cent of war debt. They thought we were a nation of shysters and Shylocks and what-not. A couple motion pictures that seemed to claim that the Americans won the war had been shown over there and barred. The result was that no American was any good except to fleece with double and triple prices for everything. They've changed now—and are offering sensible inducements to American tourists."

I glanced at the clock and moved over to the piano.

"Time for Bertha to be bringing Mlle. La Joie in," I explained.

I am no great pianist, but I can play an accompaniment well enough for an amateur, and I was to play La Joie's accompaniment.

"Bertha was good and I was a hustling manager. I got her plenty of hearings and a few real tryouts. At the hearings she was tentatively accepted, the producers agreed that she was good, but at the tryouts she fell flat—it nearly broke her heart, but she was mighty brave about it. This was the time I fell madly in love with her and strange to tell it, her mother seemed to like me a whole lot. When I asked her if she objected to me as a son-in-law she gave me a hug. She advised Bertha to marry me and settle down to private life.

"It was just because Bertha was an American that she could gain no popularity at all. I had billed her billed as 'La Belle Berta, l'Americaine d'Or.'"

An poetic, the golden American," Mary said. "It was a good idea, she is a golden girl type."

Proud and Stubborn

"They didn't like her because they were determined never to like anyone or anything American. Some of the theatrical writers over there had articles about the injustice of paying good French money in salaries to Americans when so many French artists were looking for bookings.

"I begged Bertha to marry me. She admitted that she wanted to do just that, but she was proud and stubborn. She wouldn't marry me until she made good, and I knew darn well she'd never make good over there while all Paris felt the way it did about Americans.

"'I'll always feel that you married me out of pity because I'm a flop,' Bertha said. Finally she agreed that it was a waste of time and money trying to get a foothold. Bertha advised that I find some French girl who was clever because she knew I had a knack of advertising and boosting and putting an artist over. I hated to do it. But Bertha came to me one day with a note to Mlle. La Joie.

"'She is resting now at her home away down in Aveutelle,' Bertha said, 'but with this note from me, she will at least listen to your proposition. Go and see her work and then if I am any judge—'

"I was getting short of funds—so I went to this little hamlet and found Mlle. La Joie with her wrinkled old grandmother in a tiny house. Mlle. La Joie amazed me with her vivacity. Her hair was as black as patent leather and as glossy, her little black eyebrows were perfect curves and her velvety brunette complexion was beautiful. The life and verve and magnetism she put into her songs were wonderful. She agreed to let me put her over. I planned on the spot to advertise her as 'The Goddess of Night' and to make sure that it was known that she was a native of France.

"Well sir, it worked beautifully—"

"Ah, M'sieu, am I late?"

Mlle. La Joie stood in the doorway. She began to talk in a torrent of French then.

I introduced her to Ed and his wife and asked her where Bertha was.

"She stay one moment wiz ze grandmere, she arrive almos' immediate. Which shall I do?"

Couple Amazed

I struck some chords and La Joie began to sing and dance. Brother Ed and Mary stared, spellbound. I was amazed myself. I had never seen La Joie do any better work anywhere.

As she rested before doing another, I turned to my brother and his wife.

"You see? No wonder she went over big. All the Frenchmen were positively wild about her. They wouldn't give any credit to the American manager who had put Mlle. La Joie over, but I didn't care—"

"Zut! Zut! Pleez!"

Mlle La Joie shook her finger at me. I played again, she surpassed her first effort.

And then Mlle. La Joie snatched off that raven wig, wiped away the make-up and stood there revealed—Bertha—my golden-haired wife!

"It was Bertha's idea," I explained, "she thought that if they wouldn't have her as an American, she could win them by pretending to be French—she fooled me that day I went to Aveutelle."

Bertha laughed again. "I'll never forget how blank and stupid he looked when I did then as I have done now, revealed myself."

"Now," Ed said, "I get you—now I see why you laugh at 'Fifty Thousand Frenchmen Can't Be Wrong,' because they were all wrong, they thought the golden-haired little American girl was a raven-haired French girl!"

"And what then?" Mary asked.

"And then we were married," I answered.

Fact-Finding Commission Reports Sea Lion Frightens Bathers

People are tired of going into butcher shops and looking at the same old calendars which show an Indian princess paddling a canoe by moonlight. This country needs new calendars to attract people into butcher shops, so they will buy more meat and thus help the farmers. This, in a word, is the report of the unofficial fact-finding commission appointed by this department to study farm aid. The commission, which is headed by Adolphus Whozis, head of the Acme Art Calendar Printing Corporation, recommends the above calendar design to solve the situation.

Change in Directors at Allegheny Observatory

The Allegheny Observatory has been fortunate in its directors. A survey of the men who have headed the institution discloses brilliant scientists—Samuel P. Langley, credited by the Smithsonian Institution with the invention of the airplane; Frank Schlesinger, whose work on the stellar parallaxes is familiar wherever astronomy is studied, and John Brashear, the great lens maker, among them.

Dr. Heber D. Curtis, who has resigned as director to take charge of the construction of a new observatory at the University of Michigan, his Alma Mater, was a worthy successor to these great men. He has maintained the observatory's prestige as a center of learning by his studies of solar eclipses, and at the same time has contributed not a little to popular appreciation of astronomy in Pittsburgh by the interesting interviews he has given and the articles he has written in regard to celestial phenomena.

Dr. Frank C. Jordan, who takes Dr. Curtis' place, fully measures up to the stature expected in the director of Allegheny Observatory. He is distinguished for his work in photometry and is sympathetic and helpful in his attitude towards amateur astronomers, now so numerous in Pittsburgh and to whom the Academy of Science and Art recently gave recognition by its organization of an astronomical section. It was Dr. Jordan who took the photograph of the new planet Pluto published in the Sun-Telegraph within a few days after the announcement of its discovery by the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz.

The observatory, under Dr. Jordan's direction, is certain to continue adding to the world's knowledge of the stellar universe, but its additions would no doubt be more extensive if some wealthy philanthropist would donate a larger telescope.

The 30-inch refractor given by William Thaw is still one of the notable telescopes in the world, but the Yerkes Observatory has a 40-inch refractor and the Lick Observatory a 36-inch one, while in reflectors the Pittsburgh institution is left far behind by the 100-inch instrument at the Mt. Wilson Observatory, the 61-inch telescope at the Perkins Observatory and the 60-inch reflector at Harvard Observatory.

The stars are now recognized as chemical laboratories in which the elements can be studied under temperatures enormously high. Astronomy is a science of vast practical importance, and it is very desirable that Pittsburgh shall have facilities for studying it that are equal to those to be found elsewhere.

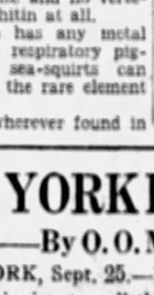
VII.—FAILURES TO VARY AND EXTINCTION.

More to the point are some of the failures of breeders to obtain from Nature something which they particularly desire. Blue roses are the most famous example.

For centuries a blue rose has been one of the goals of every ambitious rose grower; and yet, though bluish purple has sometimes been obtained, true blue is as far from achievement as ever. It is quite easy for roses to be all shades of red, yellow or white; but, while it is perhaps not impossible, it is clearly very difficult for them to become blue. Black tulips are another case in point. During the tulip mania of the seventeenth century, every effort was made to breed a black-flowered tulip, and huge prices could have been obtained for such bulbs. The flowers were darkened to a deep bronze, but real black eluded the grower.



H. G. Wells

There are other limitations upon variation to consider. Natural Selection has never been given the chance of refusing or accepting a wheel. Not only has the principle of the wheel never been utilized in the bodies of living things, but it is impossible for it to be utilized.

It is impossible, because a living organ rotating like a wheel could not be supplied with blood vessels and nerves. The "Wheel Animalcules" or Rotifers, we may note in passing, simply have circlets of cilia in their structure and not wheels.

Important, too, are some of the broad restrictions to be found in larger groups. No arthropod and no threadworm possesses cilia. No insect has developed any form of skeleton save of pure chitin; no mollusc and no vertebrate has any chitin at all.

No vertebrate has any metal but iron in its respiratory pigment; while sea-squirts can use nothing but the rare element vanadium.

Chlorophyll, wherever found in plants, varies but little in its chemical composition and mode of working; but it is never found in animals, even though many animals, such as reef-building corals, reveal their need of it by taking green plants into partnership with them. The reason for such restrictions we can only surmise.

The insect constitution may be incapable of giving rise to cartilage or bone; or else, insects having happened to make a start with an external skeleton of chitin, the production of substance suitable for an internal skeleton would be valueless without an impossible remodelling of their whole organization. But whatever the precise cause, the fact of restriction remains.

In other cases we can better understand the limitations. No insect weighs more than a few ounces, although if they could have attained the size of horses or even rabbits they would almost certainly have prevented the rise of vertebrates to pre-eminence on land and would have become the world's dominant animals.

No flying creature, bird, bat, or pterodactyl, has ever reached a hundredth of the bulk of a large elephant; they all are well below a hundred pounds in weight.

This latter restriction depends on aerodynamic laws; with wings as propulsive machinery and muscles for power, larger creatures could not attain sufficient speed to avoid stalling.

And the fortunate restriction of insect size is due to their having embarked on the method of breathing by air-tubes; this method, the most efficient of all ways of breathing for quite small land animals, becomes rapidly more and more inefficient with increase of bulk, since oxygen must diffuse along their tubes to reach the tissues; and if these are too long, diffusion takes so much time that the supply of oxygen is inadequate.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—I'll wager two sticks of colored chalk and a spinning top all the way across the board that in these days of unemployment no person has been offered so many jobs they cannot fill as this sad-eyed chronicler. Maybe its kidding, but they are driving me nuts.

There are ten offers for radio broadcasting, two for "personal appearances" in what are known as talkie shorts, a trip to Hollywood to write a full length movie and even an offer for "a week at the Palace," that paradise of piffawmers. And each offer is baited with goodly gobs of lovely jack.

Were I to cash in on all I could fulfill that recurrent dream of lazing to the South Seas—pausing at Philadelphia for a sneering chuckle at the mint—and lie limp in the eerie glow of crackling koa logs, listen to the throb of gourd drums, the chant of dusky ladies. O, boy!

As it is all I can do is look silly while my wife pops in every once in awhile, trying desperately to keep a straight face, looks me over and murmurs: "You an actor?" and rushes out in a wild gale of uproarious laughter. You'd think I haven't all my marbles or something.

I am conscious no histrionic virtues of mine incite such ridiculous offers. They are due entirely to the magic of the printed word. After people see a name in print a few years there is a natural curiosity—an inclination to wonder: "What in the world does that bird look like?"

In other words, a column clown in the flesh has the same sort of appeal as a freak show's three-legged calf. And after folk see him, they merely sigh a sad little sigh and kiss another illusion goodby. No columnist looks half as bright as his printed piffle. And you may quote me freely on that.

I have had my flings at public speaking—three to be precise. After nights of wakefulness interpolated with a few pajama poses—full face and profile—before the mirror, I imagined myself all set for a forensic furore. Instead, when called upon my knees turned suddenly to loose jelly, my expression became that of a frightened hoot-owl, and my voice trailed off into a despairingly, thin squeak—like a rusted hinge on an old gate.

Once I was called upon for a few words at a stirring homecoming reception of Jack Dempsey in Los Angeles. Several noted Pacific coast orators glibly rolled out their masterful perorations. When I stood up the world seemed to stop, turn over and leave everything a smudge. My mouth opened like a ventriloquist's dummy but there was no sound. I could not utter a word. As I sat down in confusion, a palooka near the speaker's table cried: "That's telling 'em, old whistle ears!"

And imagine me with my quarter of three o'clock walk following such deft delineators of extemporeneous and pin-neat repartee as Phil Baker, Frank Fay and Julius Tannen at the Palace! There I would be all alone on that big stage with not even my wife to chafe my wrists and bring me out of a swoon. The Palace—your Aunt Ida's tippet. I know my eggs.

* * *

Upon another memorable—to me, anyway—occasion, I was called upon suddenly at a theatrical benefit, along with many others, to take a bow. How I managed to walk up the runway to the stage you'll never know. Or likely care. I mumbled something that could not possibly have been heard by the orchestra leader and started across the Sahara desert for the wings. It was the longest distance between two points I have ever known. I seemed to be on one of those running boards used to exercise dogs. I passed through row after row of villages—I distinctly remember Passaic—and was yanked back to reality by a stage hand as I was trying to climb down into one of the stage boxes. I was a week getting hold of myself again and sometimes I think I have never been exactly right since.

Only one writer of my acquaintance is able to face an audience in a theater and with the polish of a hardened trouper "run away with the show." His name is Irvin Shrewsbury Cobb, Paducah's No. 1 boy.

* * *

There is no grin so goofy as that of a baffled speaker. Nor any expression so goofy. Heaven knows, I need the money—(Trio of bankers in deep bass: Yes and you better get it!)—but if I have to continue to make a fool of myself for a living, I'll do it in print, hewing to the line and letting hisses fall where they may.

J. V. Thompson's Study Of His Family Tree

Some interesting questions are raised by J. V. Thompson's testimony in contempt of court proceedings at Uniontown Tuesday that he has already spent $60,000 on exploration of his family tree, with some thousands still to be paid for the research. The extent of the investigation precludes the possibility that the former millionaire coal magnate is merely interested in establishing his eligibility for membership in some such society as the Sons of the American Revolution.

Can it be that he hopes to prove that he has flowing in his own veins blood as noble as that of the family of his niece, the Princess of Thurn and Taxis, who is suing him? Does he aim to show he is the rightful heir to some rich estate? Probably not. Probably he is not actuated by any practical purpose, but has for his motive simply lively curiosity as to the character and standing of his ancestors.

The chances are that no matter how much money Mr. Thompson spends he will be unable to trace his genealogy back farther than two or three centuries at most. But how many persons can trace their ancestors that far? Very few.

The fact is that not even the royal families of Europe whose dynasties are oldest can go back of the Middle Ages in their genealogy. When they reach that dark period in the world's history the stems of their family trees become lost in the mists. There are several noble Italian families who assert they are descended from noble families of ancient Rome, but the assertion is not accepted by the foremost genealogists.

Even more remarkable claims are made in the Orient. Persons claiming direct descent from Confucius, who died nearly five centuries before Christ was born, are living in China today. The claim has been made for the Saklatwalla family (Parsees in origin), of whom one member, living here, is an officer in the Vanadium Corporation, while another, his brother, was a member of the British House of Commons, that it can trace its ancestry back for 4,000 years.

Interesting as genealogical studies are, the futility of attempting through them to prove that one is of superior clay is suggested by the query of democratic revolutionaries in England centuries ago:

"When Adam delved, and Eve span,
Who was then the gentleman?"

Wildcat Is Doomed, Fox Going, Beaver Returning

The State Board of Game Commissioners has just issued an interesting report on the results of its campaign for the extermination of predatory animals. The wildcat, the board finds, is about to join the wolf, the panther and other creatures formerly common but now extinct in Pennsylvania. From 1915 to 1920 the average kill of wildcats in Pennsylvania was 460 a year; last year only 155 were killed notwithstanding that twice as many trappers were in the field and the bounty was raised from $8 to $15.

Foxes are going, too, though much more slowly. The board says it is convinced more are being killed each year than are being produced. Weasels are believed to be on the increase, notwithstanding the bounty.

These animals are to be exterminated because they prey on rabbits and game birds. But mice probably compose a larger part of their diet than game, and there is a question if their extermination may not result in a large increase in harmful rodents. At any rate biologists are by no means unanimous in the opinion that it is advisable to exterminate the small predatory animals.

For sentimental reasons, too, the news that the Pennsylvania wildcat faces extinction and foxes are passing will fail to arouse enthusiasm in nature-lovers. They may find consolation in the fact that the beaver, which was exterminated years ago but has been re-introduced, is increasing rapidly—so rapidly, in fact, that in some places it has made itself a pest and it has been necessary to trap 200 of them (alive) and transfer them to other localities.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The Chain System

Three wise men of Gotham went to sea in a tub. Looks like Tommy Lipton has made it a quartet.

Tommy is the world's only tea merchant with a chain store system of yachts.

He builds, launches and races 'em with the persistence of a lunch wagon serving doughnuts through the ages.

The trouble may be with the blue prints. Maybe they ain't the right color.

The fault may be with the launching. Why break a bottle of champagne over the prow when that motive power would be better poured into the crew?

There is nothing wrong with the racing. Sir Tommy was born a commoner and knows his place.

This is the fifth time he has failed to finish in time for the news weeklies.

Last week he was winning when the sails fell off his boat.

The danged thing was disrobing in public.

Sir Thomas gave a shriek, fell flat on his face and came up singing a mammy song. There was seaweed in his hair.

The life guards put out from the rockbound coast and got there in time to slap a pulmotor on a pound of tea.

Sir Thomas made his usually graceful speech.

"Gentlemen, I have finished second five times in a row. Twice five is ten. I guess I'm out.

"In 1776 they poured my brand of tea in Boston Harbor. Paul Revere was my first suburban delivery boy. I am embedded just as firmly in history as raisins in a frozen custard.

"I am better than Phil Scott. It is much neater to be beaten by a head than have that head beaten off."

"I will be back next season with my New Shamrock, a beautiful streamline gesture of international goodwill. I consider it very hospitable of the Enterprise to go ahead and show me the way around the course. I might have got lost."

With these grateful words Sir Thomas went aboard the old tea box and ordered full speed ahead in the wrapping and shipping departments.

Isn't It So?

Boys will be boys and some girls will be boisterous.

If marriage doesn't take the conceit out of a man it's chronic.

The happiest matrimonial alliance is that in which excuses are given and taken, even if not believed.

SCIENCE AND HUMAN EVOLUTION

By Archibald Henderson

Some time ago an interesting novel appeared, entitled "Giants in the Earth." It causes us to wonder if, perhaps, there may not some day, be giants on the earth. Giants in body, giants in brain. In detail, evolution appears to progress in all directions—forward, backward, sideways. But in the main, the total trend of evolution is forward, from weakness to strength, from the simple to the complex, from the less fit to the more fit.

The way of evolution is toward increasing specialization and cooperation. In man, as Conklin says, this has led to increased cranial and intellectual capacity, increased control over environment and greater freedom, increased size and complexity of social units.

Progress, however, unless new forces and factors of change are introduced, cannot go on indefinitely. Progress is most rapid at first. Then it gradually slows down and stops. The road of ever-increasing progress ends in extinction. As Minot put it, death is the price we pay for our differentiation.

With the rapid evolution of civilization, powerful social, educative and moral factors are almost sure to act upon man to cause progress in various directions. Progress must come in new lines, and in response to new and very different environmental conditions. The physical evolution appears to have come almost to a standstill. But new discoveries in science may cause radical changes in the human organism, as well as in the forms of lower animals. The intellectual evolution of the race, as well as the physical, has slowed down almost to a standstill. But new lines of social development, population saturation, the growing predominance of the unfit, the menace of birth control to the more intelligent classes of society; such factors may gradually compel a new social orientation, productive of a more ruthless determination to weed out the unfit and provide a wider area for the progress of the fit.

Ales Hrdlicka, for example, predicts that future man will undergo many evolutional changes. The brain will enlarge, the stature will increase, with a lengthening of the lower limbs and shortening of the arms. The pulse rate will increase, the body temperature will rise, and there will be a diminution in the size of the appendix and the intestines.

These conclusions were reached after a contemplation of man's infancy and childhood, which Hrdlicka estimates to have covered a span of some 300,000 years. Man can be said to have had, as yet, only a brief span of maturity, beginning from the glacial period. Man is slowly changing, however imperceptible or slow these changes are. He is still in a state of plasticity; is constantly conquering his environment. He is only very slowly learning to control it and himself, individually, in the interest of the race.

Recent experiments have shown that hundreds of mutations have been found or produced in drosophila, or fruit fly. If all these mutations are capable of arising with a single insect, there is reason to believe that innumerable changes may be produced in the human species. These changes will probably arise out of the fields of genetics and endocrinology. Experiment alone will determine whether such potential mutations in the human species will prove beneficial.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Are your finger nails green? Or perchance magenta? If not, they'd better be, for, according to the latest fashion edict, finger nails must match costumes this season. And, believe it or not, that verdict's going to weigh heavier with the average femme than all the laws which a dozen congresses might pass. For American women are 100 per cent sold on the Importance and Necessity of Beauty.

As proof, note the report of the American Association of Cosmeticians and Hair Artists, recently in convention at Kansas City. The average American woman, according to these experts, uses during her lifetime three times her weight in cosmetics—approximately 347.6 pounds of makeup and creams.

She spends, on beauty alone, incomparably more than on education, recreation or any other form of personal development. Why this tremendous traffic in grease and coloring matter? Why this vast expenditure of time and energy in swatting and swabbing? Is it to gratify mere personal vanity? No, it's an act of faith.

The average woman believes—with a fanaticism as deep as that of any religion—that beauty is her best bet. She believes that beauty will get her a husband and a job—and hold them after she has gotten them.

She honestly thinks that life will be bigger and better if she can get a permanent and a face lift. And nothing can convince her that there isn't a mysterious, irresistible allure in the latest French perfume and the newest eye-shadow.

As the American man bases all his hopes on business, so the American woman bases all her hopes on beauty. The poorest little stenog will, and does, starve herself to get her weekly marcel. And the richest matron trembles lest she lose her husband if her complexion goes blotchery or her shape goes blah. Don't believe me—just read the ads—and you'll see the proof that America's in the grip of the greatest beauty cult in human history.

And, personally, I think it's the bunk. All my life I've been meandering around, passing nothing up, and I've yet to see where beauty justified one-tenth of the time or money we waste upon it. The most popular woman I ever knew stood 5 feet 10 in her mining boots and weighed nearly 200 pounds. She had red hair, freckles, green eyes and black lashes that were nobody's business.

She used kitchen soap to lather her sun-burned pelt and it would have taken a blacksmith to manicure her big brown mitts. Yet, come evening, the men rode in through the moutain passes from 60 miles around, just to see that big girl grin and pass them up. She wasn't just popular—she was an epidemic. Yet she never spent a nickle on a beauty cream.

Nor was she alone in her stuff. Do a little thinking yourself. Who's the most popular girl at the office . . . at the picnic . . . or the dance. Is the beautiful doll with the trick makeup and the marcelled manners . . . or the tumbled, towseled little kid in any old dress, who's everybody's pal?

Beauty—as an indoor sport, when you're tired of pee-wee golf, it's a great recreation. But as for landing you who—or what—you want to get in life, it's the bunk. Only your HEAD will get you life, girl . . . only your HEART will get you love.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Flower-Like

Each frail flower
In the vase
Lends a touch of Garden's grace
To the quiet,
Shadowed room,
Brings its gift of Fragrant bloom.

Having but an Hour to live,
Blossoms gay and Pugitive
Scatter joy with Lavish air,
Blossoms sweet and Debonair.

Flower-like, some Lives we know
Spend their sweetness
As they go,
Bringing to each
Shadowed place
Something of their
Love and grace.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You wonder at yourself sometimes and the trivial things to which your mind reverts when you are at leisure.

You find it difficult to center for long on subjects that require deep thought and a degree of concentration to which you are averse.

The kind of thoughts you usually entertain do not tax your brain to any great extent.

For this reason they come back often and are characteristic of any new thoughts which seep in.

You have talked with successful men, and you have been impressed by the interest they display in the lines they have advanced.

Evidently they have spent many hours delving into matters which have had much to do with their success.

You have had plenty of time to think, but you have used your time on unimportant matters.

Success comes only as a result of well-directed study and thought.

If you are unwilling to spend your time along the deeper and more worth-while paths to knowledge you must take the consequences.

If your line of thought is weak, why don't you change it?
